SIR,—In answer to "T. C. B.'s inquiry re the above, you will find herewith a sketch of what I find answers the purpose. Get two stair rods 18 inches long, and bend one end of each to make a hook, which hooks upwards into a staple on cage end and rests on half staple or hook. The staple must be fixed 3 inches from the cage-front and the half staple as near the front as you can get it. Get a piece of art muslin and make a slot in each end to slip on stair rods. The muslin when made should be slightly longer than the cage-front, and 15 inches wide. Always put the muslin on the rods wet and you will find it tight when dry. Two or three small rings sewn on the muslin on the side next the cage, and hooked on under the cage bottom will hold it in position and prevent husks and dirt from flying about. WM. SCHOLEY.

MORE QUESTIONS FOR EXPERIENCED CATCHERS.

SIR,—Will any generous and experienced catcher kindly answer the following questions?:—1. How much slack should be allowed in a new net (square mesh) knitted, 6ft. 9ins. wide and 10 yards long? In other words what length and breadth should they be geared, and what length poles would they take; also which wood is best for poles? 2. What is the most invisible and the most lasting dye to use in colouring them? 3. Where can reliable and unstrotchable lines be obtained for a pull-line and for the top gearing lines? I am told that hempen lines are best. 4. Where can a durable and adjustable hemp seed crusher be obtained? Surely there must be a mill on the market which will grind seed finely or roughly.

THE FEEDING OF BRITISH SOFTBILLS AT SHOWS.

SIR,—Kindly allow me a little space respecting the above. As a constant sufferer from this wanton carelessness, I think it is due time something was done in the matter. Only this last week-end I have had two valuable birds returned half-dead, not a scrap of food in the tins, and, what is more, they had actually eaten every bit of biscuit (an unusual occurrence) in their sufferings. I sent a good supply to the show in question, but apparently it was too much trouble to feed them. Now, I think that no show committee should attempt to cater for soft-billed birds if they have not got an experienced fancier to look after them. Personally, I am avoiding shows where they maltreat any birds in this way, and I hope other exhibitors will do likewise. Why don't the show committees get a few mealworms for these birds, as the former are difficult to send with the birds, and it is almost essential they should have them, for neglectful feeding for a couple of days, now that the winter is on us, is almost fatal to these delicate yet sweet and interesting creatures.

THE PILEATED FINCH.

SIR,—It may interest Mr. Wesley T. Page to know that I exhibited a Pileated Finch (Coryphospingus pileatus) at the 1886 Crystal Palace Show and took first prize! It was far from being a quietly-clad bird, being all over of a claret or port wine colour, the crest being pale crimson. This bird was very small about half the length of those that I have seen since at shows, and which only had the crimson crest. The bird I exhibited I obtained from the late Anton Jamrach, from whom I obtained other rare foreign birds. The little African Lark (Alanda crassirostris) I had from him; it won at the Palace in 1884 and 1885. It was a bird of about the same size, and a very interesting and lively songster.

J. H. VERRALL.

THE SAID-TO-BE CHAFFINCH-CANARY HYBRID.

SIR,—In reply to Mr. Verrall on the above, I shall be glad if he will answer me the following two questions:—First, his reason for doubting the parentage of the bird? secondly, if he thinks it is quite the right thing to pass his opinion and write about a bird he has never seen. To the best of my knowledge, the bird has been shown five times, getting first prize once, first and special once, v.h.c. once, and wrong classed twice.

W. ANDREWS.

[So far as our own knowledge goes concerning this interesting exhibit, last season, when being shown at metropolitan fixtures by Mr. Dawson and another gentleman, it was either wrong-classed or passed unnoticed by Messrs. J. F. Dewar (we believe), C. Houlton, A. Silver, and G. E. Weston; this season it has been given two firsts by Mr. C. A. House.—EDITOR.]

A NEW ZEALANDER'S TALKATIVE PARROT.

SIR,—Your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, has reached New Zealand—at one time a far cry, but now a hop, step, and a jump. I have read it with much interest, the more so as I have a Parrot, rather a unique specimen in his way, speaking both Maori and English fluently, and Mr. Scott (who receives your paper from home) says he has never heard one speak before. "Cocky" greets every stranger with "Kia Ora" (good luck); and should he be hungry, "Haremai Je Kai" (give me food) is his constant cry till he gets what he wants. "You savage brute" and "Pourangi poli" (mad hat) are some of the things he can say. He can also bark like a dog; so you may imagine he is a never-ending source of amusement to the people in the house. He seems a very healthy specimen, in grand plumage, and I find on referring to your "Parrot Notes" that I am feeding him exactly right—with hemp and Canary, no meat or rich food whatever. New Zealand is not rich in song birds; in fact, we have no native birds with any song. But the Lark, Thrush, Blackbird and Goldfinch have been acclimatised here, and do well, as we have practically no winter. Sparrows breed for nine months in the year, and are here in thousands, but they are useful to keep the insects down. I shall look forward with pleasure to further issues of your paper, and meantime wish you every success.

NEW ZEALANDER.

THE HOOPOE IN CAPTIVITY.

SIR,—Many of our readers have little idea what a beautiful bird the Hoopoe is, it being a very rare British softbill. The one I have has been caged since last April. All that is wanted when a Hoopoe is first taken is plenty of patience to get him to take his food. When this is once done, practically all your trouble is over. Give him an aviary or a convenient cage, so he may have room to stretch his wings. He will repay you for your trouble by showing his crest and plumage off to the best advantage, running to and fro, like a Quail, then flying up and over his perches, then standing up erect like a slim pigeon, with his long bill and beautiful fawn and velvet-tipped crest about 2½ ins. high, which he moves up and down at will. My one never drinks water, and, like a fowl, bathes in dust, which he does during the day and regularly the last thing before going to perch at night time. I have got him so used to me that when I put my head in he will fly to it, a position I thought of having him photographed in, which no doubt would be a curiosity, as it wanted some patience to train him, he being a very shy bird. When he is hungry or frightened, he will call "Caw-caw!" and this being migrating time, I heard him after dark one evening last week, utter his cry, from which he takes his name, "Ho-o-o-po-o-o-e," similar to the sound of the call of a Woodpigeon. I intended to have shown him, but what with the travelling and the chance of something happening to him, after all the trouble, I thought I would keep him in my presence. In addition to my fancy (Norwich Plainheads), for a change I try experiments with some of our rare feathered pets, the more tedious, the more interesting, and the better I like it. A. MALLETT.

WILL MULES BREED?

SIR,—Allow me to thank your correspondent, "The Mongrel," in this, my last letter on the subject, for the information asked for also for the invitation to go and see the birds on a Saturday afternoon, of which I will gladly avail myself. I will let Mr. Shields know by postcard when I shall be able to visit him. I hope the latter gentleman will be spared in health, and his birds also, till the next breeding season, to give them another chance to show that "mules will breed."

T. R. WALLACE.

ARE MULE AND HYBRID BREEDERS OUTSPOKEN.

A Correspondent Thinks They are too "Close."

SIR,—Many thanks for the splendid, outspoken article re the breeding of Norwich Plainhead Canaries, last week. I think it excellent. I am not only writing to you re the above, but also to ask fanciers for more outspoken letters or articles on the breeding of Mules and Hybrids. I have carefully read many articles dealing with Mule and Hybrid breeding, but I feel there are still some facts respecting the same that a good many people will not divulge, but if they were fanciers "to the bone," I feel sure they would not be backward in coming forward, as it were, in helping the novice at the same game, by making that "open confession" which, it is said, is good for the soul.

FOREIGN BIRDS AT GRIMSBY SHOW.

SIR,—I regret very much to say that one of the pair of Blue Mountain Lorries which I exhibited at the above show this week has died this evening. This pair of birds have won many first and special prizes, and were extremely valuable to me. I make no comment upon their being beaten by a grey Parrot, but I do say that their cage on its return contained no end of stuff likely to kill any foreign bird. This, no doubt, had been contributed by an intelligent (sic) public, who evdently thought they were monkeys or elephants! I want to know why the stewards or committeemen did not look after this section? Exhibition foreigners cost a lot of money, and a great deal of trouble and time to get them into high-class condition. To find them on returning from a show in such a state is not very encouraging.

BERNARD HOLLINS.

A LOOK ROUND SOME SCOTCH FANCIERS' ROOMS.

SIR,—Being on pleasure bent during the annual holidays recently when most, if not all, working men are released from the arduous labours for one brief week, throughout the middle of Scotland, I thought I could enjoy myself no better than by giving my brother fanciers a call and see for myself how things were going. Generally I make out a list of towns, villages, etc., to be visited, but this year proved an exception, I having no place in particular before me when I went station-wards. However, as luck would have it, a train was ready to start for Edinburgh; so saying to myself, here's "Pat's luck," I got a ticket and found myself in something like an hour's time in "Auld Reekie." Here, again, giving myself to the fates, I found a train ready to start for Galashiels. Think it over in less time than it takes me to write about it, I was again entrained Galawards, arriving there about 10 a.m., en route for Selkirk, where I soon made tracks for that old and respected fancier, Mr. John Pringle, who not only is a well-known Scotch Fancy breeder and exhibitor, but is also well known in the breeding of Norwich. Arriving at a nice little cottage in Curror-street, I had a guid Scotch welcome, and before long proof of such in the partaking of a cup that cheers, with a goodly array of tempting dainties added thereto. Having done ample justice to this, we proceeded to view the stock, which consists of over 20 fancy and about a dozen Norwich Canaries all fairly good birds. I specially took note of a buff hen which stood well, and had excellent shoulders and fine, long neck, supporting a good snake head. She was a fine large bird, and one which will be heard of again without doubt. Then I noticed a yellow pied cock, which had a good angle drive, fine shoulders, and fine thickness throughout. Mr. Pringle also had a yellow hen, which was a nice one, with large size, very young; it promises to be a winner; and another that will be sure to please every fancier's eye. I might say I did not see a duffer in the whole lot, and this is saying much. Now for the Norwich. He has some good Plainheads, specially a nice yellow hen, which for size will take some beating; it is very young, and promises to be a winner. Then he has a Buff cock (an old bird) showing all that is desired in a winner. My next call was on Mr. Maxwell (Laurieston), who lives about two miles from Falkirk. Although not in when I called, I had not much trouble in finding him, and I really enjoyed looking over his splendid collection of Scotch Fancies; it did my heart good to see so many rare birds. Mr. Maxwell was in good spirits, as well he might be, with nearly 50 young birds, and with a few hens still sitting. A nicer lot of young birds one could not desire to see. They were remarkably regular in good points, such as shoulders and drive, and all had well set-up legs. The first I noticed was a yellow-green hen, of really excellent merit. She had extra depth through, and fine side, besides teeming with action. Another, a Buff green hen, was a very neat bird, equal to yellow-green hen in almost every point, a real topper. There can be no doubt these will be heard of again. A buff pied hen also attracted my especial attention. It had nice size, a fine head and neck, and a splendid round back. A yellow-green cock, too, of medium size, and having a good neck and fine ankle drive and good shoulders, also struck me as being a particularly fine bird. Mr. Maxwell has some splendid pied and clear birds, which, although young, promise well. His whole stock bears evidence of having been built up on a good strain, and if these young birds fulfil their early promise they will distinguish themselves. It was quite evident that it was a real pleasure to Mr. Maxwell to be able to show his stock and let them speak for themselves. With commendable wisdom he refrained from passing any remarks, knowing well that his stock needed none.

BRISTOL FANCIERS' ASSOCIATION FORTHCOMING SHOW.

SIR,—It has come to my knowledge that the suggestion is made that the Bristol Fanciers' Association, having lost £24 last year and £36 the year before, will not be in a position to pay prize money if this year's show should result in a loss. This is altogether wrong. Last year the members returned enough of their prize money to make up a cash reserve of over £20; further, they joined in a guarantee amounting to more than another £30. In addition to this all the necessary cash to cover the 4th and 5th prizes (specially subscribed), also the cost of the 14 tankards, and other specials, is already in hand. Of course, we cannot battle with disaster for ever, but for seventeen years we have paid full prize money in spite of losses, and we can and will do so again this year. We appeal to exhibitors to show their appreciation by a bumping entry this time. I feel our position ought to be made clear to those who have any doubt, and shall be glad if you can find space for this.

HOW BIRDS MAY "EAT, SLEEP AND BE MERRY."

SIR,—In reply to Mr. G. Hardy's letter on how birds may "Eat, sleep, and be merry," permit me to say I quite agree with him in the first place that birds should be kept free from all draughts as this is the cause of colds, asthma, etc. In the second place, I agree with him anent the over-feeding, and especially the over-crowding of the stock. I always feed my birds on good, sound, Spanish Canary seed, but if I want a change of diet for them, I find it a good plan to give, say, once a week, when moulting, a little mixed seed. I can recommend Hyde's Canary mixture and egg flake combined, for I fed a Goldfinch Mule for 13 years on this mixture. The next thing is in regard to water-vessels. I believe in plenty of fresh water for birds, and in keeping the vessels perfectly clean. I like Parr's earthenware hat-shaped drinker, which in practice I find is even better than glass; and if you devote a little time in keeping your cages clean you are hardly ever bothered with red-mite. My last point is: give your birds a regular supply of greenfood and grit. I can thoroughly recommend to the amateur fancier CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL; it should be in every fancier's hands for there are many pieces of good instruction to be gathered from its pages.

DERBY.

Derby C.B.C. 51st show took place on Oct. 24 and 26. The St. James's Hall provided capital accommodation for the exhibits. It is lofty and with fine floor space, good light (electricity by night), well ventilated and nicely warmed. The entry totalled over 370, and although falling a shade short of the "Jubilee" entry last year, this deficiency was made up for in quality. The staging of the exhibits had been well thought out, and every bird could be seen at a glance. Between each tier of cages plenty of room was available for visitors to scrutinize the birds with comfort. For this neat arrangement Mr. R. Thesker is responsible. The President is Councillor Jos. Hill, a most worthy and enthusiastic supporter. Chairman of committee is a well-known and hard-working fancier in the person of Mr. J. H. Drakeley, who also acts as treasurer, while the vice-chair is held by Mr. F. Price, another most useful helper. The committee consists of a very willing band of workers, viz.: Messrs. Doleman, Eley, Harrison, Sharman, Holmes, Evans, Hall, Wharman, Colledge, and J. Watts, who carried out their duties well. Mr. W. Stevens acts as secretary, and is "a right man in the right place" without doubt. He is most courteous and obliging, and always busy. Derby are lucky to be possessed of such a good secretary.

The Norwich were a right down good and choice collection, type and quality being in strong evidence. Next came the Crests and Crest-breds, which contained many specimens far above the average run. The birds of "grace and beauty" were a very nice lot, while the Novice Classes provided a few grand birds. The Selling classes provided some bargains, many of which we noticed had been claimed. The members staged some good stuff, and competition ruled exceedingly keen. The Silver Challenge Cup (Members') was captured by Mr. G. Colledge, who staged a fine team of birds. He also took the gold medal offered for the best young grizzle crest, and having won it on three occasions, the same now becomes his own property. Other special winners were: Messrs. W. Vardy, E. Fox, W. Whetstone, King, Brown, Hodgson, Sunderland, Smith, Andrews, Campbell, Dixon, Mellor, J. Bexson, Fullbrook, Lander, Ward, Chick, Henshaw, Hakes, Harrison, and J. R. Hadley. The stewards were Messrs. Drakeley, Hodgkinson, and Bousfield, a fine trio. The judges were Messrs. J. Bexson, J. Robson, and J. H. Roe.

We were informed of two items, one of a most pleasing description, and the other of a directly opposite character. The first referred to the gate takings, which proved to be capital. The cash taken on the Saturday alone almost equalled the whole of the takings for the two days last year, so with anything like a "gate" on Monday, things should come out on the right side. The second item was an intimation of the death of that well-known and highly esteemed fancier (secretary for so many years to Derby Society), Mr. W. H. Bamsey. The severe trial due to his long-standing ill-health, terminated on Sunday evening. Friend Bamsey, as everyone liked to call him, will be greatly missed at future Derby exhibitions, and everyone will tender sincere sympathy to his relatives.

A Huge Success Scored at Newcastle-on-Tyne.

The Birds, the Quality, and the Visitors, all There.

Held October 23rd and 24th. Never, we think, in the history of the hobby has such phenomenal success been achieved in so short a time as in this case of the Newcastle Cage Bird Society. Within three years of its birth as a society it has created records with two of its three successive shows. Last year saw over 1,500 entries—nearly double the first year. This year's grand total is over 1,000 entries, and this in the face of the recent extraordinary stagnation of trade. It must be said that the principles of this society make for success. One and all sink personal selfishness, and work for the good of the society and the hobby as a whole. In Mr. Currah they have a most able and efficient chairman and show manager. The committee work like machinery—like one man. The joint secretaries and treasurers, Messrs. Curry and Hutchinson, are an ideal pair, who leave nothing to chance. Each of them gets down to his duties, and you see that they are not idlers. Indeed, they have no room for "idlers" in this society. The three-tier staging is here fixed to perfection, and large printed cards, pointing out each section, are hung so that everyone can see at a glance where to find the different varieties. The Cambridge Drill Hall, Northumberland-road, is a spacious and excellently lighted hall, both day and night, and every bird can be viewed perfectly when in its place. Everything was in apple-pie order, and the harmony which prevailed made everyone's duties pleasant. The birds received every care and attention, and stewards and watchmen were in continuous attendance day and night. The prizes and special prizes offered were most valuable. The show may fairly claim to rank second to none in every feature. The exhibits throughout were excellent, and all sections can claim to have contained some of the tip-top birds of the kingdom. The management of the show was super-excellent; more obliging officials you could not get. The stewards were composed of genuine bird-lovers, and each was to be found carefully superintending his section. The show was splendidly patronised by visitors, and we have no doubt it will turn out a thorough success financially.

Norwich Plainheads opened the programme. There were on view some grand specimens, the classes throughout being splendidly filled, while the quality was of a very high order. The special for best in the section was secured by an unflighted buff, shown by Messrs. Dobinson, a gem in every respect. Cinnamons followed, and here the master hand of Mr. Godley was felt, as he secured all the lots, and also special for best, with his well-known team. Crests and Crest-breds followed, and the competition, as is always the case on the Tyne, was exceedingly strong, all the leading breeders being represented with good exhibits. The bowl winner for best young bird was found in the Crest shown by Messrs. Dobson and Son, a grand youngster in splendid trim, and a very popular win. These gentlemen have now secured this coveted special twice; may they again have the pleasure. Yorkshires were a splendid lot, both for quality and quantity, some toppers being on view—we should say the best show of this variety ever seen in Newcastle. Scotch Fancies, taken all round, were good class exhibits, the special for best in section being secured by Mr. Dobson's yellow cock, a bird of fine size and quality. Borders followed, and were forward in great force, many champions having to "sit back." All the noted breeders were represented. The well-known firm of Duncan and Logan made their debut, and secured three 1sts, and also medal and special for best in section.

The Hybrid section made the best show of these most interesting birds ever brought together in this district. The standard of excellence ran very high right through, the most successful class being a new one provided for "any variety Mule or Hybrid, variegated, to be more than half dark." Twenty-two entries tell how well fanciers appreciated this innovation. The British bird section was remarkable for the high standard of the exhibits, and the very keenest competition prevailed. It would not be fair to here single out any particular birds, except the winners of the section specials. A magnificent Canary-Bullfinch won the special for best in the Hybrid section; a grand Bramblefinch for best Hardbill British; an exquisite Waxwing for best Softbill British; a wonderful old Indian Rock Mynah for best Foreign, and special over the British and Foreign sections.

The members' classes, both Canaries, Hybrids, British, and Foreign were something to remember, both for quantity and excellence of quality. The special for best was secured by Mr. A. Brown's Indian Hill Mynah, staged in fine order. However, we heard one or two interesting comments on this award, for some thought it did not encourage breeders of Canaries or Mules to try and produce good ones when Foreigners were given the preference for special for best in the whole section. The special for best novice members' bird was found in Mr. McKay's Buff Norwich, which was beautifully put down, and is a good all-round exhibit.

Nothing succeeds like success, and we sincerely hope the goodfellowship existing amongst the members will long continue, when even greater results must follow. A first-rate dinner was served which was done ample justice to. The chairman, in well-chosen words, eulogised the members for their unanimity of purpose in working together for the benefit of the society as a whole, and for their untiring efforts to secure the confidence of the outside Fancy generally. The toast of the judges was heartily proposed, and many flattering things said of them. These bashful youths, amidst blushes and tremblings, thanked the members for their kind remarks, but felt that they were perhaps hardly deserved. After a very hearty vote of thanks to the chairman and officials these pleasantries closed, and all went back to finish their respective duties amongst the birds.

The judges were Messrs. W. Vardy (Norwich), J. Robson (Crests, Crest-breds, and Yorkshires); T. McCreadie (Scotch and Borders), and C. Houlton (Hybrid, British and Foreign), and their awards, on the whole, were very well received indeed.

ACCRINGTON.

Accrington and Dis. C.B.S. held their annual open show on October 23rd and 24th, in the Assembly Rooms, Central Conservative Club, which is an ideal room for the purpose. Entries came up well totalling about 480. Norwich occupied the foremost position, being the Club Show of the N.P.C., and competition was very keen throughout the whole section, birds ablaze with colour, well up in size, magnificent shape and teeming with quality being the order of the day. Mr. Trengove won the gold medal for best bird in champion classes with his clear Buff, a bird which was a general favourite. He also won special for most points in the Norwich section. Mr. W. P. Hills won the gold medal for best bird in amateur section, with his clear Buff, the Toronto medal for best bird opposite colour to the amateur gold medal winner being won by Mr. E. Sutton. The other specials given by the N.P.C. were won by Messrs Trengove, Seed, Midgley, Raynes and Dent in the champion classes, and by Messrs. Sutton, Oliver, Leeming Brothers, and Smith in the amateur classes. Yorkshire classes both champion and [illegible] many noted exhibitors staging rare teams, the principal winners being [illegible] Sutcliffe and Son, Broughton, Fowler and Langley. Mr W Broughton won special for most points in this section. Messrs. Godley, Dormer, Riding, Beck and Walsh put down some exceptionally good birds in the Cinnamon classes. The A.O.V. class was won by Mr. H. Riding with a clinking good Cinnamon. British and the Foreign classes contained some really charming and rare feathered exhibits, many noted winners being amongst them, including Mr. Walsh's Goldfinch, Mr. S. W. Birchley's Bullfinch, Mr. W. H. Pickles' Linnet, Mr. J. Walsh's Hawfinch and Wagtail, and Mr. A. Burrows' Tonracco. The secretary, Mr. J. W. Philpott, deserves every praise for the very capable and obliging manner in which he carried out his numerous duties. Accrington Society ought to be proud of their secretary, and he was well supported by a hard working committee, consisting of Messrs. Dormer, Wade Trengove, Taylor, Haydock, Walsh, Fergusson, Rooney, Croston, Godley, Almond, Riding, Haworth, Nuttall, R. Seed, T. Seed and others. Messrs A. G. Davis and H. W. Potter judged the cards and their awards appeared to give every satisfaction.

WIBSEY AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Members' show held on October 10th at headquarters, the Horse and Groom Inn Mr. Ogden officiated as judge, and his awards gave general satisfaction. Seventy-seven birds were staged in nine classes, and the winners of most points were Messrs. C. Hardaker, 25; G. Hudson, 18; Chapman and Bateman, 16; Crowther, Taylor Bros., and C. Bastow, 15.

Nest of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. It kills all insects, harmless to everything else.

BRISTOL.

The second annual show of the Bristol C.B.S. was held on Oct. 22 and 23. The venue was the Vestry Hall, a grand place for a bird show, being well lighted, free from all draughts, and affording plenty of room; unfortunately it is somewhat out of the way, and we are afraid the "gate" will be but a moderate one at the most. It is a great pity the society are so unfortunate in not being able to procure a good room in a more central position; then we feel sure their "gate money" would be considerably augmented. The entries this year fell about 150 short of last year's total, some of the classes in the open Canary section being numerically poor in the extreme, though the quality, it must be said, was capital. With four classes for Crests and crest-breds, the total in these classes only amounted to twelve, three of them having but two in each. Scotch Fancies and Borders were cancelled. There were some capital birds staged amongst the Nor. and Yorks, the winning buff hen in the latter variety being a gem of the first water, which found a host of admirers, and deservedly captured the special for best Yorks. in show, a capital achievement for a hen. The Members' Classes were well filled, and the quality was on a par with the numbers, the classes containing many birds that should have been fighting in the open classes, where they would have done well. Mr. C. E. Brown won the Members' Norwich Cup, and Mr. Kegan that for Yorkshires. Sandiford's special for hottest fed was won by Messrs. Tristem and Taylor, with a bird excelling in colour, the winner in the marked yellow Norwich Plainhead class. Mr. W. H. Manley, was the hon. sec., and right well did he perform his duties; he had everything working with the smoothness and regularity of clockwork, and was as cool and collected as any veteran at the work. The committee, of whom that genial fancier, Mr. J. Munro is the chairman, all worked with a will, and did everything in their power for the comfort of the exhibits, and it is a great pity their efforts were not rewarded with a larger entry. Mr. T. Heath judged the Canaries, and Mr. H. Norman the Mules, Hyhrids, British, and Foreign.

The British and Hybrid sections were good, and although some of the exhibitors complained of the season being backward, many exceptionally good birds were staged. The members' classes were strong, and the birds here were quite as good in quality as those in the open classes; in fact, when competing for specials, birds in the money taken from the open were beaten by some of those in the members'. A lovely little Golden-crested Wren, exhibited by Messrs. Barry Bros., secured the British bird cup, besides six other specials. This firm also annexed the special for best Brambling with a very fine bird. Special for best large British went to Mr. W. Bull, and the novice Linnet to Mr. J. Smethwaite. Our representative was at the show on the second day as well, and noted that all the British and Foreign birds were well and skilfully attended to.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE.

This show was held on Oct. 22, in the Victoria Hall. The exhibits were nicely staged at one end of the room, and were out of the reach of draughts, but unfortunately the light was not of the best, and consequently the birds could not be seen to the best advantage. Owing to clashing with Bristol the entries were not quite up to the level of last year, but we thought that in several of the classes the quality was better. The Mule or Hybrid class was a real good one, several birds out of the money being fit to win at many shows. Mr. James won special for best Norwich with his Blackwood special winner, a grand ticked buff. In the Yorkshires the special fell to Mr. Challenger, with a smart clear yellow. Messrs. Greenwood and Burson easily captured the Crest or C.B. special with a grand crest, excelling in frontal properties. The special for best British was annexed hy Mr. S. Jones, with his winning Bullfinch, a grand exhibit, put down in rattling form. Mr. G. W. Read again held the secretarial reins of office, and we need hardly say carried out his duties with the utmost tact and courtesy, and he was well assisted in the work of attending to the exhibits by several keen and willing helpers. Mr. J. H. Payne made the awards.

NOR. CL. POTTERIES AND DISTRICT C.B.A.

The Potteries and Dist. C.B.A. held their seventh annual show on October 22nd. The large Assembly Room attached to the Red Lion Hotel provided cover for the exhibits; it is of excellent light, nice size, well ventilated, and absolutely free from draughts. Entries turned up pleasingly, and outnumbered by far the total obtained last year. The president is Mr. J. Edwards, and the vice presidents are Messrs. Rathbone, Hall, Pitchford, Goodall, and Roberts, all good supporters of the society. The treasurer is Mr. W. Yates, a most reliable man to take care of the "shekels." The committee are composed of well-known and practical fanciers, who know the proper workings of a show, and they are to be complimented on their efficient management. Mr. F. Bates gave capital help, and proved himself a most competent steward. Mr. J. Simcock, the worthy secretary, is a rare good worker, nothing being too much for him to do; a better man for the post it would be difficult to find. The Norwich Plainheads made a delightful show, and were declared to be a rattling lot. Colour, quality, substance, and type were well in evidence. Yorkshires, lengthy and stately, provided several lovely and characteristic specimens. Mules contained a few grand and rare "mixtures," a buff Goldie-Canary, almost clear, and owned by Messrs. Tams and Son, leading, closely followed by Mr. C. J. Ward's well-known Redpoll-Bullie and Linnet Bullie. British were a nice lot. Messrs. Tams and Sons had on view a magnificent Goldie with a grandly-cut blaze of wonderful colour, and a beautifully-shaped Linnet. The Yellowhammer staged by Mr. J. W. Johnson, found many admirers. The members' classes provided some wonderful birds, and one could have selected not a few quite capable of holding their own in the upper circles. The staging of exhibits was executed in fine style, and the exhibits could be easily seen. Prize slips were displayed promptly as each class was adjudicated upon. Judging was over in good time, and everything went off smoothly and well. Capital light assisted Mr. J. C. Barnes (Sheffield), who had the placing of the cards, and his selections gave entire satisfaction. Specials: Hydes', Mr. J. Rathbone; Sandiford's, Mr. H. Hathaway; best in Mules or British, Messrs. Tams and Son; in A.O.V. (members'), Mr. J. Pitchford; in members' (shown in open), Mr. W. Yates, and second best Mr. J. Rathbone; in Yorks. (members'), Mr. G. E. Goodall; and in British, Mr. J. Pitchford.

ILFORD.

There was a poor turn out of cage birds at the annual Fancy Stock Show of the Ilford Fur and Feather Society, which was held in the Britannia Institute, on October 17th. At one time the cage bird section was the strongest, to-day it was almost the weakest. Messrs. Morris Bros, staged a nice team, and won both the special for best Canary, and that for best British. The arrangements for the show were most ably carried out by the committee, and Messrs. A. Webb and W. H. Drew made a capable and obliging pair of secretaries, Mr. C. A. House judged.

CAN. (5): 1. spl, hc, Morris Bros, very nice and stylish Buff Yorkshire; 2, 3, Overy, grand little Buff Borders; nice style and good feather; vhc, Thurlow. BRIT. SMALL (4): 1, 2, 3, Morris Bros., very nice coloured, well marked Linnet, a capital Bullfinch hen, and a cock Bullie; vhc, Smith. LARGE (5): 1, 2, vhc, spl. Morris Bros, very handsome Bearded Reedling and a grandly marked Hawfinch; 3, Howe, well marked, shapely, good coloured Thrush.

KELSO.

Annual show, October 21st—a great success. Entries in all sections were well up to those of former years; some grand exhibits were on view. The Norwich opened the programme and here were found some gems, the judge having a very difficult task to separate the winner. All the classes were of great merit. Mr. Cameron had a magnificent team on view, and a fair share of the spoils. Borders followed, and here the noted breeders again did battle. Some real toppers were staged. British on the whole were good. The management of the show was under the capable jurisdiction of Mr Tulloch C. Bennet, who knows how to carry out a show to perfection. His assistant was a credit to the show—Mr. Dickson, a gentleman of capable business methods. The birds were judged by Mr. A. Hay, and his awards on the whole were well received. The special for best old Norwich was secured by Mr. Cameron's yellow hen; that for young bird by Mr. A. Grey's unflighted hen. The B.F.C. medal was won by Mr. Bennet's yellow, the runner-up being Mr. Smart's uneven yellow. The special for best Hardbill was found in Mr. Simpson's well-known Hawfinch, while Mr. Bruce secured the special for best Softbill with his Thrush, the same gentleman securing the foreign bird special with his Gouldian Finch.

LEITH O.S.

The club show of Scotch Fancy Canaries (being their twenty-first), was held in the Kinnaird Hall, on October 17th. The secretary and treasurer is Mr. Jas. Sinclair, who had the arrangements well in hand. The judges were Messrs. Carson (Dalkeith), and Carlow (Falkirk), whose awards gave every satisfaction. The entries were considerably down in number as compared with last year, but what was lacking here was made up for in quality, a lot of real good birds being staged. The winner of the challenge cup for best bird in show was Mr. Jas. Sinclair with his Buff Pied cock. This bird is yet in nest feather, being only twelve weeks old; when finished, it will do some more winning. The second best bird, a Buff ben, belongs to Mr. Petrie—a bit of hard luck for him, as he was runner-up last year as well. However Mr. Petrie must have some sense of satisfaction, as we understand that the winner was bred direct from his stock. There was a fine display of specials, 44 in all, which were presented by Bailie Pennell.

ROCHDALE.

A Record-breaking Event.

Record was broken at the show of the Rochdale Ornithological Club on October 23rd and 24th, when the entry totalled 760, and the quality (excepting only in the Lancashire section) was as good as the entry. Departing from custom, the executive on this occasion appointed two Lancashire specialists to adjudicate upon the Lancashires and Lizards, and it was expected that the entry would have been a big one, but the breeders of the County Palatine failed to avail themselves of the opportunity of having a good run at Rochdale and missing the champion string of Mr. Barrass, naturally the absence of this team reduced the quantity of the exhibits in the section, but it was thought breeders would rise to the occasion and give the fixture a record in the "ganis" of the fancy. Some capital birds were on view, however, and very interesting indeed were the two young classes, and comparison between the birds in those classes and the adults would convince anyone that in Lancashires it is "age that tells the tale." In the Lizards the hens made the best classes go far as numbers were concerned, but the quality right through the section was splendid. A most noticeable achievement was that of Mr. W. P. Barnes, who sent a team of seven and secured a trio of first prizes, besides other awards. This achievement was enough to make the local enthusiasts scratch their heads and say, "Does Lancashire stand where she did?" Yorkshires were an eye-opener indeed, and broke the record for this event, totalling nearly 250, and averaging over 24 per class. The quality was also magnificent, especially in the hen classes, each of which mustered 97 and contained a large number of grand birds. The Greens were wonderful, the yellows particularly—33, and all good. They were greens and Yorkshires, too. In taking a survey of this section, one thing struck us. Many most excellent birds were a shade pale on the thigh. Light vents and thighs are bad faults, and faults which the old breeders of greens held in abhorrence. A better lot of buffs we have never seen, very few of them showing that dingy, smoky appearance which characterised the buffs of a few seasons since. The section must have afforded intense satisfaction to the officials of the Green Canary Club. Norwich and Crests were two very nice sections, while the Norwich Greens, like their Yorkshire brethren, were a magnificent collection, and we do not if ever a finer lot has been seen at any show. Mules made a couple of interesting classes, and the British attracted much attention, as did the foreigners, which, though few, were of excellent quality. The stuffed specimens are always a centre of attraction at Rochdale, and year by year Mr. Willie Lord brings out something new. On this occasion it was a beautiful river scene with two Kingfishers busily engaged in catching fish. As usual at Rochdale, the management was all that could be desired, the veterans who have oft pulled the fixture through (with President John Naden at their head) being ably assisted by a large number of younger hands, who by the interest they displayed are evidently "training on." There is little fear for the future of the Rochdale O.C. Mr. J. Butterworth made a courteous and energetic secretary, and got through his labours in the most creditable manner. The opening ceremony was on this occasion performed by Mr. Councillor Wilson Dunning, the Mayor-elect, who, in a most admirable speech, complimented the club upon its record show, and the members upon their devotion to such an elevating and refining hobby. Mr. Councillor J. H. Howarth occupied the chair. The Judges were Messrs. R. Barrass, L. Butterworth, and C. A. House, and their decisions seemed to meet with general satisfaction.

BELGRAVE AND DISTRICT F.S.

At the meeting held on Oct. 13 at the New Inn, Loughborough Road, a Table Show of Canaries was held. Mr. McCarter judged. The result was as follows:—1, Hurst; 2 and 3, Costello. During the evening we had a visit from Mr. W. B. Cobb, Secretary of a Fanciers' Society in Leeds, who gave a few remarks, he being in the town. We greatly appreciate these visits, and would be glad if other fanciers would give us a look up.—W. H. RILEY, Secretary.

CITY OF NORWICH C.B.S.

This show, held at the Cricketers' Arms, Orford Place, on October 12th, eclipsed anything attempted by the society previously. It was the twelfth annual venture, and close on one hundred more cages were benched than the number last year. Mr. W. Curl, hon. secretary, has put in a lot of work to bring the society to the front, and from the latest exhibition his labours are evidently bearing good fruit. Mr. T. Daynes, jun., is the chairman, and there is a strong committee. The birds entered were a beautiful and useful lot, the Farnheads, the Buff cocks, and hens, and the yellow hens, being fit for any competition, whilst the pairs were an exceptional class. W. Hart took special for the best young Plainhead in the show, and also the cup for most points in show; T. Daynes, jun., for the hottest fed bird; Gilbert for the best yellow Crest, and E. Checkland for most points in novice section. The Crests and Crest-breds were as good as any that can be found at club shows. The special for best Crest fell to Mr. W. Curl, and that for best Crest-bred to Mr. J. Carlton.

QUEENSBURY.

A big success was scored by the Queensbury C.B.S. at its show held in the Baptist School, October 24th. The entry, both in total and average, was far in excess of any Yorkshire Union Show held this season, the aggregate being 460, and the average exactly 20 per class. The Clears were not large classes, neither was the quality of that high order one associates with the Bradford district, many of the birds showing an undesirable hardiness and openness of feather. The Ticks were much superior, and it would be difficult to find better examples of the Yorkshire family than those supplied by Messrs. Bailey and Swanger, and Jowett, the latter being especially fine, and, in the opinion of many, the best bird in the show; in shape, style, and feather it is indeed a model of what a Yorkshire should be. The Uneven Marks were a very taking lot. Competition in the hen classes was exceedingly keen indeed, and the task of selecting the winners by no means easy, many of the unnoticed birds being fit to win, and doubtless will win ere the season is far advanced. Cinnamon Marks were a wonderful collection of 90 in the four classes, whilst the quality, in the opinion of the local experts, was by far the best seen out this season. The veterans, Wilcock, Shackleton, and Sutcliffe, scored with some most beautiful representatives of this fascinating sub-variety, whilst the younger generation held their own by the aid of Messrs. Cooper, Frankland, Chittenden, Hartley, Ogden, Towers, Drake, Blakey, and Lingley. Amongst the Novice birds were many which could have held their own well in the Open section. Whilst such birds can be produced by the "young bloods" of the West Riding, there is no fear of the Yorkshire bird failing in type or quality. We noticed several of the old hands keenly scrutinising this section, and heard of one or two offers being made for some of the winners. We may say that this section was judged before the Open, and thus the Novices did not have their usual note of complaint that their birds were judged "when the judge had tired." The show was most excellently managed, the birds being staged at a nice height, and well attended to by the stewards. Hot-water pipes kept the room at an agreeable temperature, and it was well lighted and ventilated. The day was delightfully bright and fine, and this brought a big gathering of fanciers to the show, the Bradford and Halifax districts being especially well represented. Mr. Jagger made a most affable and courteous secretary, and he received the loyal and energetic co-operation of his committee, all of whom worked with an enthusiasm which betoken d the true fancier spirit. Queensbury is one of the youngest societies in the Yorkshire Union, but its executive are evidently determined not to be outdone by the older societies. They worked hard for, and attained, a richly deserved success. Mr. C. A. House judged, and we heard few complaints.

The Champion Classes.

YORKS. YELL. (11): 1, Shackleton, very slim, finely drawn throughout, nice quality of feather, very nervy and stylish; 2, Bailey and Swanger, rare shape and style, splendid length, nice sitting feather, a bit inclined to spread his tail; 3, Townsend, rare length, colour, and style, grandly drawn, but not so tight in feather; 4, Ogden Bros., the best feathered bird in the class, and full of style, but is just a shade too thick; vhc, Lelland, grand shape and length, nice feather; hc, Wellock; c, Wilson. BUFF (15): 1, Drake, very pale in colour, but feathered like a Java, stands well up, fine head and shoulders, grand wings and tail; 2, vhc, Briggs, very hot in colour, magnificent feather, plenty of style, but being somewhat short in leg does not show to advantage; 3, Townsend, nice racy, well-drawn bird, plenty of nerve, capital feather, opens tail a bit; 4, Halliday, very hot in colour, grand shape and style, nice silky feather, set tight in front; hc, Coates; c, Ross and Robertshaw. TKD. YELL. (13): 1, Bailey and Swanger, very handsome, thigh ticked, grand shape, full of nerve, lovely quality of feather, beautiful colour and style; 2, Wright and Son, very long slim, pale-coloured bird, handles well, plenty of nerve and style, grandly feathered; 3, Galling, grizzled shoulder, capital shape and colour, very stylish, but not tightened up in feather; 4, Shaw Bros., another beautifully made stylish bird, which also had not tightened up; vhc, Shackleton; hc, Blackburn and Mitchell; c, Ackroyd. BUFF (20): 1, Jowett, thigh ticked, a living picture, stands like a guardsman, with not a feather out of place, the essence of type and quality; 2, Coates, very long, slim head, ticked, hardly so compactly feathered but a grand quality bird of rare style; 3, Long, thigh ticked, pale in colour, but most excellent quality of feather, very nervy and stylish; 4, Wilson, neck ticked, very smart, neat and stylish, full of quality, nicely modelled; vhc, Ross and Robertshaw, very nice wing ticked, grand head and shoulders, splendid flights; hc, Walsh; c, Holliday. UNEVEN TKD. (17): 1, Ogden Bros., very long, slim, hot coloured eyes, neck, and wing marked yellow, grand style, and nerve, a taking bird; 2, Addy, similarly marked buff, beautiful feather; grand shape and style, handles well; 3, Shaw Bros., very slim, similarly marked, lovely quality of feather, plenty of style, but shorter; 4, Blackburn and Mitchell, eye, wing, and tail marked, very long and slim, with plenty of style; vhc, Haigh, long, raking, hot coloured variegated yellow; hc, Mason; c, Watmuff. HEN YELL. (14): 1, Haigh and Son, a little gem, beautiful carriage, very fine and silky in feather, nice colour, sleek and smart throughout; 2, Taylor, grand head, neck, wings and tail, beautiful quality, hardly so slim in waist; 3, Watmuff, very neat, showy hen, lovely head, shoulders, wings and tail, just a bit open in front; 4, Cook, bonny little hen, full of style and quality, hardly so clever with her wings; vhc, Wilcock, grand shaped, high quality bird, objected to being handled, and finished herself; hc, Casey; c, Morton. BUFF (12): 1, Wilson, looked almost as though she had been cut out of marble, regular little swell, full of style and quality; 2, Taylor and Haigh, grand top end, splendid wings, very tight and silky in feather, needs a bit more length of tail; 3, Halliday, beautiful colour and quality, very stylish and shapely, could do with a trifle more length; 4, Morton, grand bodied bird of most lovely feather, needs more length of leg to show her other points; vhc, Shackleton, very warm in colour, grand shape and style; hc, Wright and Son; c, Priestley. UNEVEN TKD. (20): 1, Jowett, eye and wing marked yellow, magnificent colour and feather, grand length, full of nerve and style; 2, Ogden Bros., eye, wing and neck marked buff, superb feather, splendid shape, and full of style; 3, Ramsden, eye, neck, and wing yellow, grand length and shape, full of style, hardly so tight in feather; 4, Broadley, another very smart, shapely, stylish, nice quality bird, with similar marking; vhc, Towers, rare quality three-pointed buff, splendid style; hc, Halliday; c, Cooper. CINN.-TKD. YELL. (23): 1, 2, Cooper, eye, neck, and wing marked, splendid shape, very racy and stylish, beautifully feathered; 2, equally smart in body and feather, but hardly so neat in wing; 3, Chittenden, splendid shape and length, full of nerve and style, grandly feathered, spoilt by his marked head and chest; vhc, spl, Frankland, cheek and wing marked, very neat and stylish, wonderful quality, takes special best fourth; vhc, excelled in shape and feather; hc, Jeffrey; c, Gibbons. BUFF (23): 1, hc, Wilcock, marked head, eyes, wings and neck, wonderful quality of feather, very smart and erect in carriage, grand, tapering body, and splendid tail; 2, Shackleton, marked head, eyes, and wings, very hot in colour, not so long in body or leg, capital feather and shape; 3, Hartley, marked head, eyes and wings, much paler in colour, capital shape, grand style, nice feather; 4, Fawcett, neck and wing marked, rare style and feather, bit larger; vhc, Drake and Son, eyes, chest, and wings, again one of the very good 'uns; hc, Thornton and Bower. HEN YELL. (22): 1, Towers, marked head, cheeks, wings and tail, very slim and shapely, beautiful quality of feather, full of nerve grand position; 2, Ogden Bros., head, wings and chest, very hot in colour, beautiful silky feather, very stylish and smart; 3 Wilcock, eyes, neck, and wings, looked to be the best hen in the class, but was not staged in the usual Chapel Street form; 4, Lingley, head, neck and wing marked, not so neat in head, grand shaped body, rare style and feather; vhc Clark, neck and wing marked, very slim, close feathered and stylish; hc, Swaine; c, Firth. BUFF (20): 1, 3, Sutcliffe and Son, eye and wing marked, a magnificent bird, full of colour and quality grandly shaped, and very nervy; 3, eye and wing marked, a gem for quality, but a trifle stouter; 2, Drake and Son, very faintly marked on eyes, neck, and wings, a gem for shape, style, feather, and position; 4, spl, Blakey, marked check, throat, wings and vent, wonderful style and quality, very nice shape, takes up best fourth; vhc, Bentley, very handsome three-pointed, rare feather and style; hc, Thornton and Bower; c, Cook. SELF. YELL. (20/-). (27): 1, Hartley; 2, Self; 3, Thornton; 4, Jeffreys; vhc, Lambert; hc, Bentley; c, Ingham. BUFF (15/-) (23): 1 Burdin; 2, Broadley; 3, Farrer; 4, Fowle; vhc, Smith; hc, Pratt Bros.; c, Swainc. HEN (12/6) (26): 1, Craven; 2, Farrer; 3, Kaye; 4, Fieldhouse; vhc, Fowle; hc, Kirkbright; c, Hartley.

The Novice Classes.

NOVICE YORKS. YELL. (28): 1, Beaumont, very long slim bird, most excellently drawn, grandly feathered, and of a nice bright even colour, very showy; 2, Denby, very sleek and tight in feather, grand style and position, not quite so slim; 3, Livesey, neat head, grand style and position, beautiful colour and feather, a trifle stouter; 4, Myers, splendidly drawn bird, rare shape and style, full of nerve, but not at all well shown, in form about the best yellow in the show; vhc, Gill, sweetly moulded bird; hc, Gibson; c Cawthra. BUFF (26): 1, Gill, takes special best in show, very pale in colour, but for shape, quality of feather, and position would take beating in any company; 2, 3, Wilson, very hot in colour, not so much length of leg, beautiful quality, full of nerve and shows well; 3, pale in colour, but lovely quality and style, not so neat in tail; 4, Walker, splendid shape and style, grandly feathered, needs just a bit more length; vhc, Burdin, nice shape and style; hc, Beaumont; c, Clegg. TKD. YELL. (22): 1, Laycock, thigh ticked bird of wonderful style and quality, stands like a soldier; 2, Varley, thigh ticked, not quite so long, but for shape, quality of feather and carriage one of the best; 3, Firth, very slim, racy neck, ticked, full of nerve, nice colour, not in the best of show form; 4, Ellis, thigh ticked, a trifle stouter, but a gem for feather and style; vhc, Chapman and Bateman, very slim, thigh ticked, nice nerve and position; hc, Lodge; c, Kayo. BUFF (16): 1, Firth, eye ticked, and a beauty, too, full of quality, grand head, wings and tail, smart and stylish, in rare form; 2, Clegg, cap and wing marked, not so long, but equally stylish and shapely grandly feathered; 3, Townley, thigh ticked, neat head, capital shoulders and wings, stands well, hardly so neat in tail; 4, Lodge, very hot coloured, neck and wing marked, not so long, but stylish, and good in feather; vhc, Denby, grizzled neck, nice shape and feather; hc, Hiles; c, Beaumont. HEN YELL. (33): 1, Livesey, most charming hen, grand shape and style, lovely feather and position; 2, Huddleston, shorter in body, neat head, wings and tail, feathered like wax, lovely position; 3, Burdekin, very long, shapely, good positioned hen, a bit uneven in colour; 4, White, very slim and fine, nice head, full of nerve, and holds herself well, rough wing ends; vhc, Beaumont, very smart and shapely and body; hc, Bennett; c, Bastow. BUFF (28): 1, Clegg, a magnificent hen, long, slim and finely drawn, not a feather out of place, and stands to attention like a guardsman; 2, Dunn, very warm coloured, close-feathered bird, grand shape and carriage, hardly so well finished; 3, Beaumont, long, stylish at waist, finely drawn, cap marked, beautiful quality and shape, bit open in front; 4, Whittaker, very hot in colour, grand style and shape, plenty of nerve, bit husky in feather; vhc, Mann, very smart clear, grand shape and length, good head, wings and tail; hc, Lodge; c Nichol. NOR. (12): 1, c, Hammond, fine, bold chubby, shapely buff, very nice feather and colour; 2, 3 Markwell, very hot ticked yellow, and a ticked buff of good shape, but not so tight in feather; 4, Greenwood, good bodied buff of nice quality, not so chubby in head; vhc hc, Ball. HEN (11): 1, Fortnam, very neat-bodied yellow, not much colour, but grand type and quality; 2, Greenwood, good-coloured buff of nice feather, but hardly so short; 3, Markwell, a small, but high quality buff of good colour; 4, Clarke, very nice stylish yellow of good feather, rather shy when handled; vhc, Fowle, good cap-marked bird; hc, Ball; c, Atkinson.

COVENTRY GODIVA C.B.S.

Table show held at headquarters, Chequers Hotel, Little Park-street. It was well patronised with entries, about 60 birds competing; all were of grand quality, especially the Buffs and Yellows on which the judge made some interesting remarks. Mr. J. Athersuch (Coventry) officiated as judge and gave every satisfaction. The show was opened by our president, Mr. J. Busby, supported by Mr. J. Blackshaw (chairman) and Mr. A. Wright (vice-chairman), and Mr. R. Symonds (assistant-secretary).

SUNBURY-ON-THAMES.

The first open and members' show was held on October 22nd, at the Preborin Hall, a commodious and well lighted building, suitable in every way for exhibitions of the kind. A committee of workers with the chairman, Mr. C. L. Abbot, at the head, had arranged everything in the most orderly manner, and it was hinted at the judges' dinner, we heard, that the exhibition will not show a financial loss. It will probably be found in the list of hardy annuals. Mr. J. S. Clarke judged and gave every satisfaction

OPEN NOR. (10): 1, 2, 3, and vhc, Hodder, nice level team, 1, clear yellow unflig, might have hopped out of one of Mr. H. Norman's plates, short, compact, good head, well filled in neck, perfect condour, silkest of feather; 2, Buff (should be a hen) modelled on same lines as winner, losing in size alone; 3, yellow, biggest bird in class, possessing family likeness, but not ready yet; vhc, yellow, good colour and quality; hc, c, Boydon, two possible stock birds. MEMBERS' NOR. (6): 1, 2, 3, vhc, hc, and c, Billington, 1, small yell. nice colour and quality; 2, 3, Buff hens, chubby little birds, a shade difference in size determining their positions. BRIT. (2): 1, 2, Martin, Bramblefinch and Goldfinch in the order named, both good ones. FOR. (11): 1, 3, hc, and c, Mrs. Croysdale; 2, vhc, Martin. All in this class would have appeared to much greater advantage in more suitable show cages.

MANNINGHAM C.B.A.

Members' second show held at headquarters, Mowbray Arms Hotel, on October 13th. Mr. R. Halliday (Shipley) judged. This date was chosen so as not to clash with a union show. Only 85 birds were entered in 12 classes, the general explanation being that the birds were not ready. Those that were staged, however, were of splendid quality, and in many classes it was a hard task to select the winners, especially in the hen classes. There was a good turn up of visitors, and several expressed their approval of the efforts the society has made. The winners of specials were Messrs. Ackroyd Bros., most points in show with 44; W. Suggitt, 37; E. Kemp and A. Huddleston, 27 each; Holroyd Bros., 26; A. Grange, 22; G. Wellock, 20; T. Smith, 16; E. Hersey, 14; and F. Grange, 13. For best bird in show, Mr. W. Suggitt, with his ticked yellow. The judge's awards gave satisfaction to all.

NORTH LONDON C.B.A.

The sixth annual show was held on October 16th and 17th in the Stoke Newington Library Hall, where the exhibits were comfortably staged. Owing to the bad beginning made in the breeding operations the total number of entries did not reach that of last year's show, but some grand birds were staged, the quality being the best seen at these fixtures. Unfortunately, and owing to a delay on the railway company's part, several exhibits from Southend arrived too late for competition; altogether no less than 24 birds came from this quarter. There was a splendid attendance of visitors, and the show should prove a financial success. Several new members, we heard, were added to the roll. The show managers, Messrs. G. Mortlock and H. Pike, a couple of sterling officials and excellent workers, were ably assisted by Messrs. S. A. Griffin, G. D. Harris, and others; in fact, all the officers and committee worked well under the admirable guidance of Mr. R. P. Harper, the hon. secretary, whose services are invaluable to the society, especially on such an occasion. Messrs. J. Robson and R. L. Crisp judged.

SOME HINTS ON MULE AND HYBRID BREEDING.

Lecture read before the Tonbridge and District F.A. on Oct, 5, by Mr. F. Wraight, the President.

Prefacing his remarks to the effect that he had no dogmatic rules to lay down but desired only to give the results of his 34 or 35 years' experience of this most fascinating and sporting hobby, the lecturer proceeded to speak about dark Mules.

These, it was pointed out, are by no means difficult to produce as compared with light Mules. The procedure is to obtain a fine big Finch, as distinct in markings and as close feathered as possible and pair it with a good Lancashire Coppy, or a big Norwich yellow hen. The points of these dark Mules are: first, size; second, blaze; third, wing markings, and fourth, body colouring and tightness of feather. The easiest dark Mules to obtain are those from the Siskin, Linnet, and Greenfinch.

When we begin to try and breed for light or slightly-marked Mules, and tho aim is then, of course, to produce clear birds, our difficulties commence. First of all it is imperative that we have the right strain of Canaries. If one has a hen that shows any tendency to throw pied or variegated Mules he has the foundation of the necessary strain and such a hen should be, in the early part of the season before Muling commences, paired off with father and brother or a near relative and the strain propagated by further sib-breeding. By doing this we should, in the view of the lecturer, obtain the most valuable adjunct possible for the subsequent production of that which so many strive for, viz., good light Mules.

Choose the Right Birds.

On the question of the male it was pointed out that much has been said about the selection of the Finch with the idea that, given a suitable mate, he would influence the colour of the young. Some advocated the use of the Cheveral, and some of the pea-throated Goldies for the production of light Mules; but everything really depended on the Canary. If you have hens that show no tendencies to produce dark Mules you can mate them with any males you like and, in the experience of the lecturer, dark Mules only will result.

Having built up your strain of Canaries with the proved tendency to throw light birds you are on the high road to success. At least, said the lecturer, this is my pet theory, and I give it for what it is worth. Run your Goldie, or whatever male you have, with a number of hens one at a time, taking him away as soon as the first egg is laid. By doing so it is possible he may lose stamina after a time, and then if a good, strong, full-blooded hen be mated up with him, it may be that the stronger will predominate over the weaker and he young will follow the Canary as a consequence. I do not believe in sight influence.

About Hybrids.

The breeding of these is even more interesting than that of Mules, but the results are far more uncertain. I find the easiest to produce are the Goldfinch-Greenfinch, and the Siskin-Greenfinch, but without doubt the handsomest is the Goldfinch-Bullfinch. The main thing is to get hold of good, big, steady hens; and the male should be as lively and bold as possible; for very often we find that the hen worries and chases the cock about the cage. But if he is of a lively disposition he soon resents this and they are not long in coming to an understanding.

A large cage is advisable—one 36 inches long by 24 deep and 20 high—with low perches, and having the bottom thickly strewn with soft material to prevent the breaking of dropped eggs, and also a Canary nest-pan with a screen of heather or other foliage. The eggs should be put under a Canary hen for incubation, as a hen British bird is rarely successful in rearing a brood in a cage. An interesting discussion followed, and a hearty vote of thanks terminated the meeting.—F. J. BINGHAM, hon. sec.

House's Canary Manual - - - - Post free 1/2

This is a thorough and practical guide to the general management and breeding of Canaries, written by a well-known expert and judge. It contains chapters dealing fully with the breeding, etc., of every member of the Canary family, and an illustration of each bird, by the master Canary artist, Mr. H. Norman, reproduced in the finest art style. There are also exhaustive chapters on aviaries and cages, breeding procedure, moulting, exhibiting, diseases, and seeds—a compendium of knowledge approached by no other book of its kind at the price.

CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

CLASSES FOR FIELD-MOULTED BRITISH BIRDS.

Can They be Illegal?

A correspondent from Eastbourne has written us concerning the class for "Field-moulted Goldfinches" which appears in the schedule of the recently held Eastbourne show. His contention is that exhibitors who show birds in this class are liable to prosecution under the Wild Birds' Protection Act (the district, presumably, being one in which Goldfinches are protected all the year round). We have submitted the point to our legal expert (a barrister-at-law) whose opinion is appended. To this we would add that it seems to us only exhibitors residing in the "protected area" (or in other "protected areas") could be open to prosecution, i.e., that anyone residing in a district where Goldfinches are not protected (beyond the usual close season), could exhibit with impunity.

To answer your questions in detail it would be necessary for you to send us a copy of the notice under which your district has become a protected area. Speaking generally, however, your contention is right, assuming that the facts are as you state them to be. Goldfinches are among the birds scheduled in the Wild Birds Protection Act of 1880, which imposes a penalty on any person taking or having in his control or possession any such birds between March 1st and August 1st. Under the statute of 1894, a county council can, through the Home Secretary, issue orders extending this prohibition to any period of the year or enlarging the list of birds. The question, therefore, is whether the County Council in your county has issued such an order. Presumably that authority has done so, since you say that "Goldfinches are protected in this district." If this be so, any person found with such birds in his possession or control renders himself liable to the penalties imposed by the Acts. If the birds were caught in an area where the county authority has not exercised its powers at a time outside the close season between March and August, it would not help the exhibitor, since the Act prohibits any person "having such birds in his possession or control."

(This reply we thought it as well to hold back until after the show had taken place.—EDITOR.)

IN THE COURTS.

A "MISSEL" THRUSH WHOSE VOICE WAS UNAPPRECIATED.

Arthur Cave, of Elm-grove, Hammersmith, was summoned on October 7th at the local court for "keeping a noisy animal, to wit, a Thrush." Mr. Moritz appeared to support the summons, and Mr. H. Pierron appeared for the defendant.

Mr. Moritz, in opening the case, observed that if this Thrush were an ordinary Song Thrush there would probably be no objection to it, but it was a Missel Thrush, and that bird had a very monotonous, loud, and irritating song, so much so that one of the complainants—a lady—had suffered a nervous breakdown through the annoyance. The bird was kept in a cage, which was hung in front of the defendant's house, and from the break of dawn until dusk it kept up its monotonous noise. In 1905 the defendant kept a bird, and, in consequence of complaints, he took steps to remove the nuisance, but in the early months of 1908 this Missel Thrush made such an intolerable noise that letters were written to the defendant, who promised to send it away. Whatever happened to the bird, he (counsel) could not say, but the nuisance recommenced in June. It appeared, continued counsel, that recently Sir Francis Cory Wright, the chairman of the Highgate Bench, made some remarks—no doubt in a jocular spirit—ridiculing the fact that a singing bird could be a nuisance; and thereupon the defendant sent Mr. Parsons, one of the complainants in the case, a letter enclosing the newspaper cutting of Sir Francis Cory Wright's remarks, and declaring that he was pleased to find that the law was on his side.—Since then the bird had been put back in its old place, and the nuisance continued.—Elm-grove was a narrow road, and the three complainants, Mr. Parsons, Mr. Robb, and Miss Copping lived on the side opposite the defendant's house. However ridiculous, concluded counsel, the complaint might seem to some people, it was a fact that these three persons had been seriously annoyed, and the action of the defendant in continuing the nuisance was ill-natured and unneighbourly.

Evidence was given by Mr. T. J. Parsons, of Elm-grove, who stated that the bird had a wailing note—very loud at times. It awoke him in the early morning, and prevented his getting any more sleep.—Mr. Pierron: Do you know that nearly every one in the road has signed a petition asking that the bird should remain?—I have heard so.—And you three are the only persons who have complained?—I don't know. All I know is that it is an annoyance to me.—Will you deny this is a singing Thrush?—I can't deny it; but I have never heard a Thrush sing like this one.—Is there any singing of wild birds that doesn't annoy you?—I don't say that. This bird would not annoy me if it was not in a cage.—In re-examination by Mr. Moritz, the witness said he had no bad feeling at all against Mr. Cave, and he would be quite content if Mr. Cave would merely take steps to stop the annoyance.

Mrs. Parsons, mother of the witness, gave similar evidence, and stated that she had been obliged to consult a doctor for a nervous breakdown due to the nuisance. She had been in the habit of sleeping with her window open always, but ever since she had been compelled to shut her window, in the hope of stifling the sound. She still heard the bird.

The case was adjourned.

Vindication of the Songster.

Mr. Lane, K.C., resumed the hearing of the summons against Mr. Cave, on October 14th. It was stated by three other residents in the road that the bird, a Missel Thrush, not an ordinary Song Thrush, was in the habit of "keeping up a monotonous noise" from daybreak to sunset.—Miss Coppin, of Elm Grove, stated that the bird made such a noise that she "felt she must yell with it." It started at four o'clock in the morning, and a lady who lived in her house—a sufferer from insomnia—complained that it kept her awake.

For the defence Arthur Reynolds, dairyman's manager, living next door to the defendant, said the bird's cage hung within 12ft. of his bedroom window, and he was not disturbed by it.—In answer to Mr. Moritz, the witness admitted that his sleep could not be disturbed by the bird because he always got up at four o'clock in the morning to go to his business.—Alfred Pottle, dealer in birds, of Goldhawk Road, stated that this bird was the ordinary Song Thrush, not the Missel Thrush. There was no difference between the song of the defendant's bird and that of an ordinary Song Thrush.—At this stage of the proceedings two birds, the defendant's and a Missel Thrush, were brought into court in cages, and were closely inspected by the magistrate.—Mr. J. G. Richardson, a solicitor's managing clerk, of Elm-grove, said it was ridiculous to suggest that this bird's song could be a nuisance any more than the twittering of Sparrows. Mr. Cave, he added, was a stranger to him, and he had come to give evidence quite voluntarily.

The magistrate observed that the witnesses for the prosecution all started by saying that this was no ordinary Song Thrush, whose delicious notes they would be only too pleased to hear, but a Missel Thrush, whose screams were so awful and terrible as to be quite unbearable. It now turned out that this was the real bird whose song these ladies and gentlemen longed to hear as much as possible. Under the circumstances the prosecution was at this stage quite unsupportable, and he dismissed the summons with five guineas costs.

DID THE PARROT SAY, "MAMA, SEND FOR THE DOCTOR"?

A dispute over a Parrot occupied the attention of the Liverpool Deputy Stipendiary on October 12th, says the "Daily Dispatch." A married woman, named Lily Maud Seddon Barnes, of Liverpool, advertised that she had for sale a good talking Parrot, which she claimed was worth £10. Entering into communication with her, a Huddersfield man named George Collinson agreed to send a bicycle and £1 in return for the bird. He performed his part of the contract, but received no Parrot, and on journeying to Liverpool was told that the Parrot and bicycle had both been sold during the week. Mrs. Barnes was arrested, and charged with stealing the bicycle, the offence being denied.

Collinson said that when he called at her house he certainly saw a Parrot, but not the one advertised, for it screamed and made a horrid din. Asked by the magistrate if the bird said "Mama, send for the doctor; I'm very bad," witness said that it did not; he only wished it had.—In defence, Mr. Madden agreed to give Collinson a good "talker" if the case was remanded. This course was adopted, prisoner being allowed out on bail.

UNDER THE WHITE ROSE.

QUEENSBURY Show, held Saturday last, October 24th, was a huge success, and our friends on the hill are to be congratulated on their achievement. Twenty-three classes attracted an entry of 463, and provided the judge, Mr. C. A. House, with a hard morning's work. This show opened the competitions provided by the C.M.Y.C.C., and their four classes contained exactly 90 birds, truly a grand "send-off" for what is hoped to be a very successful year. The novice classes in the Yorkshire section again made a good show. 153 birds being on view in the six classes, with some real toppers amongst them. No less than six of them were claimed at the limit price of £5 5s., and I heard that still another changed hands after the show for a good figure. For one of the open class winners £7 was offered and refused. This show will no doubt put the Queensbury Society on a good financial footing, and keep at boiling point the enthusiasm for which the members are noted.

EAST Bowling Society held a members' show on Saturday last, and it proved a fine affair, only three birds short of the century being put down, which for a society of between thirty and forty members is to be considered very satisfactory. Mr. S. Dean (Great Horton) had the honour of placing the tickets. Bradford City, Wakefield, and Halifax were also holding members' shows, and some grand all-round birds were to be seen at each place, many of which will ere long be competing at the open shows.

BRADFORD City O.S. hold their open fixture to-day, Saturday, and it is expected that the 34 classes provided will attract a good entry and a large influx of visitors. One thing in the schedule has pleased many fanciers, and that is, although they have not the C.M.Y.C.C. patronage, they have provided four classes for this variety.

BRADFORD East held a washing competition at their last meeting, at which four birds were put through the cleansing process by four different fanciers. Mr. J. Farrar adjudicated, his awards going to Messrs. Hill and Wilkinson for premier honours, in the order named. Mr. Hill, the Secretary, informs me that should any society holding a show wish to loan their high trestles for staging, they may do so for the nominal sum of 3s., the borrowers to pay cartage and for any damage that may happen to them. This last item is only intended as a safeguard, so that ordinary care shall be used; they are very strongly made, and will stand ordinary use without fear of breakage.

*Chaffie Prefers a Home.

I have several birds, and amongst them a Chaffinch. One morning I fed it as usual, but did not fasten the door, and the bird flew away. We thought it had gone right away, as it had only been caged a few months; but later in the day my mother noticed a bird in the cage, and on getting it down, she recognised the Chaffinch.—Sent by C. Bolton (age 14), 76, Cornwall Road, Brixton, London, S.W.

*Tending a Wounded Bullfinch.

My father has a Bullfinch which was shot in the wing in a garden. The shot tore a piece of his wing out on the butt or shoulder. My father placed it in a cage after washing the wound, and gave it some dock seed, which it seemed very fond of, and also some apple pips and Canary seed. It recovered, although it is a bit crippled in the wing now. It was a gardener that shot it, saying it was damaging the fruit buds. But I think it is a shame to shoot such beautiful birds.—Sent by Charlie Loosemore (age 9), 42, Mill Street, Great Torrington.

*A Hand-fed Thrush.

We have a Thrush which came to us when it was a nestling, and we had to hand-feed it. It was only two weeks old, and could not stand up. It is quite tame and we open the cage door and he flies about the room. Very often he will fly on to our head and wait for a mealworm. If we have none for him he gets impatient and will pull our hair until he gets it; then he flies off with a contented chirp. Later on in the morning he is brought down into the kitchen, and contents himself by catching flies. We have a cat in the kitchen which will not touch him, and Thrushy is not frightened, but sits and tries to sing or to upset the bowl his food is in. We also let him have a bath of cold water outside his cage. He takes a long time over it, and comes out looking like a scarecrow.—Sent by Gwen Bond (age 14), 25, Bank Road, Bootle, near Liverpool.

The Hawfinch as a Cage Pet.

By J. W. CUTMORE.

Some Interesting and Practical Information concerning our Largest British Finch.

The Hawfinch is my favourite Finch, and this in spite of the unkind things said of him by the early writers on cage birds. Their conclusion is that it is not likely that a person could desire him as a cage pet.

The King of Finches.

The Hawfinch in its wild state is certainly a very shy bird, sheltering itself among the branches of the highest trees. His plumage being so well adapted for self-protection, he can only be recognised by his shrill little call note, but in captivity he becomes quite docile and interesting. I never feel satisfied without one of these King-of-Finches in my collection. I have kept a goodly number during these past few years.

It is over twenty-five years since I procured my first bird of this species. Some people fail to see any beauty in the bird. I admit that one has to keep it some time, and take a real interest in it to fully appreciate its qualities. Its form and figure may not charm you by their balance of parts, although its noble head, bold eye, and formidable beak, cannot fail to claim your attention.

But it is when one comes to closely examine its colouration and distinctive markings that he cannot fail to be attracted by its beautiful but not gaudy dress. Its broad back is of a soft chocolate brown, the breast is of a pale vinous brown, the head cinnamon brown, the sides and back of neck bluish grey, the lower back or rump cinnamon brown, and the wings black, glossed with steel blue with a whitish bar. The throat (bib) is deep black in colour, and the tail is dark brown, tipped with white. The colouring varies in individuals; some are lighter in shade all through, while others are deep and rich in colour. The lighter birds are generally larger than the darker ones, something after the manner of buffs and yellows in Canaries.

But all this does not exhaust the peculiar beauty which the artistic and the fancier-like minds may find in the bird. Those unique finished tips to the secondary flight feathers, rich steel blue in colour, are not found on any other bird in any part of the world. This marks the Hawfinch off as a distinct family, which consists of three varieties only of the same species, i.e., the European, the Japanese, and the Indian, each of them showing only a slight variation in size and colouration, caused by climatic conditions. It requires a qualified ornithologist to identify them when the three varieties (or so-called species) are placed together.

Distinguishing the Sexes.

The hen Hawfinch is not so rich in colour as her lord, but this is not the only difference in the plumage of the sexes, although this is the only distinction mentioned in several books on birds. There is one other difference which is absolutely reliable in determining the sexes of both adult and young birds, and that is, the little streak, or elongated patch, of grey on the closed wing behind the light bar, and length-wise; in the extended wing it is seen on the edge of each secondary flight feather, this part of the cock's wing being blue black. The hen Hawfinch does not make such an attractive pet as the cock, because unless hand-reared, she is always too timid. She lacks the bold trustfulness of the cock bird, which is one of his characteristics. He is not long in captivity before he recognises the difference between a stranger and the person who attends to his daily wants.

I have a young cock of this past season, which was not half through his first moult when I purchased him; he is now (at the time of writing) in full adult plumage, and so steady, that I can place my hand in his cage without disturbing him. He also takes meal worms freely from my fingers; these I give him as a daily tit-bit, although they are not absolutely necessary.

The Daily Fare.

His daily fare consists of sunflower and hemp seed, a few monkey nuts and walnuts; the latter I crack for him. In season I give him a bunch of haw berries daily from the hawthorn, gathering them on Sunday mornings or Saturday afternoons—a pleasure I would not care to give up, this weekly cycle run; collecting these and other varieties of foods for my birds adds an object to the run out into the country as well as a pleasure.

I have omitted to mention that I give my Hawfinches plenty of green peas when they are in season. This is the very best food to give them when they are first caught, which is generally in the "pea" season. Hawfinches, especially the young birds, are very fond of the gardener's peas—about the only crime the bird commits.

He is credited with taking cherries and cracking the stones to get out the kernal. I have had a good number of these birds, but I have not yet had one that would take cherries and crack the stones. I have always given them the opportunity of trying their skill in this direction, but they have one and all declined the offer. But green peas, haws, and nuts, they never refuse, and on sunflower seeds they would live entirely, and I believe healthfully. I always add the other things mentioned, because I am fond of a mixed diet myself, and am convinced that birds appreciate it also. I also place a small tin of mixed seeds (a sort of Finch mixture) in the cage; I find it is frequently taken advantage of.

At the Exhibitions.

As an exhibition bird the Hawfinch has come to stay. He has been well to the front of late years. Although I do not keep mine for exhibition purposes, I go through the show reports each week in CAGE BIRDS, and have noticed that the Hawfinch generally carries off the prizes in the A.O.S. Seedeaters, or A.O.S. Hardbill Sections.

I am not surprised at the success attained by the bird, because (in birdie language) he is a champion, and cannot fail to claim attention in a mixed class of British birds.

The only bird, in my opinion, of the Finch family that can be favourably compared with him, is the ever popular little Goldie. He is my next favourite, and certainly has advantages that recommend him. His colouration is perfection, and he has two other qualities that we do not find in his bigger relative, which certainly appeal to a great many people. I refer to his singing powers, and his hybridising qualities.

The first question I am generally asked by my friends when I show them a Hawfinch is, does he sing? Well, he does not I am sorry to say sing anything worth listening to.

Are Hawfinch Hybrids Impossible?

The Goldfinch will breed with almost any Finch, and especially with the Canary; but it is not so with the Hawfinch. He has not yet, to my knowledge, ever mated with a bird of another species, nor do I know of a case where a pair of Hawfinches has ever bred in captivity. I have run mine with hens of other species, but not one has ever given any indication of a desire to mate up. I am fully convinced that the hen Hawfinch is useless for this purpose; she is much too shy to breed even in an outdoor aviary.

But I am still hoping to get a cock Hawfinch to pair up with a big dark Canary or Bullfinch or Greenfinch hen, before many more seasons are over. It is the faculty of hope alone that keeps the Mule or Hybrid breeder interested in his hobby; without a good development of this "organ" (as the phrenologists term it), he could not possibly content himself with this section of the bird hobby for more than one season. A friend of mine once remarked that you can breed five pounds' worth of Canaries before you can five shillings' worth of Mules. I have since proved this statement to be true.

I have come to the conclusion that the nearer the birds are kept to their natural conditions, especially as regards food and space, the better chance one has of getting them to breed. I am thinking of trying a big Northern Bullfinch hen with the Hawfinch. I know there is less chance of getting her to breed in our climate, although for size she would compare more favourably with the Hawfinch.

Not Vicious but Nervous.

The Hawfinch is not such a vicious fellow as his appearance would suggest. The habit of snapping his big beak at his fellow prisoners is, I am sure, prompted more by fear than by spitefulness. He has nothing like the fighting spirit in him as is seen in the cock Sparrow, and even less than is seen in the average cock Finch.

I have not yet had one Hawfinch that did the slightest damage to another bird. Although I have kept them, both cocks and hens, in a cage with other birds and in a small aviary of representative species of the British Finch and Bunting families, not even the smallest (the Lesser Redpoll) suffered any inconvenience from the association.

Between the Acts.

That important interval between the moulting season and the full swing of the most important shows is a very anxious one for the novice. Excitement may get high and speculation run riot as to the career of this or that specimen. But it is also essentially a busy time, and underlying all one's hopes and anxieties, the Fancier who works systematically and with a determination to succeed will find a vein of necessary and useful, as well as most interesting, work to occupy his attention.

Moreover, it is not only one section of the Fancy that may be thus described. Quite the reverse is indeed far more correct, for, in truth, it may be said there is not one section of the Fancy to which the remark is not equally applicable. Of course, this busy season is, or should be, devoted chiefly to the work of preparing the birds for their appearance on the show bench.

Concerning Canaries.

Our yellow-coated friends naturally claim prior place in this connection, not only because they are invariably first in point of numbers, but also because they probably require a greater amount of careful training to make them perfect in typical pose and deportment on the show bench than either of the other branches.

Considering the domesticity of the Canary, this may sound strange to the tyro, but then this is often just where the novice goes wrong. He may breed a really high-class specimen by chance or design, and then fail to exhibit it successfully; whereas if the bird changes ownership, and is shown by a more experienced hand, it may get "in the money" every time out. Then the breeder probably thinks unholy thoughts about judges and deck-sweepers, collusion and sawdust, and all the rest of it. But the true explanation will lie in the simple fact that the breeder took no pains to train the bird and develop its points to their highest degree, whilst the successful exhibitor spared no effort to train the bird to show its points to the greatest advantage whenever it was being passed under review.

That the purely domesticated Canary should require more teaching than a wild-bred British or foreign bird is equally easy of explanation. In the latter species it might almost be said that pose is quite immaterial, such typical points as require the cultivation of a particular position to display them being disregarded in these species, whilst in our fancy breeds of Canaries such points are frequently of paramount importance. Hence the necessity for special training to develop them where they exist to the highest degree of perfection.

What to do and how to do it.

To go into all the details of what kind of training is required for each variety of Canary would occupy much valuable space here, and would be to little purpose. The most important point to the breeder is to have a good, clear understanding of points and position of the particular breed in which he is interested.

To get this at the most reliable source, he cannot do better than procure the standard of perfection (and an ideal or model in such cases where the latter is provided as an additional help to illustrate and make clear the descriptive standard) from the secretary of the specialist club for that variety, or, failing that, if one does not know the secretary's address, the universally useful CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL will come to one's aid, containing, as it does, not only the information required as to clubs and secretaries, but a very complete list of the standards themselves. Having procured the necessary standard and model, one should set to work to thoroughly master and understand clearly all the points required, and also such marks and blemishes as are named as disqualifying marks.

In some varieties it will be found that given marks are named as being undesirable, whilst not in themselves a disqualification. All these several descriptions should be well studied and committed to memory, and then compared point by point with the model illustration, and, finally, with the best of one's living birds.

Approaching the Ideal.

It will, however, require the training process to be fairly well advanced before even the very best of one's living birds will show any near approach to what the standard lays down as being the necessary points of perfection. But if one fails to find a single bird showing a very close approach to the model, there is no need to despair of being successful with it.

A model is essentially an artificial ideal set up as the acme of perfection for that variety, and as a kind of ultima thule for the breeder to strive after. A model is therefore necessarily drawn far superior to the general run of the actual living birds.

The Method of Training.

To take the Yorkshire for an example, one should get a proper Yorkshire pattern show cage, to begin with, or several of them if there are many birds to be dealt with. The usual cages which are used for exhibiting the birds in will do as well as anything, but in this case one must be careful to see they are properly overhauled and cleaned before being used for their proper purpose afterwards, as a dirty cage is not only a serious menace to the spotless plumage of a fresh-washed bird, but is also an eyesore, and detracts from the clean and trim appearance of the bird that is in it, and may therefore prove a great disadvantage to it.

The Yorkshire, as will be made clear by the standard of perfection, is a sort of high-class combination of colour, shape, and position; for whilst colour cannot in these days be ignored, shape is of vital importance, and pose, or position, is, one might almost say, more important than either.

Given a bird with the necessary length and slimness, and other minor properties to give it at least a sporting chance on the show bench, its training should be commenced by placing it in the show cage for a day or two, if necessary, in order to make it accustomed to getting about with ease and freedom, and to get steady when being examined in these narrow quarters. The cage should be kept during this interval in a place where the bird will often see people passing to and fro. The length of time it will take to steady the bird depends mainly upon the individual, and the amount of attention that is bestowed upon it.

Adult birds that have gone through the training process in previous seasons will probably only require a few hours in the show cage. Training, too, in their case will be more like a kind of brushing-up of their former lessons. But with the real raw material of this season's young, it may require from a whole day to a week before they are really steady enough to commence to train. Judgment must be used in dealing with them, and every case treated on its merits.

Another point which will seem difficult to the new beginner is that nearly all varieties in the raw, untrained condition appear to have so much in common as regards shape and general appearance that it seems as though all varieties were very much alike. This, of course, is wholly due to the eye being untrained by experience to recognise typical points, and will soon disappear with a little experience, and the knowledge that will be gained by the close study of the standard and model.

Now, when one has thoroughly digested the standard requirements of the breed in hand by the means suggested, one can set to work to train the birds that appear to possess sufficient all-round typical qualities to warrant their appearance on the show bench. Of course, there is nothing to prevent any bird, either with or without a single good point, being exhibited, if the owner can take a beating with good-natured equanimity, but it goes without saying that, generally speaking, it is a waste of time to train any weeds.

Management of Scotch Fancy and Belgian Canaries.

By THOMAS SMITH.

To watch these admirers, observers must notice the intense effort always put forth to induce the poor little inmates to draw themselves together and display all their good points. This naturally is a strain upon a bird, especially if it happens to be in the moult.

At first shows it is not unusual to see some of the exhibits in perfect rags, and standing shivering at a certain stage. A Scotch Fancy Canary, with no pretensions to win, may at that time beat a superior competitor; but an honour so won, and for the single occasion, has not so much glory in it as the assured winnings of a bird which stands first all through the season.

Late young birds have a harder time of it. They may be reared with ease, but the cold weather is upon them ere they get into and over the moult. Consequently, they are weak, and take a long time to pass through the moult. "Everything in season," is an excellent maxim in the cage bird Fancy. And it applies with force to late nesting. I have known August-hatched Scotch Fancy Canaries to do very well, but it is preferable to have all the young hatched before the end of July.

If the room is cold and damp, a little artificial heat will assist the birds in the moult. I personally prefer, however, the cold room to an artificially-heated one.

Flight Cages Considered.

Flight cages are frequently used for moulting. And this for two reasons: first, to afford scope for exercise, which for the birds to have is a great advantage, second, to save the owner the labour of cleaning the cages. The latter advantage is of little moment—as the genuine fancier considers no trouble too great which is incurred for the benefit of his stock.

Putting a lot of birds into one cage, no matter how large it is, is sure to result in the feathers being plucked. Feather eaters are very fond of new feathers that are seen to be bursting forth, and as a consequence the bird gets spoiled for show purposes and the defect can only be remedied by plucking the distorted feathers.

I favour the practice adopted by some of keeping really promising birds in a single cage. Such a cage ought to be kept scrupulously clean to ensure the birds being always clean, and having the plumage in the pink of condition. Now is the time to preserve the beauty and shapeliness of the King (or Queen) of Cage Birds, and their allies the Belgian Canaries.

Protecting from Sun and Dust.

The best way to protect one's birds from the rays of the sun on a hot day, and to keep them clear of dust is to cover the cage with very fine muslin, taking care not to leave it so that the bird may pull it inside the cage and so get its claws entangled in the muslin, as this might result in a broken leg. It should be so fastened that the muslin will keep extended outside the cage.

Another way is, if the cages are uniform, to fix a large piece of muslin on the front to cover the cages; but this should be done in such a way as not to help mice to get into the cages.

Owners of Scotch Fancy Canaries seldom use box cages, preferring the open wire ones, presumably because they like to obtain a full view of the bird; it also assists them in training it to get into position. Box cages are most useful during the moult. They keep the inmate free from draught, and the dust from getting into the bird's shaggy feathers, besides giving them a matted appearance. The importance of having nice plumage cannot be over-rated; it greatly aids in giving the bird an attractive appearance and helps even the best models to win on the Show bench.

Attending to the Stock.

Happily with Scotch Fancy Canaries colour feeding is not indulged in. I have seen one so fed, and the appearance of the bird was by no means improved; it was an oddity, and was ear-marked wherever it was exhibited. Build, grace, style and position are the indispensable attributes required in Scotch Fancy and Belgian Canaries.

The work in connection with the breeding and rearing in the ordinary course has toned down. It is advisable to make a careful survey of the stock to find out what requires strengthening in quality, and to look about in one's travels for a bird which promises to help to remedy the defects, as they appear at the close of the season. A superior gentleman may have been mated to a plain lady and as a result the young have not many of the strong points of the father. In a case of that kind a fresh partner should be sought for and secured for the next season's breeding. It is too early to make an actual purchase, but it is an advantage to get into touch with a breeder of repute.

It is not prudent to purchase outright until the bird or birds have passed through the moult, but the only way to get hold of certain strains of blood is to enter into early negotiations for the purchase of what is wanted. This should be done conditionally—that it will be an assured purchase if at all likely to be suitable.

The Scotch Fancy Canary frequently completely alters in the moulting process, and therefore purchasers should be cautious in buying—so much depends on the addition or additions which are made to Stock. The Belgian Canary usually becomes stiffer in the second feather, and it is therefore preferable to wait until it is thoroughly moulted.

Should a pair fail in the first breeding season, they should not be hastily set aside. "Out of condition," as likely as not was the cause, and if they moult well, and have come of a good reliable strain, they should have another chance. If deemed advisable they could be split up giving the wife another husband, and the husband another wife next year.

When birds shew signs of decay, they should not be retained as stock to be depended upon, but they might be kept as odd ones. Breeding stock must have plenty of stamina and vigour. Both birds in each pair ought to be strong and healthy. Almost everything depends upon the selection of one's stock. Breeders who have a reputation for having convicted strains have always a great demand for their surplus birds; indeed in certain cases, though one pays a good price, it is nevertheless a favour granted to the purchaser who gets a reputed bird. Like a reputed merchant the fancier who has earned a name never has the slightest difficulty to dispose of his stock birds.

Breeding and Moulting.

Birds that have done well, pass into the moult almost immediately upon the hatching of the last clutch of eggs, and here it is that the advantage of having foster parents is apparent. It enables the fancy pair to be set aside to expedite moulting. If they mope beyond the usual extent at this stage, they should be kept in single cages, and be supplied with a little egg food, and a little scalded milk and bread alternately with eight or ten drops of good spirits or brandy mixed in the drinking water daily. Much depends upon the moult and the birds should be closely watched and followed to see that they are kept in good condition.

It is important that the moult should be rapid. A bird cannot pass too quickly through it. It is, too, the stage at which birds are apt to contract colds. Colds acquired under these conditions are not easily got rid of. When the first symptoms of colds are observed the various remedies announced in the query columns of CAGE BIRDS should be applied. A very good thing is six drops of English Pastorgoric and six drops of glycerine well mixed in the drinking water daily. So many troubles arise from colds that too much attention cannot be paid to removing these causes.

The Housing and Treatment of Foreign Birds in Captivity.

By WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S., etc.

The Spermophila.

This is a pleasing but large group of birds, all of which make ideal cage and aviary birds, and most of them are also average songsters. With the exception of a few species, they are all comparatively rare. Many still have yet to be imported as living specimens, and only comparatively recently, Mr. E. W. Harper introduced to aviculture the following species: the Fire-red, Lavender-backed and Black-headed Lined Finches, all of which I possess. The only others I have ever kept are the Guttural, Lined Bluish, White-throated and Plumbeon Finches. The Half-white Spectacled and Reddish, have also been imported, but I think the above about completes the list of imported species. They have never, so far as I am concerned, attempted to nest.

Most of them are hardy and enduring; all are natives of South America and have so strong a family likeness, that once acquainted with one or two species, it is comparatively easy afterwards to spot a Spermophila at sight, even though you may not be able to tell its species.

Seed and green food alone will keep these charming little birds in a very fit condition for a long time, but I believe in giving them a few live insects, aphidae mealworms, and live ants' cocoons, all the species which I have kept being very ready to take same; though, strange to say, the several species which Mr. Fillmer has kept, would not touch insect food.

In the British Museum Catalogue, vol. xii., Dr. Sharpe enumerates 36 species, as follows:—albigularis, hypoleuca, grisea, plumbea, superciliaris, simplex, obscura, pauper, telasco, inornata, homobroa, aualis, analoides, castaneiventris, minuta, hypoxantha, palustris, nigroaurantia, nigrorufa, pileata, cucullata, melanocephala, torqueola, albitorquis, ophthalmica, lineata, moreleti, parva, cærulescens, gutturalis, ocellata, lineola, aurita, luctuosa, corvina, bicolor.

Most of these I shall briefly pass in review, or roughly describe, and can only hope that the day is not far distant when the bulk of these charming little birds will be known by English aviculturists.

Their range as a whole is from Texas, throughout Central and practically the whole of South America. It is my purpose here to give a sufficient description of all the above to enable readers to identify rare species, especially as I learn several new species will be shortly on the English market (this is only possible by constantly quoting from the British Museum Catalogue of Birds, Vol. XII. Descriptions, etc. will be given in the order of the above list.

Three of these, viz., minuta castaneiventris, and ocellata were first imported to this country by my esteemed friend and fellow-aviculturist, Mr. E. W. Harper, F.Z.S., M.B.O.U., and presented by him to the Zoological Society of London, in July, 1906.

Diet: This is very simple, but the more it is varied the better, of course, providing only wholesome food is offered. Their staple diet when not breeding is millet and Canary seed. As regards millet, all the varieties should be given, viz., white, brown, and spray; also grass in flower (i.e., grass in the ear), and other green food; most of the species appreciate and should have a few insects, such as mealworms, smooth caterpillars, beetles, spiders, and green fly (aphidæ) from rose and fruit trees. When they have young to feed soft food should be given, dry if they will so eat it, if not it must be made crumbly moist. I may say that a supply of the following mixture is always in my aviary, and I find nearly all species of Finches take a little. Soft food mixture: Ants' cocoons (best procurable), dried flies, crushed Osborne biscuits, and dried pupæ in equal parts.

Before leaving the matter of treatment, I feel I ought to deprecate the somewhat common practice of sifting the excreta and rubbish from the sand and then using it over again; this is a most insanitary practice and very poor economy. The sand absorbs the moist portion of the excreta, and no matter how carefully the sifting is done, a portion of the sand is contaminated with the birds' excreta, the moisture from which it has absorbed. It would be waste of good space to enlarge upon this, and I hope my readers will cease to adopt such an insanitary practice.

The White-Throated Finch (S. albigularis).—This, one of the most frequently imported of the Spermophilæ, is also a very handsome fellow, but his demeanour in the aviary is anything but amiable; he is, in fact, a confirmed bully, will not tolerate males of his own species in the same enclosure, and is also very intolerant of any nearly related species.

Though quietly clad, his garment is very pleasing, the contrasts are sharp, yet not harsh, and he is also shapely formed. To add to his other charms, he is cheap, enduring, and has a sweet little song, which he is very fond of pouring forth. This species has been bred in captivity by the Rev. C. D. Farrar, who has given a full account of his success in "Bird Notes," Vol. IV.

One point in this connection may be worth recalling—they kept the end of the aviary where their nest was situated free from other birds. The nest is a very neat, delicate, yet very strongly woven, cup-shaped structure. The late Dr. Russ also succeeded in breeding this species.

Adult male: The upper surface is slaty-grey, the feathers at the back of the neck and upper back, slightly mottled with dusky; lesser coverts, slaty-grey; median, greater and primary coverts, and upper-tail coverts, blackish with ashy-grey margins; the middle primaries white at the base of the outer web forming an oblong spot; tail-feathers, black narrowly margined with ashy-grey; crown and sides of the head, dark slaty-grey, mottled with black; the forehead and lores deep black; cheeks, throat, sides of neck, middle breast, abdomen and under tail-coverts, white, with a broad black band extending across the chest; sides of body and flanks, grey; beak, ochre-yellow; legs and feet, grey; iris, black. Total length 4⅜ in., tail 1⅞ in.

Adult female: A full descripton is not necessary here for this well-known species. It will suffice to say that she is mostly brownish-grey on the upper surface, the flights and tail feathers have blackish centres, and the first primaries are white at the base of the outer webs, forming an oblong spot; the lower surface is white, with a brownish-grey band across the breast; the beak is black; the legs and feet, brownish-grey; and the iris, black.

The Half-White Finch (S. hypoleuca).—I do not think any living specimen of this species has yet reached this country, and not having a skin of one in my cabinet I have been compelled to quote from the British Museum Catalogue, Vol. XII.

Adult male: General colour, above slaty-grey; lesser wing-coverts, like the back; median and greater coverts, dusky blackish, edged with slaty-grey; bastard wing, primary coverts and quills, blackish, fringed with ashy-grey, hoary-whitish on the primaries, the inner ones of which have white bases to the outer webs, forming a large alar speculum; upper tail coverts, a little more ashy than the back; tail feathers blackish, edged with ashy-grey and tipped with ashy; crown of head like the back, slightly mottled with obscure dusky centres to the feathers; sides of face, lores, feathers round the eye, and ear coverts, slaty-grey; cheeks, throat, and under surface of body, white; sides of neck, slaty-grey; lower throat and fore-neck, washed with ashy-grey; sides of body and flanks also ashy-grey; under tail coverts, white; "bill, reddish-grey-brown" (Neuwied), "fleshy red" (W. A. Forbes), "legs greyish brown; iris greyish brown" (Neuwied), "iris brown" (W. A. Forbes). Total length 4.65 ins., tail 2 ins. . . . Two species are confounded under the heading of S. Hypoleuca, for some male birds are entirely white below, without any grey on the fore neck. The only argument against the existence of two species is that both forms occur in the same locality, W. A. Forbes having met with them near Pernambuco. . . . Two forms of females, one reddish-brown and the other olive-brown, also occurred in his collection. In one of his white-breasted males the secondaries are also white at the base of the outer web, forming a second alar speculum, which is, however, concealed by the greater coverts. Habitat: Brazil.

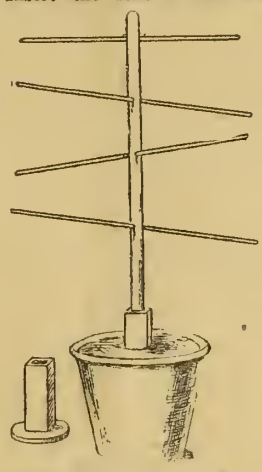
ILLUSTRATED IDEAS



Under this heading we shall illustrate weekly some ideas useful to the bird keeper. Readers are invited to send us particulars of any novel and practical appliance of use in our hobby, either in cage, bird room or aviary, with a rough sketch of same where possible. Every "Illustrated Idea" used in this column will entitle the sender thereof to a postal order for two shillings and sixpence.

A SET OF PERCHES FOR AVIARIES.

Sent by T. G. Mandeville, Brookfield, Arnold, Notts.

Herewith I send a rough sketch of a useful set of perches, which I use in my own aviary. They are made from an ordinary broomstick, and lengths of ½-in. round wooden curtain rod. Bore four or more holes, slightly larger than the diameter of the rods, through the broomstick. Insert the rods to half their length, and secure with a small wedge. Now make a box (as show in the small figure) to fit the bottom end of broomstick. Nail a piece of wood on the bottom, as shown in sketch, and "plant" the perch in a good-sized flower pot, ramming the soil well down. This makes a good firm base. By withdrawing out the wedges the perches can be easily removed for cleansing when required (which is not often necessary if the perches are arranged properly), or the whole may be neatly packed away when not in use.—T. G. Mandeville.

A RED MITE TRAP.

Sent by A. Marshall, 75, Trafalgar Road, Beeston, Notts.

I am sending an idea for a red-mite trap, which does trap them, being based on practical observations of the habits of red mite, having been unfortunate enough to have a small plague of the same. It is, perhaps, well-known how the red mite get to the birds, but I have noticed that they always collect (at night) in large numbers on the top of the cage inside directly over the bird. The design of this trap is based on that fact, and also to provide a moveable hiding place for them in the daytime. By withdrawing the trap and placing it in hot soda water (which keeps the wire from rusting) you will soon make havoc with the red mite. The only fault is that the trap is only suitable for cages with loose fronts. To make the trap, take a length of ordinary cage wire, measure the cage you wish it to fit (from back to front, inside), measure same on wire and bend at right angles a ¼-in.; then bend back at right angles again to make a shoulder. Then measure 2½ ins. farther along, make a small ring and bring the wire back again to ¾ in. past the shoulder, and then make another bend about 1 in. across; repeat to make the other side (see the sketch). Now take a strip of tin, ¾ in. wide by 2½ ins. long. Punch two holes in each end about ¼ in. from the end; bend this and slip on the ends of wire and straighten them out with the pliers, so as to grip. Next take a strip of old blanket, or other woolly material, 2½ ins. wide and same length as the width of cage, and stitch it on the wire the opposite side to the spring, leaving one-eighth of an inch at the ends. Sharpen the ends of the wires and the trap is complete. To fix, take the trap cloth side up, place it between the top of loose front and the top of cage. Push points into back of cage and engage the spring on the top of front exactly over the perches. When taking the trap out, keep the cloth well against top of cage, and then place the trap in the hot soda water, hang up to dry, and then it is ready for using again.—A. Marshall.

WILD BIRD LIFE.

A Brightly Coloured Resident.

The leaves still cling to the trees; although we are nearing the end of the month, the sun is hidden in a dull leaden sky and in the damp atmosphere following the rain the country looks mournful and dreary. The birds are silent, flying in flocks from field to field, or settling in clusters on the hedgerows and on the verge of the wood. A few Fieldfares are to be seen here and there, but there are no signs of the handsome Redwings just yet; while food is plentiful, they are shy and unobtrusive, but they will favour the home meadows when the severe weather approaches. Across the common a stray Stonechat may be seen among the gorse flicking his tail in the manner characteristic of his species, but he has lost the suspicious bearing which is his during the Summer, when, with eggs or young needing to be watched, he was careful to keep an eye upon strangers and to warn his mate when danger approaches. He looks splendid now in his glossy new plumage, so clean and compact, although his breast colour lacks the rich lustre of early Spring. The Stonechat is one of the few small soft billed birds remaining with us the year round, and almost every heath and common numbers among its birds, this alert, bright little fellow.

A Note on Wild Geese.

Seven wild geese passed over the other day flying in a southern direction. These birds probably came from the extreme north of Scotland, where they now breed. Some two hundred years ago they bred in Cambridgeshire and Lincolnshire, but like many other interesting birds have had to give way to drainage and modern improvements. The grey goose is probably the wild progenitor of our tame geese, and their domestication is now of very ancient date.

The Off Season of Song.

The writer has listened intently during the past week for any signs of bird music, and the Robin appears to be the only bird that is really in song. Occasionally one may hear a twittering note or two from the hedgerow, or on sunny days a few silvery trills from the Skylarks, as one disturbs them while crossing the stubble. Most birds are now recovering from the severe strain of the moult, or are passing through that trying ordeal, so that we can hardly expect them to cheer us with their melody.

A Continuous Singer.

As a continuous songster we look upon the Skylark as taking premier position. His charming melody is often rendered for from ten to fifteen minutes at a stretch, but the Chiff Chaff must be counted as a good second, for in the early spring month his song is constantly repeated until it becomes quite monotonous. An observer who out of curiosity counted the number of times this little chap repeated its name without stopping, says that he recorded it forty-four times, which, large as the number is, does not appear at all extraordinary.

Will Barn Owls Increase?

The Barn Owls were at one time extremely plentiful in Surrey, but now appear to have been almost exterminated. All these birds are now protected by Act of Parliament, and we may possibly be able some day to number them among the common objects of bird life in the country. They are undoubtedly wonderfully useful, not only in destroying rats and mice, but also for keeping within reasonable limits the more numerous of the smaller birds. The destruction of the Owls may in some way account for the plague of rats now over-running the country.

See what You Get for Your Money.

Coloured Plate.

Calendar.

A monthly calendar and diary, with novel table for ascertaining when eggs are due to hatch.

"Work of the Year."

A splendidly useful article, in which is set out the work amongst your birds for each month of the year. Perusal of it will enable the bird-keeper to anticipate his future wants, and be always ready to do whatever is needful and beneficial for his stock. Full of practical hints.

"Washing and Preparing Birds for Exhibition."

"The Breeding and Rearing of Canaries."

A very practical and thorough contribution from the pen of an old fancier, who gives many excellent "tips" as to the best ways to proceed. An article that will teach you something.

"Pairs Matched for Breeding."

"The Breeding of Hybrids."

An article on the fascinating pursuit of Hybrid breeding, by one who has made it a considerable study, and devoted much time to it. There are hints and advice in this contribution which may bring you profit and fame.

"The Keeping of British Birds."

A concise and practical article dealing with the mistakes of fanciers, and the keeping of birds in show condition, and giving valuable "tips" on feeding.

"Some Easily Obtainable Foreign Birds."

"Review of the Exhibition Year."

Every breed of Canary, together with Hybrids, British and Foreign birds, has its progress on the show-bench during 1907 dealt with by leading judges, specialists, and experts, and the names of the principal winning exhibitors are given.

"The Diseases of Cage-Birds."

A feature in itself worth the whole cost of the volume. Diseases and accidents are described, and the best medicines and methods of treatment stated in simple language, and very fully and completely. It will save you many valuable birds.

"Glossary of Terms."

The curious terms used by fanciers are fully explained. Reference to the alphabetically-arranged columns will at once tell you the meaning of such expressions as jonque, leafy feather, mooning, rowing, and the like.

In addition to these features will be found a

Directory to Cage-Bird Clubs, Associations and Societies, with particulars or subscriptions, etc., list of Officials and Secretary's name and address.
Directory to Prominent Breeders and Exhibitors of Cage-Birds.

BIRD & LIVE STOCK STORES

9, GEORGE STREET, HULL, AND

(late Station-square, Harrogate). Under Royal patronage. I have pleasure in informing my numerous customers that I have taken over these businesses, and in order that the same may be under my personal supervision have closed the Harrogate Stores and transferred the entire stock to Hull. This change has necessitated my taking much larger premises at the above address, where I have separate show rooms and stock rooms for different kinds of live stock, which will be kept under the most satisfactory sanitary conditions. I trust my customers will still continue to favour me with their orders as heretofore for birds, animals, seeds, cages, and accessories. All Foreign birds are imported direct by me, and do not come through any establishment where disease may be contracted. See adverts under special headings.—Yours obediently, Bernard Hollins. Note.—I have now in stock a splendid selection of Yorkshire and Norwich Canaries for exhibition and stock purposes, and all bred from the largest breeders and exhibitors in Yorkshires. I have won hundreds of first and special prizes with my well-known Foreign birds, of which I have always arriving large consignments every week, including all kinds of Senegal Finches and rare Foreign birds. Full list sent on application. Splendid African Grey Parrot, beautiful talker, tame, price £8; no offers accepted; will talk to strangers. Large stock of British birds for exhibition always on hand. St. Andreasberg Rollers. Do not buy these at present; it is too early. I am booking orders to supply in November, when I shall privately go over to Germany to pick my birds. I buy no rubbish. Prices, 10/6 to £6. Piping Bullfinches; I make a speciality of these, and procure the best, £2 to £10. Orders now being booked. See last week's adverts.—B. Hollins, Proprietor.

BUSINESSES.

NICE class business for sale, both in birds' seeds and Pigeon corn; there is also close on 60 good Canaries, all my own breeding; about 6 inking good show birds in the lot; my health is giving way; a man that understands his business can do well; live Pigeons can be added; good house and shop; rent very fair; the best part of the town. Mather, 65, Aberdare-rd., Wildnes.

ALWAYS USE OUR

DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor for the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers. In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION. If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT. Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or, if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—Three Words a Penny up to eighteen words, MINIMUM Fourpence. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over eighteen.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Fourpence.

Headlines or Footlines 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6 according to size.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the Advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

W. RUDD, THE Bird Specialist,
NORWICH.

THAT LYING JADE

"rumour" is again busy, the latest false rumour going the rounds is, that the testimonials I publish week by week are not genuine. To prove that this statement is false, I have sent the whole of the letters printed this week, together with scores of others that have never been published, to the Editor of CAGE BIRDS for his perusal, and I publicly offer £50 to any person that can prove that I have ever solicited a testimonial, or published one that was not genuine. I believe in giving every customer sound, honest value at a reasonable price, and when a man does that, he can get plenty of trade and testimonials, too. If you want anything in the bird-catching line, patronise me just once, you will see I do not want extortionate profits. Clap nets made from genuine thread netting, ¾ mesh, 3 yards long 4/- pair, 4 yds. 5/-, 5 yds, 6/-, 6 yds. 7/-, 7 yds, 8/-, 8 yards 9/-, 9 yards 10/-, 10 yards 11/- per pair, all guaranteed fully 5½ feet deep and strike 4 feet. All fitted complete with brass-mounted stave poles, pegs, lines, etc., ready for immediate setting. Sparrow nets, fitted on 15 feet poles 5/6, ditto 19 feet poles 6/6 each. Loose netting, made from 60's genuine thread, ¾ mesh, 7 feet deep, 3d. yard, 9 feet 4d. yard, 12 feet deep 5d. yard, post free. This netting is guaranteed finest procurable, and must not be confused with the American cottou fishing netting now being sold as bird netting. Self-acting spring net traps, by far the largest and most simple traps on the market, 24 inches long, 18 inches wide, 1/- each, ditto 18 inches long, 9d. each, carriage 4d. extra. Single trap cages 6d. each; double ditto, 10d. and 1/-; Treble ditto, 1/3 each, all have seperate compartment for call bird. Patent self-setting and self-acting trap cages (Reg. No. 23927) guaranteed to automatically reset immediately each bird is caught, 1/6 each. Real Japanese birdlime, absolutely strongest made, does not run in sun, and guaranteed to hold a Hawk, 6d. ½ lb., 10d. ½ lb., 1/6 1 lb; sample 3d., all post free. Round or square topped call-cages, 3d. each, 2/6 dozen, 27/- gross. Linnet or Goldfinch cages, 6d. each, 4/6 dozen. Lark runner cages, 3/6, 4/6, 5/-, 6/- dozen. Every description of cages in stock. Dealers should send stamp for wholesale cage list, prices and quality will surprise them. Everything required by catchers kept in stock; send stamp for full catchers' list. See following letters, all recently received:—"Cavalry Barracks, Windsor, October 10th. Sir,—Please send pair clap nets as follows. I had a pair last year from another firm, and found them to be made of twine, which is a failure and a fraud. Yours, T. Smith." "3, Nicholns-street, Middlesbro,' October 5th. Sir, —Please send another tin birdlime. It is best I ever tried. You boast of it being able to hold a Hawk, and, strange to say, a Hawk was first bird over our twigs, and the lime held it on. Yours, V. Moody." "10, Steps-road, Stenhousemuir, October 5th. Sir,—We tried birdlime on Saturday, and found it a great success. Yours, C. Godfrey." "Woodford Grange, Thrapston. October 1st. Sir,—Please send me pair Sparrow nets for a friend who saw the clap nets you supplied to me and was quite delighted with them. Yours, W. Meacock." "46, Portland-row, Selston. Sir,—Please send following. The netting I got from you last year is best in the world. I had a hare in it, and it never broke a mesh. Yours, A. Fielding." "10, Munro-street, Stenhousemuir. Sir,—Netting I had from you last year is as good as ever, and has done good service. Yours, P. Braidwood." "Grange-road, Kettering. Sir,—Very pleased with loose netting you sent. Yours, T. Green." "10, Dyke Nook, Frizington. Sir,—Please send two call cages. My uncle has his, and is very pleased with them. Yours, J. Jenkison." "65, Low Town-street, Worksop. Sir,—Please send 4 yards netting. I had some from another firm last year, and it did not last the senson out. Yours, J. Richards." "Bright View, Old Rathay, by Blairgowrie. Sir,—Please send 1 lb. birdlime. I have had it this three seasons, and it is best and cheapest I ever got, and first-class stuff. Yours, W. Hovelsroud." "10, Alpine Cottage, Beeston. Sir,—Please send 24 yards netting. I had some from one I am more like garden netting than anything else. Yours, W. Worthington." "13, Finsbury-terrace, Finsbury Park, London. Sir,—Please send another pull line, I was highly pleased with last, as it is better quality than I can get in London. Yours, G. Barfoot." "Turnhill-terrace, Nantyglo. Sir,—Please send ¼ lime, I had some last year, and cannot get better. Yours, J. Wise." "94, Whitworth-road, Rochdale. Sir,—I am quite pleased with trap cage. Please send following. Yours, E. Dean." "7, Birkland-street, Mansfield. Sir,—Please send following. I had very good results with your lime last year, also with nets you sent. Yours, G. Barson." "East Haddon. Sir,—Received nets, and am quite satisfied with them. Yours, R. Pudney." Thousands of similar letters open to inspection any time, but these are sufficient to show that my goods are by far the cheapest and best on the market. Why pay extortionate prices when you can get better value for half the money? Remember everything is sent on approval: cash or CAGE BIRDS deposit system, and money fully and promptly returned if every satisfaction not given. See British Bird column for further advertisement.

NOTHING PLEASES ME

better than for a customer to tell his friend exactly how he has been treated by me. In fact, I rely upon personal recommendations for the bulk of my trade. I believe in serving everybody so well that she is bound to advise his friends to deal with me, and so become a walking talking advert for my stock. I have largest collection of Worcestershire cock Goldfinches in the world, all in pink of health and condition, and well on hard seed, at 1/6 each, three 4/-, six 7/6, twelve 13/-, specially selected larger cocks, to moult, for show or muling, and guaranteed now in song, 2/- each; three 5/-, six 9/-, twelve 18/-; few clean moulted cocks, in superb condition, 2/6 and 3/- each, extra special clean moulted cocks, fit to win, immediately, 4/- and 5/- each; Cheveral cock Goldfinch 5/-, Peathroat ditto 3/6; hen Goldfinches 1/- each, three 2/6, six 4/-; grand lot cock brown Linnets, everyone guaranteed red-breasted, 8d. each, three 1/6, six 2/6, twelve 4/6; specially selected larger cocks for show, muling, or Contest singing, and warranted now in song, 1/- each, three 2/-, six 3/6, twelve 6/6; few fit to win now 1/6 and 2/- each. Don't pay exhorbitant prices for Linnets, but send to the man who has sold cup winners at 4d. each. (See recent testimonials). Cock Bullfinches, in full colour, 1/6 and 2/- each; Exhibition specimens 3/- each, Hew Bullfinches 1/- each, few extra large rich-coloured hens for show or Hybridising 1/6 each, cock Greenfinches 6d. each, three 1/-, six 1/6; Yellow Exhibition specimens 1/- each, cock Chaffinches 8d. each, three 1/6, six 2/6; cock Bramblefinches 8d. each, three 1/6; Exhibition specimens 1/6 each; hand-reared cock Blackbird, magnificent singer and fit to win, 5/-; hand-reared cock Larks, contest singers, winners of two and three contests each 29/-, 30/-, and 42/-; wild-caught cock Larks, steady and in song, 1/-, 1/6, and 2/- each, Redpolls 6d. each, three 1/3. In response to numerous inquiries I beg to say that first consignment of Siberian Goldfinches reaches me on November 15th next. I am the only direct importer in the provinces of the genuine Siberian Goldfinches, and these will be absolutely first lot to arrive since last season. I am now booking orders for exhibition specimens at 7/6 and 10/- each. Intending purchasers will do well to place their orders with me at once, as all will be executed strictly in rotation, and everyone knows that the real deck sweepers are not as plentiful as blackberries. No man in England is allowed to select one of these birds until actually on my premises, so send to fountain head for the "Simon Pure." See following few letters, which are not old as Adam, but all recently received and never before published:—"Strathspey, Heythorp Street, Southfields, London, October 13th.—Sir,—Goldfinch arrived safe, and I thank you very much for sending such a beauty, as I wished. I am delighted with it.—Yours, A. Polley." "Attwood Terrace, Tudhoe, Spennymoor, October 19th.—Sir,—I am well pleased with the Goldfinch. I am certain no one would have sent a bird half so good for the money, and I shall certainly deal with you again. If all dealers in British would try to please customers like you, they would not need such catching adverts. I am now sure that I have found an honest dealer.—Yours, H. C." "Croft Buildings, Markinch, Fife, October 17th.—Sir,—I won first and special at Kelty with the Goldfinch I had from you.—Yours, J. Mackie." (This Finch was one of my 5/- birds and was supplied only a few days before show.—W.G.) "12, King Street, Thornhill Road, Falkirk, October 19th.—Sir,—Please quote price for the following birds. I had six of your picked Linnets three weeks ago, and they were grand birds at the price which shows you to be an honest man to deal with.—Yours, T. Dougall." "11, Townfoot, Old Cummock, October 20th.—Sir,—Many thanks for splendid cock Goldfinch and Linnet you sent me. I am more than pleased with them, and can assure you that you will have many more orders from here.—Yours, M. Semple." "Sandy, Beds, October 21st.—Sir,—Received Linnets and cages safe, and am well pleased with them.—Yours, A. Brown." "Poolstock, Wigan, October 22nd.—Sir,—Received birds quite safe, and am well pleased.—Yours, W. Ridge." "Hutton, Rudby, October 23rd.—Sir,—Received birds safe and am well pleased with them.—Yours, G. Eden." "Bridge Street, Helmsley, S.O., October 26th,—Sir,—Please send following. The Goldfinches I got from you have turned out good birds.—Yours, A. Hoggart." See previous issues of "Cage Birds" for some of the most convincing testimonials ever published. I guarantee every bird to have been properly netted in County of Worcester, and all are well caged steady and properly on hard seed before being sent out. All are sent on approval solely at my risk, either on receipt of cash or "Cage Birds" deposit system, and unless birds prove in every way satisfactory, all you have to do is to return it, and I promptly and cheerfully refund every penny of your money. No undermentioned conditions or trickery about my method of trading. You return birds and I return money; simple, isn't it? I claim to have more Worcestershire birds through my hands than all other advertisers together, and also to be originator of approval system in connection with wild birds. (Will copiers of my advertisement kindly copy last two statements of fact.) One trial solicited. See Roller Canaries; also appliance columns for further advertisement.

THOS. HUGHES, 65 Saltley-rd., Birmingham

NO, I WON'T!

If others have disappointed you, I won't. I have during the past supplied customers with birds that has given every satisfaction, and I still have a few hundreds of birds in stock that have been moulted in my aviaries. It is foolish of you to purchase fresh-caught sickly rubbish when at the same price you can have picked birds, well on seed, singing their pure wild song. It is no brag, or empty bounce, but a well-known fact that I have the best collection of sound, healthy birds it has ever been your privilege to see. I have not to wait until they are caught. I have them in stock waiting your order. 1908 English Goldfinches, cocks 1/6, 2/- each, three for 4/-; extra large picked birds, muling, singing, showing, 2/3, 2/6, 2/9 each; Goldfinch hens, 9d., 1/2 each, three for 2/-; extra large Lincolnshire cock Linnets, clean moulted, red-breasted, cock birds, commenced singing, 9d., 1/- each, three 1/6, six 2/3, twelve 4/-, twenty-five 7/6; specially selected birds for muling, showing, etc, 1/6, 2/- each, three 3/-; Greenfinches, 6d. each, 9d., 1/- pair; Redpolls, 8d. each, 1/- pair; Bullfinches, cocks, 1/6, 1/9, 2/-; hens, 1/-, 1/6 each; large cock Larks, 9d., 1/- each, three 1/6; all birds sent on approval at my risk; neat travelling cages, 2d., 3d. each; send stamp for full illustrated list and prices of Canaries, British and Foreign birds. I have thousands of unsolicited testimonials open for inspection. "High-st., Guildford, 23rd October, 1908.—Many thanks for nice Goldfinch. Safely received. I certainly must compliment you. Each bird and cage I have had from you have arrived in perfect condition.—W. R. Chapman to Miss Storey." "30, Wilton-rd., Ilford, 22/10/08.—Please send me three Goldfinches. The bird I had of you seven months ago is still singing splendidly.—W. Gooch to Miss Storey."—"5, Commercial-st., Nelson, 23/10/08.—Please send me three selected Linnets. The last you sent me I sold for seven times the price I paid you.—E. Bowen to Miss Storey." "2, Cambrian-place, Llanelly, 24/10/08.—Bird arrived Friday night in the pink of condition. Singing well. Perfectly satisfied. Very good bird for the money.—S. Mathias to Miss Storey." "18, Charles-st., Swinton, 24/10/08.—Goldfinches to hand. I am pleased to inform you I am well satisfied, and will patronise you in future.—E. Hawson to Miss Storey." The above with thousands of similar letters in original envelopes open for inspection. Make a note of it. I send all birds on approval and guarantee satisfaction.—Miss E. L. Storey, Bird Specialist, Crowle, Doncaster.

COCK LINNETS.

Fanciers, use your common sense. What sort of birds do you expect at the ridiculous prices advertised? A good linnet will always command a fair price, and costs no more to keep than a waster. If you want a typical specimen suitable for Muling, Song or Exhibition, send to me and you'll get a bird what will delight you. Prices from 1/- to 7/6 each. Every bird splendid value for money.

J. WALMSLEY, 6, Brand Street, Nottingham.

of the Roller Canary, intends to give free to all readers of CAGE BIRDS his secrets of success on the Roller Canary, or any other information required; correspondence a pleasure; stamped addressed envelope for reply.

R. KREMNER, 104, TIB-ST., MANCHESTER

Invites the so-called importers to prove this statement to be false. I am the only direct importer in the North of England (Manchester included) that holds a yearly ticket between England and Germany, which enables me to travel to and from Germany as often as I find it necessary. I buy from the most prominent breeders in Germany, and by buying from me you save the middleman's profit, and you buy from the man that knows what he is selling. I have just returned from Germany with a large stock of Rollers, guaranteed in full song 7/6, 10/0, 12/6, 15/-, 25/- each; Hartz cocks, singing, 5/6; cash with order or deposit CAGE BIRDS; trade supplied.—Note address, R. Kremner, 104, Tib-st., Manchester, and 96, Great Moor-st., Bolton.

My Hartz Mountain and St. Andreasburg Rollers have just arrived. They are in grand form, rolling from daylight till dusk; specially trained, from 5/- to 20/-. Read following testimonial:—Victoria-rd., St. Alban's, Herts. October 25th, 1908. Roller arrived safe and sound. I am more than satisfied. He sings beautiful. R. O'dell to Joe Thomas. All varieties of loud, free song cocks from 4/6 upwards. Send for my illustrated price list, post free, for every variety Canary or Mule. Joe Thomas, Ambler Thorn, near Halifax.

DON'T ORDER ROLLERS

for a few weeks yet, as the best quality will not arrive till then. Our celebrated contest Rollers will arrive in November, and our breeders assure us they are better than ever. So reserve your order if you want satisfaction. We have now got some good St. Andreasburg Rollers in song; the e are advertised by others as the very best, our price for the e is 7/6 and 8/6 each. Hartz Mountain cock Canaries in song, our price 4/6 and 5/6 each; these are worth double.—Northern Aviaries, Preston.

CHAMPION ROLLERS.

Notice.—I have a splendid consignment of those extremely musical St. Andreasburg Rollers; these are splendid day and gaslight songsters; they are delightful, with their deep bass rolls, hollow rolls, sweet silvery trills, water bubble runs, piccolo trills, bell, sharp, and gong notes, etc.; these are splendid quality; and are certain to please you; all on 6 days' approval, on receipt of P.O., or you can deposit the amount with the Editor, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/6, hens to match 3/-, 3/6, 4/-, inspection invited.—William Shaw and Son, 97, Essex-road, Islington, London, N.

HARTZ MOUNTAIN

HUMMEL ROLLERS.

Finest Rollers imported. To speak well of the Hummel is to gild refined gold. Testimonials from customers who say the Hummel is still singing as sweetly as when purchased four, five, six, and seven years ago. All Hummels have delightful, deep, delicate bow roll, hollow roll, hollow bow roll, du pipe, hollow bell roll, grand round bass roll, vibrating hollow roll, and charming water bubble roll; one price only, 12s. 6d.; no fancy prices; Hummel hens, 3s. each; a beautiful pair of Hummels for 15s. St. Andreasberg Rollers, 5s. and 7s. 6d. each. Hummel Schoolmasters, 20s. each, better than can be obtained elsewhere at treble the price. Thousands of testimonials have been published by me in CAGE BIRDS from satisfied customers. I guarantee strictly honourable trading and satisfaction to all.—Varney, sole proprietor and importer of this remarkable Roller Canary. Twenty years advertiser.—Varney, Stratford, London.—St. Mary Abbey, Mill Hill.—Received the Hummel; it sings beautifully indeed. It sings sweetly, and oh, so softly, all day, and I cannot imagine any bird with a more lovely voice; he begins, even these dark mornings, at 7.30, under his serge cover, and sings till 6 o'clock. Although his song is so lovely, it is beautifully sweet, he has no shrill notes, and I am able to read through it.—Miss F. Blockett. Southfelt, Poynton, Cheshire.—Received the Hummel, and am more than delighted with such superior song.—W. Glover to Varney, the largest importer of Rollers in London. Sumner-place, Billinghurst, Sussex.—Please send 12 good Hummel Rollers. I have six of your Hummel Rollers; all perfect Rollers.—J. Leyland. January 16th, Sumner-place, Billinghurst, Sussex.—I enclose cheque for the 12 Hummel Rollers. Am very pleased with them.—Mr. J. Leyland. Oulton Lodge, Aylsham, Warwick, Sept. 20th, 1908.—Mr. Bapha wishes another Hummel Schoolmaster as supplied by Mr. Varney a few months ago. 24th.—Mr. Bapha has received the Hummel, which is again quite satisfactory. 22nd, 1908, 20, Bailey-street, Barnsley.—Hummel arrived safe. I am more than delighted with such superior song. 7, Brossington. 22nd, 1908, Snow Hill, Skelton, Staffordshire.—The Rollers to hand all safe and satisfactory.—Geo. Grafton. 20th, 1908, 20, Gladstone-street, Kilworth. Hummel to hand; what a beautiful song; so superior to all other Rollers imported in this district.—W. Pebury. 26th, 1908, 5, Millfield-road, Blengome.—I enclose 20/- for another Hummel. I am so delighted with the last one; it is one of the best birds ever heard in this district, and I have seen a few.—The Hon. A. Stevenson. 22nd, 1908.—Canaries to hand in pink of condition. I have had birds from all over the kingdom, but never received such value.—J. Smith. List free; sole importer and proprietor of these Rollers.—Varney, the Great Hummel Importer, Stratford, London. 23rd year of advertising.

ATTENTION PLEASE!

This is what you have been waiting for. I have just received my first consignment for this season of the world famed "Leipzig" Roller Canaries. (Cocks, no hens for sale.) These cocks are in magnificent condition and full song, with long, hollow, and double rolls, sweet silvery trills, waterbubble, runs soft roulades, deep bass rolls, hollow bell rolls, piccolo trills, bell harp, and flute notes, etc., etc., and are guaranteed entirely free from harsh or objectionable notes whatever. Price 6/6 and 7/6 each. These birds are imported by me direct from Leipzig, and are same strain as have won innumerable contests both in Germany, and also England. Every bird is stamped on wing, "Hans Weber, Leipzig," and as I am sole agent, no other dealer can get so much as one feather of this strain unless purchased from me. All are safely and warmly packed in special travelling cages, with seed and water to last 48 hours, and are sent on full week's approval, carry all my risk during the whole time, either on receipt of cash or deposit with CAGE BIRDS, and every penny of your money is refunded if bird fails to realise every expectation, and prove fully satisfactory. See British Bird and Appliance Columns for further advertisements.

OGDEN BROS.,

up-to-date winners are now ready. Having proved to the Fancy to have the best, winning the world's championship in the C.M.Y.C.C., 1907 and 1908, also second place for Shackleton's 30-guinea trophy, competed for at all Yorkshire Union shows, also prize winners in the Y.C.C. competitions, finishing up first at Crystal Palace 1908. Having bred over 200 we have for sale real good birds, bred direct from these champions; cocks from 9/-; hens from 6/-; can be seen any day; inspection invited; all sent on approval; cash or deposit; if not highly satisfied your money returned prompt. (See show reports).—15, Ashwood-st., Dudley-hill, Bradford.

AMBLER'S CHAMPION YORKSHIRES

have been known throughout the Fancy for over 20 years. Winning at all the leading shows, including Crystal Palace. Our last season's champion yellow was acknowledged the best yellow seen for years, finishing up 1st Palace, also winning Cage Birds £5 special—thus proving our strain one of the best in the Fancy. As we are not able to exhibit much we offer for sale absolutely the choicest stock of exhibition Yorkshires in the world; perfect type, fine length, showing plenty of leg, teeming with quality, and showing that breed that always catches the judge's eye. All grandly fed, and can win in the keenest company. One exhibitor alone last season who bought a team of birds from us won 26 first, 21 seconds, and 14 third prizes, besides 3 cups and specials. This is no empty bounce, but solid facts. If you want to win or breed winners send to Amblers. Stock birds, wonderful length, full of style and quality, just the sort to breed champions, pairs from 15/- to 60/-; state wants; satisfaction guaranteed; all birds sent on approval; stamp particulars.—Messrs. Amblers (late of Bradford), 188, Westminster-road, Morecambe.

Champion Winning Yorkshires.

Direct from "Mr. Bates, Stoke," strain, which won for him thousands of prizes. I have sold from this strain to Mr. Blackhurst some toppers, and he won 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 1908, Crystal Palace and many others places; also Mr. Banks, Cardiff, won 1sts, 2nds etc., with this strain supplied by me. Some grand youngsters, same strain and models; cocks, Yellows or Buffs, from 6/-, 7/-, 8/-, 10/-, 12/-, 15/-, 20/-; hens, Yellows or Buffs, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6, 10/-, 12/-; matched pairs, to breed winners, 12/-, 14/-, 16/-, 18/-, 20/- pair; any I send on approval, and guarantee to please you, as I don't exhibit these myself; order at once; breeder 25 years.—Sandiford, Canary Breeder and Judge, Preston, Lancashire,

For YORKSHIRES.

That possess all the good points required in a perfect specimen, my strain stands unequalled, and with 36 entries this season have won 10 firsts, 11 seconds, 1 third, 3 fourths, 3 vhc, etc.; see reports of Potteries, Cambridge, Paignton, Bolton Woods, etc.

I have bred and sold scores of winners this last few years, and some that have won in the keenest competition this season. See testimonials published in last week's Cage Birds. Just one out of scores received this last few weeks.—1, Linkfield Street, Redhill, Surrey. Oct. 31, 1908.—Pleased to say show bird arrived safely, and stood the journey well. I like the look of him very much. Thanking you very much for your prompt attention.—F. Roser to L. Dykes. The show season is now in full swing, and if you want to win, or to breed your own winners, then send direct to the old reliable breeder who breeds his own winners, and can therefore give you the best satisfaction. I have a grand lot now ready in Clears, Ticks, Green Marked, Cinnamon Marked, and Clear Pink eyed, and all correct type, standard length, and feathered to perfection; and possessing that touch of breed so much admired on the show bench. All guaranteed healthy and cold room bred and kept, colour fed to perfection, or natural colour; grand typical yellow cocks at 6/-, 7/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-; buff cocks at 6/-, 6/-, 7/6, 10/6, 12/6, all on full song, and seven inches long. Pairs properly matched by experience to breed winners (Not Weeds), at 6/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/- per pair; extra good racy yell. hens at 4/-, 6/-, 6/6, 6/6, 10/6; tight feathered buffs at 3/6, 4/6, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6 each.

EXHIBITION COCKS OR HENS.

Ready for immediate exhibition; some real gems that can win in the keenest competition, and some that can win at local or members' shows; very reasonable; state wants, and before deciding to purchase elsewhere, send for my fully illustrated price list, containing testimonials received recently —not years old, and got up for the occasion, but a few ungarnished facts.

BOOKLET FREE.

Finest Talking Parrots. I only deal in Parrots that will make first-class talkers; no rubbish. I am willing at all time to send my Parrots on four week's trial and three months' talking guarantee. Why? Because all my Parrots are young, strong, and reliable. My lifetime has been spent among Grey Parrots, both at home and abroad. I guarantee every customer every satisfaction. Grey Parrots are my special fancy. I have trained them, know their wants, and can give every purchaser a bird that will please him in every way. I can supply grey talkers, not thinkers, that will say almost anything, at reasonable prices. Before you purchase a grey or green Parrot, send for my Booklet entitled "Talking Parrots." All my birds are sent on four weeks' trial, at my risk. Send postcard for catalogue.—Mrs. Forster, Princes Park Aviaries, Violet Street, Liverpool.

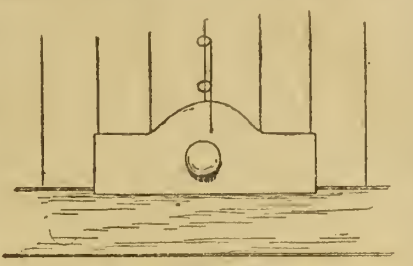
CLUB REPORTS.

RUTHERGLEN AND DIST. C.A.

Monthly meeting held in the Town Hall Buildings on October 19th, Mr. Manson presiding. The arranging of classification for the show to be held on December 12th was gone into. There was an evident desire to surpass last year's exhibition, so the classification was made very comprehensive, and members will have a chance of showing birds in great variety. —F. WILSON, Secretary.

DULWICH O.S.

Committee meeting held October 22nd, Mr. G. F. Woolhouse presiding. Schedule for forthcoming annual show was passed. The society provides 88 classes, open and members. Crested C.C., English and Welsh B.F.C., and National British Bird and M.C. have given their patronage. A handsome special prize list was announced. A hearty vote of thanks was given to the donors of the six silver-plated rose bowls, also to the other donors, while Mr. F. Gain was specially thanked for obtaining 10 valuable engravings from the National Art Society. The following gentlemen were appointed stewards: Messrs. W. Morris, F. Easterling, C. Mabey, G. W. Saunders, W. G. Warley, W. R. Wall, J. Foster, J. Wilmot, A. J. Slade, F. Bisley, F. Waterman, F. Kites, G. Garlick, A. Rees, R. Bruty, R. Pocock, F. Cain, S. J. Kent, Mrs. Bussey and Mrs. Mazzoni. Mr. G. F. Woolhouse was appointed show manager, and Mr. A. E. Rogers, C.B.U. delegate. The following new members were elected, Messrs. C. T. Maxwell (Brixton), W. H. Vale, Cuiting, Thorpe, Askew, Masters, S. H. W. Baker (Clapham), T. Morris (Tooting), C. Young (Thornton), R. J. Nowley (Stockwell), W. Yeoman, F. Scott (Streatham), Mrs. J. Foster, W. Powles (Dulwich), Mrs. J. Wilmot (Bermondsey). It was decided to have an open novice section of 10 classes, with a handsome silver cup for best bird, Mr. Daniels offering a guinea Royal Doulton vase for runner-up.—ROGERS AND MAZZONI, Hon. Secs.



BEGINNERS: READ "CAGE BIRDS" ANNUAL.

ILLUSTRATED IDEAS

Under this heading we shall illustrate weekly some ideas useful to the bird keeper. Readers are invited to send us particulars of any novel and practical appliance of use in our hobby, either in cage, bird room or aviary, with a rough sketch of some where possible. Every "Illustrated Idea" used in this column will entitle the sender thereof to a postal order for two shillings and sixpence.

No. 254.
A SECURE EGG-PAN HOLDER.
Sent by J. Broxup, Naturalist, Burnley.

To make this holder, procure a piece of sixteen-guage cage-wire, and bend it with the pliers into the form seen in the illustration, which, I trust, will prove self-explanatory. The idea is that the wire when bent into shape shall slide up or down the cage front, for the purpose of removing the egg-pan, or for holding it securely in its place.—J. BROXUP.

No. 255.
AN IMPROVED TURN-RAIL.
Sent by J. W. Hunt, May Cottage, Thompson-st., Bilston.

Enclosed is a sketch of a simple turn-rail which is made to turn up in front of cage instead of turning outward, which enables the scraper to remove all dirt from both sides of the cage. In the sketch are seen the cage front, turn-rail, and wire staple hinge. For fixing rail to cage, take four pieces of cage-wire about 1¼ inches long, and bend as shown in sketch to form the hinge and the staple. Bore two holes through the cage-front, about one inch from each end, and ¼ inch from bottom, and 1-16th inch apart; also one hole at each end (the same distance) in the turn-rail. Place the ends of staples through holes, leaving the heads out of wood to the same thickness as the wire, bending the ends back, one to right and one to left. Now take the wire hinge, place the long end through turn-rail, bend back the end, and fasten same to the wood; then your turn-rail is complete.—J. W. HUNT.

LEICESTER C.B.S.

The above Society held a successful table show on October 28th, when some very good youngsters were staged. Mr. G. E. Edwards gave every satisfaction in placing the awards. OPEN YELL. UNFLIG. NOR.: 1, c, Harrison; 2, hc, Harkhorn; 3, vhc, Tyler. NOVICE: 1, 2, 3, hc, Christian; vhc, Dyson; c, Smith and Wisdom.—J. A. TYLER, Sec.

BELFAST N.C. AND Y.C.C.

Monthly meeting held in the Avenue Hall, Oct. 3rd, president, Mr. Adams, in the chair. In the unavoidable absence of the secretary, the assistant secretary acted in that capacity. After the ordinary business, a special prize list was opened, when the following members generously promised to present specials to the successful competitors at our forthcoming show, to be held on Nov. 21st—Messrs. Connell (2), Adams, Teasey, Gray, Allen, Thompson, Stewart, Gilmore, Wilson, Carson, Trueman, Cummins and Bowman one each. The prize cards will be presented as a special by assistant secretary. It is hoped this will not conclude the list by any means.—A. SOUTH, Assistant Secretary.

SCOTTISH METROPOLITAN (Open Derby) O.A.

Annual meeting held in Edinburgh, October 17th, Mr. C. R. Drysdale, hon. president, presiding. The secretary submitted his first financial statement, which after auditors' report per Mr Petrie, was agreed to as eminently satisfactory. Election of officials for next year: Mr. C. R. Drysdale (Edinburgh), president; Mr. W. Thornton (Edinburgh), vice-president; Mr. J. R. Meikle (51, Lothian-road, Edinburgh) secretary and treasurer. Acting committee, Messrs. J. Dalgleish (Leith), J. McLennan and A. Paterson (Edinburgh), auditors, Messrs. M. Petrie (Leith) J. Sinclair and W. Whitefield (Edinburgh). All the above office bearers are honorary, giving their services free. On consideration of rules, one most important alteration was made, namely, "Belgian fanciers to have the privilege of exhibiting eight birds, four in each class," exactly double the number allowed at our exhibition of this year. The executive hope this further extension will be largely taken advantage of. Date of next show, September 25, 1909. We specially request fanciers to again rally round us and help us to surpass, if possible, our great success of this year. A vote of thanks, accorded to the officials for their past services, brought the meeting, in which the utmost good feeling and harmony prevailed, to a close.—J. R. MEIKLE, Sec.

ORMSKIRK AND DISTRICT C.B.S

Mr. G. J. Johnson presided at the meeting held at the headquarters, Buck I' th' Vine Hotel, on October 5th. Improved classification was made for the second annual show, November 28th, and the schedule, as approved, contains twelve classes for Canaries, eleven for British birds, while Foreign, Mule, selling, and gift classes form the remainder. Judge, Mr. C. Houlton (St. Helens). Outside the society, local Linnet fanciers are also catered for, a five mile radius class being provided, and with only a small entry fee.—T. H. TIPPER, Hon. Sec.

LEEDS L.S.A.

The annual dinner took place on October 21st, when there were about 40 members present. The dinner was given by Mr. W. Tillotson at headquarters, King's Head, Shannon Street, and we had a jolly evening. After dinner we had a good "sing song," Mr. J. R. Hepton opened with "The Blind Boy," and Mr. F. Robinson followed with "The Village Blacksmith." There were a number of other songs by Mr. T. Stead and others. A vote of thanks to Mr. Tillotson for his generosity and the singing of "He's a jolly good fellow," concluded the evening.—WILSON NAYLOR, Hon. Sec.

LEYTON AND DISTRICT C.B.A.

A washing exhibition and competition were held at headquarters, the Constitutional Club, on October 5th, when there was a good muster of members and friends, about 60 being present. Mr. Williamson presided. There were two medals to be competed for, and every one was all attention as Mr. C. Carr gave a practical demonstration and a lot of useful advice, especially urging the necessity of having everything clean, the cage in particular, as any dust or dirt here would soon undo all one's washing. It was decided that competitors compete in pairs, and Messrs. A. J. Marley and T. Jackson, two amateurs, therefore stepped forward first. Coats were thrown off, etc., and everything proceeded in quite a business-like manner, everyone seeming sorry when the last of the competitors had finished. Several gave the impression that they had spent a good bit of time at the wash tub. While the birds were drying the time was passed by an exchange of experiences in birdie matters generally. At the close, the judge, Mr. J. S. Clarke decided that all birds be put on the table. In awarding the prize in the amateur section to Mr. Jackson, the judge said that in all his experience he had never seen anyone handle or wash a bird better than he, Mr. Jackson, having the bird under control the whole time and managing it in a masterly manner. In his (the judge's) opinion he stood right out well by himself. In awarding the prize in the novices section to our popular chairman, Mr. F. Williamson, the judge said that he was agreeably surprised to see the result. The bird had come out fit to grace any show bench. The secretary, Mr. B. F. Forse, ever on the alert for an opportunity for anything to benefit the association, asked for specials for the annual show, to be held November 14th, and he was kept very busy. A hearty vote of thanks to Mr. J. S. Clarke for his kindness in judging, and his great help to the association generally, brought a most enjoyable evening to a close.—J. A. BARTLETT.

THE SHOWS.

SOUTH SHIELDS.

South and North Shields and Dist. held their sixth annual show on October 30th and 31st, and entries came up fairly well, they showing a slight decrease on last year; but this is owing to the strike on the Tyne this season. Taking everything into consideration, the show was a good one, some splendid birds being staged. Norwich and Yorkshires were fairly well represented, some of the classes being full of hut ones. Crests and Crest-breds, although small in numbers, contained the cream of the Fancy, while the popular Border was fully represented by some of the well-known breeders of Tweed and Tyne. Mules, British and Foreign were a grand collection, some real gems being staged. A very interesting exhibit was the Blue-throated Warbler. This was caught about five weeks ago on the coast near South Shields. Members' classes were keenly contested. The judges were Messrs. H. W. Battye (Canaries, Open), J. Shepherd (Mules, Brit. and For.), and E. Brunskill (Members'). The show was held in a good hall, which was well lighted, and free from draught, while the staging was all that could be desired. The management was under the direction of the esteemed secretary, Mr. Wm. Duke, who was ably supported by his assistant, Mr. Barrass, and his son, Mr. Duke, jun.; everything possible was done for the comfort of exhibits and exhibitors. The society are fortunate in having such gentlemen at the head of affairs, and long may they keep them. The stewards were of the genuine type, hard-working, and plenty of come and go. We also noted Mr. Hutchinson, the esteemed Newcastle secretary, busy assisting Mr. Duke, while Mr. S. Taylor, of Crest fame, was doing like dutles with the stewards. We were also pleased to see the C.B.U. representative, Mr. Robson, of Newcastle, going about in his usual quiet but businesslike way.

Mr. Battye's Classes.

HALSTEAD.

On October 31st was held in Queen's Hall, the first show of the Halstead F.A. The entry hardly came up to the Committee's expectations, yet with great generosity they only cancelled two classes—those for Yorkshires and Soft-Billed British. The average entry was only seven and a half per class, so we hope the executive's liberality on this occasion will not be forgotten by cage bird men when next an appeal is made to them. The quality was well up to the average, and some very choice exhibits were staged, especially in Norwich, Mules, and Hard-Billed British. The Committee responsible for the show were Messrs. G. Goodchild, J. H. Taylor, H. Wicker, H. Meadows, C. Laurance, F. Stammers, J. T. Deeks, R. Bartholomew, H. and W. Sayward, and B. Owers, and right royally did they work under the direction of Mr. W. A. Smith, the treasurer, and Mr. W. F. Monk, the secretary, two officials of whom the Halstead F.A. may well be proud. The Queen's Hall is most admirably adapted for a show, and very snug and comfortable were the exhibits. Lord Desnhurst opened the show, and when we left everything promised a successful issue. Mr. G. H. Billett judged, and his awards were well received

NOR. YELL. MORECAMBE.

This society has this year started all on its own with a good show in the Albert Hall, Victoria street, on November 4th and 5th. Formerly the cage bird fanciers of Morecambe annually held their show in conjunction with the Morecambe F.A., which included other sections. The cage bird fancy is now strong enough in this district to go on its own, and so a good start has been made. Mr. Ireland, the hon. secretary, is not greedy, but likes a lot, and so he was anticipating 1,000 entries in 46 classes. Some 430 odd entries, however, did turn up, which is a very good start for first venture. The president's wife, Mrs. Snowden, kindly opened the show. The vice-president, Mr. Councillor Burnsheo, presided, and presented Mrs. Snowden with a handsome Norwich Canary and cage on behalf of the committee. There was a very good attendance of ladies and gentlemen, and we hope the Society had a bumping gate in the evening. Mr. Battye judged Norwich, Yorkshires, and Members' Novice classes; Mr. Ferguson the Borders and Selling; and Mr. Houlton the Gill, A.O.V., Hybrids, British, and Foreign classes. They all seem to have given satisfaction. Catalogues were on sale with awards in by 2.30 p.m., and all was going well.

CHELTENHAM.

Show held November 4th and 5th, and must be voted a success, there being an increase over last year in entries of about fifty, making a total of 510. The venue was the Drill Hall, and we certainly think it is the best place the society has ever held their show in, and this seemed to be the general opinion. The quality of the exhibits was excellent, the Crests and C.B. made a show in themselves, and were worth a long journey to see. Mr. Treasure again steered the ship, and we trust this year, when the voyage is finished, he will find himself in smooth water with a nice little cargo to land in the shape of a good cash balance. Mr. T. Heath judged Crests and C.B., Yorks., Members' and Sell. classes, Mr. J. H. Payne taking all others.

ARBROATH.

The annual show of the Arbroath Scotch Fancy C.B.C. was held on Oct. 31st, in the White Hart Hall, Kirk Square. The hall is all that could be desired for a cage bird show, being lighted on both sides, which was admirable. The entries were over last year's total, which says a lot for the management. Mr. J. S. Napier, the secretary, knows how to handle a show, and had everything well in hand. The president is Mr. Chas. Crockatt, vice-president, Mr. D. C. Lyall, treasurer, Miss Maggie Black, with a hard-working committee, had everything in A1 order. Judges were: For Scotch Fancies, Mr. J. Stewart (Glasgow), for Norwich, Mr. W. Hampton (Brechin), and for British and Foreign Mr. J. Lyon (Aberdeen).

Danysz Virus, the noted exterminator of rats and mice, has been awarded a silver medal at the Franco-British Exhibition.

I think the coloured plate issued with the double number the best I have ever seen.—JAMES STREDWICK (Wood Green, N.).

The report of Darlington Show omits to state that I won 3rd in the Clear Buff cock class, writes Mr. F. Coventry (Preston).

Kindly state that I have removed from Emanuel Street, to 376, Harrison Terrace, Brook Street, Preston, writes Mr. W. Sherrington.

The Bolton and Dis. O.S. have decided to hold their next annual open show on October 15th and 16th, 1909, writes Mr. J. Stringer, the secretary.

Please state that I have removed from Stephen's Road to 29, St. Andrew's Road, Preston, writes Mr. F. Coventry. Secretaries will please note.

The Show of the Hertford Fanciers' Association will take place on January 12th and 14th. Mr. C. A. House has been elected to judge the cage birds.

Lovers of the Scotch Fancy Canary will do well to note that the 32nd annual show of the Maryhill and Dis. O.C. takes place in Burgh Hall, Maryhill on November 7th.

The following is the list of points gained by our members in connection with Manchester Show, writes Mr. Wm. Adams, secretary of the Lancashire Canary Association:—Champion Section: Adams 18, Oldham 17, Garner 13, and Lowe 10. Novice Section: Brooks 8.

Members will please note change of meeting place for next meeting, writes Mr. F. E. Holden, secretary of the Bury and Dis. C.B.S., to the Bee Hive Inn, Bury.

Our entries are very short, writes Mr. J. Hibbitt, junr., secretary of the Oakham and Dis. F.S., and we are compelled to extend till Sunday morning (November 8th) first post.

The Hastings United C.B.S. are giving a class for hens in the novice Yorkshires, writes Mr. A. E. Godden the hon. secretary, the addition to be: Class 25a, hens any variety.

Your reports on the various shows, writes Mr. T. Gregson (Preston), are very interesting and accurate. I wish CAGE BIRDS yet further success. I greatly admire your excellent paper.

A printer's error occurs in our show catalogue, writes Mr. T. Smith, secretary of the Ilkeston C.B.S., Class 18. No. 1 should read 2nd prize and No. 2 in the same class 1st prize.

A very excellent sample of wild-seed mixtures reaches us from Mr. C. W. Bradbury, of Shalford, Guildford, and we can tho oughly recommend it to readers in need of such an article for birds.

Exhibitors will please note, writes Mr. Albert Smith, hon. secretary of the Southall F.S., that class 46 in our show schedule should read, any other species British; and class 47, and species foreign.

Crest exhibitors should note, writes Mr. G. T. H. Maggs, hon. secretary of the Bristol F.A. Show, that class 348 in our schedule should read: "Norwich, Crested, clear body, dark, clear, or grey crest, buff, cock."

Entries are disastrously few, writes Mr. G. M. Horsley, hon. secretary of the Malton, Norton and Dis. F.S. Show, only 50 have been received in 52 classes. Entries will be accepted up to first post on Monday, November 9th.

We hear that Mr. E. Cowling, of Morpeth, has sold his winning Yellow Norwich hen, at a good figure, to a noted exhibitor in the Midlands. This hen he bred himself, and she has won 8 firsts and 3 seconds in eleven outings.

Kindly announce in your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. John Smith (Hamburg), that I cannot send away any birds, etc., at present, as I have to go into a hospital about my chest. I shall drop you a line when I come out again.

At the time of writing I have only got in 189 entries in 47 open classes, writes Mr. G. T. H. Maggs, the hon. secretary of the Bristol F.A. Show. Considering what we offer this year, I really expected we should have been well supported.

We have not had a single complaint but a large number of congratulatory letters on the way the birds were returned from our show and the prompt payment of prize money, writes Mr. J. N. Jeffery, secretary of the Torbay O.S. (Paignton).

Mr. Jno. Grice, one of our old members, writes Mr. A. Goodall, secretary of the St. Helens O.S., has removed from Hanover Street to 126, Westfield Street, where he is opening a shop stocked with birds, etc., and where all old friends will be welcomed.

London and Counties O.A. Autumn Show, Friday and Saturday, November 13th and 14th, at the "Goat and Compasses," Euston Road, N.W., close to Portland Road Metropolitan Railway and Warren Street and Regent's Park Tube Stations.—(ADVT.)

I have had applications for my birds from Canada, South Africa, and all parts of the British Empire, writes Mr. L. Dykes breeder and exhibitor of Canaries, of Bradford. All of them mention CAGE BIRDS, which I think speaks well for its immense circulation.

Llanelly intend beating the record with their next schedule, writes Mr. Daniel John, the secretary, which will comprise no less than 72 classes, and we intend again trying for a record entry, as we will leave no stone unturned to that end, and it is only a one day's show.

Fanciers will be glad to know, writes Mr. Alex. Macdonald, joint secretary, of the City of Glasgow Show, that the disappearance of the Belgian cock was satisfactorily explained by the owner of the bird. Allow me to say that CAGE BIRDS deserves the greatest possible circulation and popularity.

The venue of our ninth annual exhibition, write Messrs. Slater and Turner, secretaries of the Matlock and Dis. Society Show, is the Assembly Rooms, Matlock, and not the Victoria Hall as printed on our entry forms. We may say that last year all prize money was paid within five days of the show.

Kindly announce, writes Mr. D. F. Robertshaw, that the partnership heretofore existing between Messrs. D. Robertshaw and A. Ross has been dissolved by mutual consent as and from October 27th. Will show secretaries kindly note when sending out schedules, that my address is 39, Norfolk Mount, Halifax.

We are guaranteeing prize money in full, write Messrs. Allsopp and Edmunds, secretaries of the Swindon and Dis. C.B.A. Show. This is our first show but our classification compares favourably with that of most of the older societies, and we hope exhibitors will show their appreciation by giving us a bumping entry.

Just a line to thank you on behalf of the Newcastle Society for the splendid report you have given us in CAGE BIRDS this week. It is simply grand, and our members are highly delighted with it. All prize money has been paid out. We are getting letters every day from exhibitors, thanking us for the quick dispatch of birds and the way they were nicely packed. In Mr. Currah we have a show manager second to none. The way he managed our late show was extraordinary, and exhibitors have him to thank.

I was more than pleased with the result of my advertisement in CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. H. O'Neile (Lurgan). I had letters and cards from all over the place. In passing I would just like to say that out of all the answers I had, only two sent stamps or cards for replies. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success.

Having obtained a new club-room at the Kirkstall Congregational Schoolroom, writes Mr. W. E. Whiteley, hon. secretary of the Kirkstall and Dis. C.B.S., a special meeting will be held there on November 7, when members are asked to try and be present. Those wishing to be eligible to compete in the coming members' show must join at once.

Sunderland Show (November 20th and 21st) certainly deserves the whole-hearted support of every keeper of Cinnamon Canaries in the Kingdom. Such a classification—10 classes in all, with ample provision for novice fanciers—ought to command for the officials a record entry, which their pluck in catering so thoroughly for this section of the Fancy highly merits.

I thank you on behalf of the Morpeth Society for the splendid report you gave of our show, writes Mr. E. Cowling, the hon. secretary. We are much obliged to you, and wish CAGE BIRDS all the success it so richly deserves. Am also delighted to say our show was quite a success in every respect. After paying all claims we find we have a nice balance on the right side.

TO READERS:

We shall next week issue a

and would once again impress upon all readers the necessity of ordering copies from their newsagents in advance if they would make certain of obtaining one. The demand for CAGE BIRDS still grows at a phenomenal pace, and this grand special issue will quite likely be early out of print.

In its pages will be found many splendid specially-written articles, containing a wealth of information on every side of the hobby. One contribution, on "Parrots, and their Successful Keeping," will meet, we think, with widespread acceptance, as it contains hints from one of our most practical living authorities on these popular birds. In addition to the array of articles and photographic and other illustrations, the issue will contain

A Charming Coloured Plate.

TO ADVERTISERS:

This is the season of quick sales, when buyers are ripe to purchase, and everyone with birds, appliances, etc., for disposal should send along their announcements early to ensure their appearance in this great special number. Remember: CAGE BIRDS special issues are record-breakers as introducers of business—sales are always a certainty from advertisements therein.

The closing date is Tuesday, November 10.

Post all advertisements early to reach us on that day certain, or we cannot guarantee insertion in this great Double Number.

Dulwich Show.—Have you got the schedule yet? If not, write at once (see show advertisement for address). No good bird should be absent from The Imperial Hall on November 24th and 25th. The prizes are not toys, but well worth winning, and the honour of a Dulwich win is an honour indeed. Novices have a splendid opportunity.—So support those who cater for you.—(ADVT.)

For the Swansea and Dis. C.B.A. Show, November 11th and 12th, we are unfortunately compelled to extend our date of closing through lack of entries, and will receive entries till first post on Monday, November 9th, writes Mr. Alf. Hitchings, secretary. We hope and trust this defect will be remedied, as exhibitors may depend on their birds receiving the greatest possible care.

I forgot to say in my advertisement of our show, writes Mr. Jas. Pollock, secretary, Larkhall C.B.A., that it was confined to members, and have got so many postcards asking for schedules that I am unable to reply to them individually. This proves the value of CAGE BIRDS as an advertising medium. Would you kindly let it be known through your columns why the schedules were not sent?

To the magnitude of the business controlled by Mr. W. Rudd, the noted fanciers' specialist, of Norwich, we have often had occasion to refer in the past. We have just had fresh and striking proof of this, for Mr. Rudd has forwarded for our perusal letters showing the enormous number of high-class Yorkshire Canaries he has recently purchased from well-known breeders of this variety, and no doubt these recent acquisitions will have the effect of still further increasing the volume of Mr. Rudd's trade.

Arrangements have been made for birds entered in the S.Y.C.C. Trophy Competition at Wimbledon, on November 17th and 18th, writes Mr. H. Smith, the secretary, to be forwarded from there in time for judging at the S.Y.C.C. Cup Competition at Worcester, on November 19th. If exhibitors sending entries to Wimbledon will kindly state this on their entry forms, the birds will be forwarded.

We have received hearty congratulations from many exhibitors, writes Mr. A. E. Allen, vice-chairman of committee of the Ramsgate and Dis. F. & F.S., on the promptness with which we paid out our prize money, all being settled within nine days of the show, and on the impartial manner in which the judges did their work. Exhibitors wish to publicly thank Messrs. Do Winton, Harrower and Gibbs for the satisfaction given by their judging.

Our committee wish to thank all the exhibitors who supported our late show, writes Mr. F. Howes, hon. secretary of the Wolverhampton and Dis. C.B.S., and for their help in making the same such a great success. When we appealed to them the day after entries were advertised to close we did not average 3 per class. I mention this as some may think we asked for help when we did not need it. Many birds changed hands. Mr. Hall's Unflighted Buff Norwich fetched £5 15s., Mr. Dipple's Yellow £3, Mr. Wright's hen Yorkshire £2 10s., and Mr. Wilsdon's winning Roller £3 3s. Altogether the sales realised £20 10s.

Good Business at Liverpool.

The following telegraphic message reaches us at the moment of going to press from the secretaries of the Liverpool O.S. Show, held this week end: "Eight hundred entries; 300 Greens. Our society's thanks to CAGE BIRDS and exhibitors.—METCALF AND HILLMAN."

Something "Extra" in Yorkshires.

We hear this week of an unflighted yellow Yorkshire down in the South, which is a regular "eye-opener." Our informant is well qualified to speak on that point, for he is a Yorkshireman himself, and one of the best-known judges of to-day. He declares that this bird deserves the name of "non such," for it is a "reight 'un." Who is the lucky owner? We offer no prize for the correct solution.

An Electric Drying Cage.

We have 108 special prizes for our forthcoming annual show, a number, I believe, unparalled for any club show, writes Mr. V. Wynn, hon. secretary City and Suburban A.C.B. We are also the proud possessors of an electric drying cage, which will be used for the first time on Monday next, at the washing competition to be held then, and I am told that it is the first of its kind ever used in the Fancy. It has been presented to us by Mr. F. Wyse, the inventor and maker, who claims that this electrical appliance will provide any given temperature from 40 to 130 degrees by one movement.

Norwich Plainhead Club.

I have just received a letter from Mr. Davis asking me to publish in CAGE BIRDS his answer to me respecting the Amateur Norwich Gold Medal winner at Accrington:—"Mr. A. G. Davis was seen by the hon. secretary of the N.P.C. respecting the above, as requested by the members at their meeting at Accrington, and the judge is of opinion that the bird he awarded the medal to was the best in the section." Respecting the English and Scotch N.P.C. contest, at Glasgow, I trust members will not forget this event, the entries closing this week end. The contest is open to all members of both clubs.—J. RAYNES, hon. sec.

A Large Consignment of Canaries

The White Star liner "Arabic," which sailed for New York on October 29th, is taking out 2,000 Norwich Canaries. Special accommodation has been provided for the Canaries in a warm portion of the ship, and they will be specially looked after and attended to during the voyage. The forwarding of Canaries to New York by the White Star boats has become a season trade. Several consignments are sent out each year, numbering between 15,000 and 20,000 Canaries. Shipments of the songsters to the United States have been practically going on since 1888. The singing of the birds in America is much appreciated, and they command a very ready sale.

Echoes from Glasgow.

That the Southern Confined Members were busy last Saturday; that they had a most creditable show; that several purchases were made at average prices; that the enterprising Dennistoun member led the way with a grand Yellow cock; that secretary Fleming had a share of the honours; that he has struck into a good seam; that the Corkerbill team was equal to expectations; that the knocking-out of the tail feathers four weeks ago fairly put a good hen out of the cup; that the cup winner is rather small, but all alert and won; that it was very satisfactory to Mr. Blue; that regular shewing steadies a Scotch Fancy; that winners of the Southern Confined could have shifted some of the City winners; that winners at the Southern Confined will be open show winners; that club members make a mistake in keeping up their birds for club shows; that the Southern Confined has taken a new lease of existence; that secretary Fleming and president Bullions work hard; that a lot of new members will join; that it is a grand competition to be in; that the surviving founder of the Southern Confined, Mr. McLellan, visited the show; that he was proud of the 1908 gatherings; that the Southern was a big success, numerically and financially; that everybody was pleased, especially winners.—OLD BURGHER.

At the Queen's Park and Dis. C.B.A. Show, to be held November 13th and 14th, there will be a class provided for breeding cages made by members, which, no doubt, will be an interesting feature of the event.

The balance-sheet and report of the first year's working of the Dipton and Dis. C.B.S. reaches us from the secretary, Mr. Matt. Mason, and shows a balance to the good of £3 15s. 5d. The Annual Show is to be held on December 5th.

I find you credit me with a win in the Buff class at Battersea. This should not be so. I only sent two Norwich, a Yellow hen and an Unflighted; both were first. I have sold my winning Ticked Yellow Norwich cock back to Mr. Midgley, who bred him.—J. W. Rennie (Andover).

Mr. B. Hollins informs us that he has taken over the business at 9, George Street, Hull, under his personal supervision, and has decided to close the Harrogate depot, and transfer the entire stock to Hull, where there are much larger premises with separate show rooms and stock rooms for different kinds of live stock.

I was very much surprised on opening my Cage Birds this week to see the sketch of my Sulphur-Breasted Toucan depicted therein. I must say the sketch does great credit to Mr. H. Norman, the artist. The bird has taken 1st and special since at Cambridge. I wish Cage Birds the success it deserves.—W. Smith, of Messrs. Smith and Son (Luton).

The death of my father, writes Mr. Alfred Thomas (Gloucester), occurred at Ardath, Hampton Park, Hereford, on October 30th. He was thrown out of his trap while returning from a days' shooting, and falling on his elbow completely shattered his arm. But the wound was so healthy that the doctors were almost sure the arm would not have to be amputated, and at his death none were more astonished than they. Death was due to heart failure.

I must thank you and your artist for the life-like reproduction of my winners last week, writes Mr. R. B. Tope (Plymouth). The Clear body dark Crest was 4th at the last Palace Show. The Green Crest hen, second at Plymouth, is only 5½ months. The Buff Crestbred stood 2nd at Plymouth and Exeter, and will, I think, be better yet.

As our forthcoming show on November 19th is our first open one, writes Mr. A. E. Bishop, hon. secretary of the Worcester and Dis. C.B.S., fanciers will please send us a bumping entry. We have secured the best hall in Worcester and the services of a popular judge. We are giving special prize cards with the Worcester coat of arms on. I have made all necessary arrangements with Mr. H. Smith, hon. secretary of the Wimbledon C.B.S., for all exhibits intended for the S.Y.C.C. competition here to reach us in time for judging.

I sent three birds to Newcastle Show, a distance of 150 miles, and on entering them I mentioned that if they were not returned by a train an hour before the show closed, they would be lying at a distant station all night. I met the stated train, and my pleasure was great on seeing the case arrive. On getting home my satisfaction was increased on beholding by birds wrapped up, and the case so secured that cages had not altered their position a bit during the journey. I therefore wish to thank the stewards and secretaries, for this gives confidence to exhibitors.—R. D. McMurno (Heywood).

A Pat on the Back.

Lady Doughty, writing on "Bird Culture" in the "Grimsby Telegraph," recently, remarks: "A bird is a cheap hobby—every bird is. And when we can afford the time and the small expense of a large aviary, the reward repays one over and over again. The Grimsby Ornithological Society deserves every encouragement. It is making brave efforts to find an increasing welcome in the town, and by its recent interesting collection of choice varieties, is educating the taste of local fanciers and bird lovers in the best class of charming domestic pets."

THE PORTRAYAL OF PRIZE WINNERS.

Do not forget that all London Shows are visited.

For the present show season we have made such arrangements as will enable any exhibitor in the country to have his birds portrayed either upon the front cover or in the inner pages of Cage Birds. Mr. H. Norman, the premier artist of the Fancy, intends visiting a number of large provincial cage-bird shows, where his services will be freely available (by arrangement with us) for the purpose of sketching prize winners of every variety. A list of such shows, with the dates, is herewith appended.

How to Give Your Instructions.

Orders for the sketching of exhibits should be placed at once with our Manager, at 154 Fleet Street, London, E.C., who will be very pleased to communicate terms, etc. The original drawing will be given to you after it has been reproduced. Exhibitors can place their orders for sketching birds conditionally upon their winning a prize. Should they be unsuccessful, the order will be treated as not having been given.

REMEMBER; The next Shows are Carlisle Nov. 11 and 12, Preston Nov. 13 and Nottingham Nov. 14.

Write us at once to sketch your winners there; or, after you know you have won, write or wire Mr. Norman, c/o the show, or interview him in the show hall.

The List of Shows Mr. Norman Attends This Year.

In addition to the shows given underneath, our artist will be attending all London fixtures appearing in our Show Dates Fixed column, including, of course, the Great National Crystal Palace Show, which we hope to illustrate on just as extensive a scale this year as we have in the past, and, if possible, more fully than ever before.

November 11th and 12th.—Carlisle.
November 13th.—Preston.
November 14th.—Nottingham.
November 27th.—Leeds.
December 11th.—Gateshead.
December 31st.—Edinboro' (Scottish National).

The balance-sheet of the Queen's Park and Dis. C.B.A. for the half-year ending September 30th, reaches us from the secretary, Mr. J. C. Birch, and is a very satisfactory one, reflecting credit on the management, over £10 being in hand. The first feather show also came out with a profit.

We have again engaged at a considerable expense the New Corn Exchange, North Church Side, Hull, for our Open Show, on November 20th and 21st, writes Mr. F. F. Potter, hon. secretary of the City of Hull C.B.S. This room is the finest in the North of England for a cage-bird show, being well lighted by day and electric light at night, and it is absolutely free from draughts, so that exhibitors can with confidence send us the best exhibits.

The October issue of "Bird Notes"—the journal of the Foreign Bird Club—is full of interesting matter. Mrs. K. Leslie Miller contributes some instructive notes on the Violet Parrot in captivity, which are accompanied by a most artistic and life-like coloured plate by Mr. H. Goodchild. The article on "Aviary Birds I have met with in their Natural State," by Mr. Douglas Dewar, F.Z.S., is continued, Indian Doves being dealt with. Mr. E. J. Brook writes on "Lories and Lorikeets," and Mr. W. T. Page on "Some Recent Acquisitions." Other articles are by Mr. W. E. Teschemaker on "Crested Ducks" (nicely illustrated), M. Aronstein on the "Nesting of Virginian Cardinals, etc.," and J. H. Henstock on the "Spice-bird and Bengalee Hybrid"—all of which afford capital reading.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc. of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his question for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES.

Follow my Lead.

Miss Reed.—There is always room for suspicion when several birds die off in quick succession, and for your own satisfaction you would be well advised to have a post-mortem made if another one dies soon. Still, I do not think you will find the cause is the usual dreaded plague as you seem to suspect. I might go further and say I feel sure it is not, unless you know that the room has been used as a bird-room by the previous tenant, and, in that case, if the disease had been in the room in recent times, even though it has been standing vacant since, it would naturally put quite a different complexion on the matter. By all means, use the second hen you refer to for light muling next year.

Evil Communications.

"Dock."—Although I should scarcely consider the singing of the Skylark as an evil to be guarded against, in my own mind there can be little doubt that a well-trained Roller Canary would derive no benefit from such an associate. The highly-trained Roller is always somewhat apt to forsake his sweet, low, artificial melody for high-pitched notes, and the pitch of the Skylark's natural note would prove an immense incentive for the Roller to get a stave or two higher. In the case of a common untrained Roller, whose note is often all too piercing, there would be little risk of the Skylark teaching it anything worse than it knew. Indeed the Roller would probably improve upon the Skylark's note. But with highly trained, low-singing Rollers I would not advise you to run the risk of associating them with Skylarks.

Cause of Death.

Miss Reed.—Only a post-mortem examination could discover with any certainty the cause of the bird's death. But judging from its appearance, and the description you give of its illness, I have no doubt whatever that it died from acute pneumonia, the result of chill in some way—perhaps from a cold bath taken just when a cold snap was coming on, or from a draught from a window temporarily opened to air the room. It may also be that the present room is colder, and more exposed than the last one, which would naturally make the bird more susceptible just at this time, when they are finishing the moult. Your treatment of the bird could only have been improved upon by adding twenty drops of brandy and five of sweet spirits of nitre to the drinking water when you put her near the fire, and giving her two drops of a mixture of equal parts of brandy and glycerine direct in the beak every two or three hours. This might have helped the bird to win, but in a severe attack of this complaint, recovery is always a mere chance.

The Brink of Despair.

Moffat, Dumfrieshire.—Four months is certainly a long time for the bird to be moulting, and still to show no signs of stopping, but considering the position he has been kept in nearly all the time it is not much to be wondered at, so you need not yet despair of bringing him round. The removal to the colder room is the cause of the renewed energy of the moult, but still he will be better in this new position if it is quite free from draughts. Add a fourth part of summer rape to the Canary for a staple diet, and twice a week give a few grains of hemp. Every second day for a fortnight give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake or egg-food, with five drops of sherry mixed in it and sprinkled with a few grains of maw seed. Give a little green-food three times a week, and, if available, a mealworm a day for a week or two would be invaluable. In each two tablespoonfuls of drinking water give twenty drops of chemical food every second day for a fortnight, and on the alternate days give six drops of tincture of steel in the water. Give the steel on the days when you are not giving egg or sponge cake. The quantity of steel you have been giving is very excessive.

A Lingering Illness.

D.M.—It would have elucidated the matter if you had caught the bird, and looked for any apparent cause of the swollen breast that might exist. In the absence of this knowledge, and without seeing the bird, I can only suggest that it is due to fat, and that the bird is in a generally overfed and plethoric condition of body. Try following treatment for a few weeks, and note result. Keep bird in a fairly large cage, where it can get plenty of exercise, but do not overheat it. So long as you avoid draughts and great variations of temperature it will do best just on the cool side. Let it have plenty of clean gritty sand always accessible, and moderate the diet previously advised as follows: For staple diet give plain Canary seed only, with a liberal supply of green-food daily, and twice only in one week give it half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake, and twice in the next week a half teaspoonful of summer rape. Give no other extras in the way of food for a few weeks. In the drinking water give five drops each of syrup of buckthorn, and dandelion juice every second day for a week, and pure water on the alternate days, and during the next week five drops of aromatic sulphuric acid and three of essence of aniseed every second day, and, again, pure water on the alternate days. This two weeks' course may be repeated again and again in the same order as often as seems necessary. If the bird begins to improve upon it continue until it is quite recovered and active again.

A Few Hints.

D. E. Perry.—Yours is rather a tall order compressed into a small space. To answer it satisfactorily would fill many columns. But we will see what can be done in the body of the paper in the near future. Meantime, why not get the exhaustive treatise on the subject entitled "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages," price 2s. 3d. from this office, and also look up the back numbers for last February, where you will find several columns in the "Novices' Notebook" on the subject. Many thanks for your kind remarks anent the paper.

Always Eating.

"Canary."—The mopy and sluggish condition of the hen is undoubtedly due to being blocked up with fat. Limit the diet to plain Canary seed only for a few weeks and give a liberal supply of green-food daily. Keep in a fairly large cage, and if she has several companions in with her to keep her "moving on" so much the better. In the drinking water give her ten drops of syrup of buckthorn daily for a week, and after this give twenty drops of whiskey, four of aromatic sulphuric acid, and a piece of gum arabic the size of a small pea, in the water every second day for a week, and on the alternate days give twenty drops of chemical food. Stir the first-named mixture until the gum is dissolved. At the end of the second week you may begin over again and repeat the two weeks' treatment in the same order if it appears necessary. Keep the cage clean, free from red-mites, and supply gritty sand regularly.

Bird-room and Accommodation.

W. A.—As the window in your birdroom is so small and badly placed, I should certainly advise you to have a small top light put in, with a portion of it made to open for ventilation. But see that it is made thoroughly waterproof, and arranged on the top to throw off rain water quickly, and not allow it to drip through into the room. A wooden shutter to fold over when required on the outside would be advisable, and of course, a cover of wire netting underneath should not be dispensed with. With this arrangement the side wall under the eaves would have a fair amount of light, and you could make your large stock flight along this wall, and reserve the wall forming back of dwelling house for your stock of breeding cages. You would then have a central passage along the whole length of the house for attending to them, and would probably be able to add a dozen more compartments to your present total. As you are keeping the birds in cages the number you would keep in the house depends upon the number of cages you have space for. One bird to each compartment of a breeding cage, or one to each square foot of floor space in the flight might safely be kept, providing the cages were kept quite clean, and free ventilation allowed.

A Question of Warmth.

A Beginner.—Providing your shed is in a fairly well sheltered position, and your birds have hitherto not been coddled with excessive heat, I should, at the risk of perpetrating a "bull," say that the best method of heating it was to not heat it at all. So long as the temperature does not go below forty-five degrees there is absolutely no necessity to apiply any additional heat, and an ordinary stock of healthy Canaries are quite able to stand considerably more cold than this with impunity. The hot-water bottle method you now employ would probably keep up this degree of heat in all ordinary conditions of weather. But you should not rely solely upon your own sensations of heat or cold. Get a small thermometer to hang on the wall, and be guided by its readings. As long as it keeps above forty-five you have nothing to fear. Of course, you must have one that is a reliable working instrument. If you still desire to heat the shed a set of hot-water pipes, with the boiler and furnace placed outside, is by far the best and safest method for you. The ventilation must also be free and ample when you employ heat.

Crest Going Blind.

D. H. H. H.—I am really sorry I cannot hold out any hope of your being able to do the bird's sight the least amount of good. The pity of it is that it is so often the cream of one's stock that becomes blind in this way. If you keep the bird in the same cage, or at least in one of the same size and pattern always, which should, of course, be a fair sized one, it will find its way about, and to its food and water quite easily. But you must keep a watch on it to see that it does not become infested with grey lice, as they are very apt to do when blind, doubtless on account of the toilet not being performed with so much vigour. If you are really anxious to try some remedy, get a chemist to mix you six grains of red oxide of mercury in half an ounce of spermaceti ointment, and put a tiny piece of this—about the size of a pin's head—in each eye three times a week, holding the bird a few seconds whilst the ointment melts, and helping it to run around and underneath the lids. Be careful with the ointment as it is poisonous. Shall be glad to hear result. It would also be as well to snip off the ends of the crest feathers that immediately overhang the eye.

Wanted the Elixir of Life.

W. Smith.—It is difficult to guess what is wrong with the bird as you merely say that it does not seem to have any life in it, and yet it eats and drinks well. There is not much wrong with your feeding, except that I do not think a regular supply of bread and milk to a healthy but lazy bird is likely to do it any good. It is too fattening to use in this way, and it is quite probable this bird's lifeless condition is due to being blocked up with fat. Try the following treatment for a fortnight, or a month, and note result. Discontinue the bread and milk altogether, and also the rape, for the first week, and let the diet consist of plain Canary seed only, with a daily supply of green food for one week. During this time give twenty drops of whisky, ten of glycerine, and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence in its drinking water every second day. At the end of the week add five drops of aromatic sulphuric acid to the water for one day. Next week add to its dietary a few grains of hemp one day, the second day after this half a teaspoonful of rape seed, and again the second day after a half teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake. In the drinking water during this week give five drops of aromatic sulphuric acid one day, next day five drops of tincture of steel, and plain water on the third day. Repeat this over again and again in the same order. The dietary given for this week may be continued indefinitely, but the medicines should be discontinued as soon as the bird seems well enough.

A Question of Management.

Aaron.—It is mainly a question of general management, or rather mismanagement, that is the cause of your troubles. You would do well to study the replies treating on this subject, or get one of our little handbooks, and see where you go wrong. In a general way see that the birds are quite free from draughts, chills, and the worrying attacks of red mites. The latter especially you should look to, as I imagine your birds already suffer from the presence of this pest. Feed on a staple diet of canary seed only, and give separately a small teaspoonful of summer rape twice a week, and on two other days a few grains, only, of hemp. On each of the remaining days give a spray of green food. No. 1.: Limit this bird to the above diet solely for the next month, and during the first week give him as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence in his water every second day. After that, give five drops of tincture of steel every second day for a week, and on the alternate days give twenty drops of chemical food, continuing the latter for a fortnight. No. 2: The barenecs may be due to red mite. Examine cage well for this pest, and eradicate them if any are found. Keep it fairly warm, in an even temperature, and give fifteen drops of chemical food daily for two or three weeks. You may also give it half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake two or three times a week. No. 3: Keep these birds also in a warm place, free from draughts or great variations, and give twelve drops of glycerine, and five each of syrup of squills and paregoric in the water two days in every three until the sneezing has quite disappeared.

Stopped Moulting.

W.G.B.—In a case of this kind a vapour bath is frequently of much service, so you need not fear steaming her, which is just the same thing. All you have to do is to guard carefully against draughts afterwards, as the bird will be susceptible to chill for a time. Place the cage over a pail of hot water, and cover all over with a woollen shawl or blanket for ten minutes or so, then place it in a warm corner, and keep the cage covered for a day or two. A box cage is much the best pattern to use. Feed on a mixture of three parts canary to one part of rape as a staple, and a small teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake, with five drops of sherry in it every second day, and on the alternate days half a teaspoonful of maw seed. In the drinking water give twenty drops of whisky and a few shreds of saffron daily for three or four days. This should start the moult in a few days, and then all you need do is to see that it gets no chill, and not allow it to get overheated at one time and correspondingly cold at another. Only give a bath during nice mild weather. Continue giving the maw as above until towards the end of the moult, then discontinue it, and give a few grains of linseed twice a week instead. When the head is moulting begin to give twenty drops of chemical food in each ounce of drinking water until it is quite fine again.

Hen Bare of Feathers.

D.R.—Although you say you have frequently cleaned the cage as a remedy against red mites, I feel almost sure this is the chief cause of the bird's condition. Perhaps you clean the cage, but omit to give the same attention to the hook or nail on which it hangs, and it frequently happens, especially in the case of a bell-top metal cage, that this is the chief harbouring place for the pest. If the cage is all metal, and its size will allow of it, immerse it for a few minutes in a copper of scalding hot water in which a little Jeyes Fluid has been stirred, and at the same time thoroughly overhaul the place where the cage hangs, and disinfect it with a stronger solution of Jeyes. Offer the bird a bath frequently to which a little essense of quassia has been added, and before placing it in the cage sprinkle a few drops over the bird, or put a little in a scent spray, and scatter it over the bird. This will probably make it take to the bath voluntarily. Your feeding is not good. For a staple give a mixture of three parts canary to one part summer rape. Twice a week give a few grains of hemp, and twice a week a small teaspoonful of egg food or crushed sponge cake. On each of the remaining days give a spray of green food. Do not omit a regular supply of gritty sand. In the drinking water add as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, and five drops of lemon juice every second day for a week, and after that give ten drops of chemical food daily for a fortnight.

A Cure for Scurvy.

J.W.S.—As you say the bird has scurvy on the head and neck which has caused the feathers to drop out, I presume the bald patches are covered with some kind of scurf or powdery deposit. It would have helped me had you described the colour and appearance of this condition, and also said how you were feeding the bird. I suspect the diet and general health of the bird are mainly responsible for its condition. In the absence of more definite data to go on, I can only advise you in a general way. However, try the following treatment for a month, and if the bird is not considerably better write again, and give more details of your management prior to this, and of the bird's appearance. Feed as advised to "D.R." in this issue, with the exception of the hemp. Instead of the hemp give a small piece of bread scalded in milk slightly dusted over with flour of sulphur, and sprinkled with maw seed. Give a spray of chickweed, if obtainable, or the flower heads of groundsel daily. Keep its cage clean, well strewn with gritty sand, and be sure it is quite free from red mites. Keep it in a fairly warm place, and give it a bath as often as it will bathe. In each two tablespoonfuls of drinking water add as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence and five drops of lemon juice every second day for a week. Next week give twenty drops of chemical food every day. After this, repeat the two week's treatment in the same order. Twice each week catch the bird and anoint the bare places with a little warm olive oil, but do not dnub it on to smear the surrounding feathers.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Concerning Yellowhammers.

H.V.—It only seems a week or so ago that I gave full instructions for feeding Buntings. None of these birds is "any good for Muling purposes," as you put it; that is to say, they have not yet been proved to have bred. True, we have heard of "Yellowhammer-Canary Mules," but I have yet to see the youngsters I could accept as genuine specimens of this Hybrid. Don't be discouraged from trying, though, for I can assure you that any actual Mules produced would be of very special value. As regards feeding, the only "stock mixture" you will need is plain Canary seed. Few will eat any quantity of other seeds, though now and again small oats, wild seed mixture, rape, cracked hemp, coarse oatmeal, maw, and one or two other seeds will be picked over, and a few eaten, but not sufficient to warrant their inclusion in a "stock mixture." To make up a little variety in the diet, it is best to give a feed of soaked ants' eggs, frequently, and live insect food (mealworms, flies, scoured gentles, small beetles, and grubs generally) according to season. Fresh (dive) ants' eggs are relished exceedingly. "Shop" ants' eggs (get the best quality only) are well liked if soaked in a little new milk, drained on a cloth, and then given the birds. Many Finches, too, appreciate them when prepared in this way. It is well to mix a sprinkling of a good insectivorous food among the ants' eggs, gradually increasing the quantity, as in this way Buntings (other species, too) can be got to eat it readily; and it is very good for them. Green-food these birds are not keen on, but you can always offer them a sprig of whatever you may happen to have in the place. Corn Buntings will usually eat a little seeding green-food" (grasses, shepherd's-purse, etc.), and Reed Buntings, etc.

Siskin Queer.

F. Yardley.—Probably your Siskin is a trifle too fat—a common complaint with the species—and has a touch of "indigestion," or "liver." A mild dose or two of fluid magnesia would no doubt put matters right. Stir a small teaspoonful into two tablespoonfuls of drinking water, giving three such doses on alternate days, plain water in between. You do not say how you are feeding, but the diet should be plain—canary, teazle, summer rape, and charlock only, with a little mixed seed occasionally as a treat. Let the bird have a fair supply of green-food, too (the reply to "J.L." may interest you on this point), and a little ripe fruit if it will take it. A thistle head or two, if you happen to have it by you, would provide it with some amusement.

Places on the Neck.

A. Gibson.—It is not easy to determine the nature of the "swellings" on the neck of the Linnet from the particulars contained in your letter. If they are of a hard nature when touched, then well shake together half a teaspoonful of glycerine and a teaspoonful of colourless tincture of iodine. Take a tiny camel-hair pencil-brush, and paint the places twice daily (morning and evening), with this mixture. Don't let it go on the surrounding parts; use it sparingly. If the places merely seem like "air-blisters," then prick them with a needle, and afterwards anoint the place gently but thoroughly with boracic ointment. Probably a dose or two of fluid magnesia would do him a deal of good; a teaspoonful in two tablespoonfuls of drinking water. Two doses, on alternate days. Note other replies this week respecting the feeding.

Treatment of Linnets.

J.L.—This is dealt with in another reply this week. As your birds are kept in a cold room throughout the winter, you can certainly allow a part of hemp in the stock mixture between now and the return of the summer. Personally, I always give my Linnets a little hemp right through the moult, and continue it right through the cold, wintry season. If anything it helps to darken their coats, usually a desirable point, and it certainly helps to keep them up during the strain of the moult, and yet throws into song afterwards. It is not always easy to get green-food out of doors in the winter, but it may easily be provided by the fancier himself, in his own house. All that is needed is a shallow box (a chocolate or sweet box from the confectioner's answers well) which should be lined with light soil, or even bird-sand will do. Damp this well, then sow it thickly with summer (German) rape seed. Kept in a warm room, and always moist, the rape soon sprouts, and the seedlings can be cut off with the scissors when an inch or two long, and given to the birds, who appreciate same highly. By having one or two boxes, a constant supply can be ensured.

The Six Best Softbills for Singing.

S.Y.—You ask "which are the six best softbills for singing, "placed according to merit." That is a question no one could satisfactorily answer—that is, not to satisfy everybody. We do not all think alike, my friend; neither do all birds of the same species sing as well as each other. To take a familiar bird, the Linnet, as an example, some sing a very "wooden" sort of song, disjointed, and full of harsh notes, whereas others are delightfully free and mellow in their music. The same sort of thing is found in Nightingales. As regards the "order of merit," some bird-lovers prefer the song of the Song Thrush to that of the Blackbird, while others (myself included), do not. Who is to decide between them? Then, again, it is easier to get song from some captive birds than it is from others—take Nightingale and Blackbird, as an instance. Indoors, too, I prefer the song of the Woodlark to that of the Skylark, for it is less shrill and "ear-splitting"; outdoors, I should reverse this. To bring this matter to a head, however, I will say that I should choose as the three best small softbills, the Nightingale, Garden Warbler, and Blackcap Warbler (though there are other really beautiful singers—the Willow Warbler, for instance), and as the four best large softbills—the Blackbird, Song Thrush, Skylark, and Woodlark (I make no pretence of placing the latter four "in order"). I have both a Gale and a Garden Warbler who sing freely, and I can tell you it would be very difficult to imagine anything sweeter in the way of bird-music. The former is warbling away close to my elbow as I write these lines, and it is close on the "witching hour." I feed on the lines advised "Peter B." this week.

Feeding Linnet for Song and Muling.

G.C.—You should read the chapter on the Linnet in the "British Bird Manual," price 1s. 1d., from CAGE BIRDS office. The Linnet is best fed on the following lines; at least, this is how I feed my own, with the best of results, both as regards song and muling. Contest singers have cages and methods entirely their own, and you would need to join (or attend) a singing club to gain an insight into them. A good stock seed mixture is: Canary three pints, teazle two pints, summer rape, charlock and linseed one pint each. In the winter, and during the moult, one pint of hemp should be added to the stock mixture. A feed of maw and niger, and a good wild seed mixture can be given frequently (varied) by way of a change. Let them have a little green-food, especially rape seedlings, in the winter (see reply to "J.L." this week), and ripe seeding shepherd's purse, chickweed, plantain and groundsel freely in the summer. Many good makers put up a special Linnet (or Finch) mixture in packets, and a feed of this occasionally makes an acceptable varintion from the ordinary stock mixture. As regards bringing them on to song quickly after the moult, the great "secret" is to give them plenty of best old hemp, and crack it lightly, so that they feed well of it. Also put in the "sidepan" daily, a teaspoonful of the following mixture, which I may modestly say is my own "patent," and will bring Finches of all kinds into singing and muling condition quicker than anything else I know: Two ounces each of gold of pleasure, mustard (the golden yellow seed), niger, sesame, and thistles, one ounce each of dandelion, maw, cornflower and lettuce. It is the finest "wild seed mixture," or "Tit Bit" or "Refresher," (call it what you will) that I know, and there is no waste—except that Goldies, for one bird, do not eat the mustard, though Linnets, etc., delight in it.

Muling Matters.

Sakubona. 1, I could have answered this much more easily if you had stated what sort of Mules you desired to breed light or dark. If the latter, then big, well-built Norwich-type hens, heavily-variegated yellows for choice, are not to be beaten. A good coloured Cinnamon hen, or Lancashire hen, or short-feathered Crest-bred hens are also excellent yellows where possible, and substance always to be kept in view. The above will suit either cock Goldfinch, Linnet, or Greenfinch. For light muling the matter is more difficult, as to "spot" likely types of hens requires an experienced eye—a certain peculiarity in colour is the pride of some fanciers, but to describe same understandably on paper is impossible. If one can get a hen or two from a known light Muling strain, then that is unquestionably the thing to do. But beware of "sib-bred" hens so often put up for sale in speciously worded advertisements. The next best hen is a pink-eyed one (probably she will have to be of Yorkshire type), and she should be a clear bred from clear stock, or at most only lightly marked. I like the underline to be clear myself. 2, I do not know of such a work. 3, Yes; a this-year Greenfinch will be quite suitable for muling purposes next spring.

About Goldfinches.

Anxious Beginner.—When I was an "anxious beginner" myself, I read all the books on the bobby I possibly could. You would be well advised to follow the same course. In the "Hardbill" section of the "British Bird Manual" (post free 1s. 1d. from this office) most of your questions respecting Goldfinches are gone into at greater length than I can possibly give to them. Why not read this book? The cage I like myself is that known in the trade as the "Finch Stock Cage," up-to-date cage-makers will supply it. It is illustrated in the above book. The breeding of Goldfinches in captivity is not at all impossible, though the uncertainty as to whether the hen will properly fulfil her maternal duties and successfully rear the young, makes it a hard feat to compass. Hand-reared birds, or birds reared under a Canary hen, would be the best to try with, though very steady cage-moulted birds would also be likely subjects. The cage should be about 36 inches long by 20 high, by 16 from back to front. As regards diet, "the proof of the pudding lies in the eating," they say, and that your diet of niger, hemp and teazle mixed in equal parts was to the liking of your Greypates is proved by the way they have thrived upon it. A very good and trustworthy mixture the above makes, too, as my own experience amply confirms. When adult, you should add some Canary seed, and a little linseed to it. For fresh-caught (especially young) birds it is best to lightly crack the hemp, and to offer a little lightly-cracked safflower seed, too.

Brevities.

Colours for Show Cages (Enquirer).—The best colour I know of for the wires and inside woodwork of the show cages for a Greenfinch and hen Bullfinch, is a very pale blue. Some exhibitors use an exceptionally dark and rich green, and this answers admirably also.

Sugar for the Bird (G. D. O.).—I believe a lump of sugar between the cage wires is absolutely useless to any Goldfinch—probably to all other birds as well. Have never given it myself (modesty compels me to refrain from mentioning how many thousands of Goldies I have kept), nor do I know anyone else who recommends it. Try cuttlefish instead. Only in the song is "a little bit of sugar for the bird" a decidedly good thing.

Identity of Bird (John Appleby). — You are another bird-lover who has become the owner of a Great Tit, sometimes called the Oxeye Tit. See several replies last week.

Sex of Blackcap (J. C.).—If your Blackcap Warbler has a dense black cap, it is a cock. If the crown of the head is a rusty brown, however, it is a hen.

Parts; also Charlock Seed (J. R. B. B.). — When I speak of "parts," I always mean parts by measure—a breakfast-cup, for instance, when full, representing one part. I know of no satisfactory substitute for charlock seed. It is quite a common seed, and should be easily obtainable.

A Freak Goldfinch (A Beginner).—If the bird is genuine (and your letter leaves no doubt as to this) then it is well worth exhibiting. I know of a freak Goldfinch which had its blaze extending over the top of its head, and well down its back. A well-known Leicester fancier has it set-up. The yellow, too, ran over its wings and into the back.

Linnet Ailing (J. M. A.).—It is weakness. Feed well, on lines advised "G. C.," this week. As medicine give Parrish's Chemical Food (from any good chemist), a teaspoonful to each two tablespoonfuls of drinking water, in a glass or pot drinker only. Keep it up for 14 to 21 days, at least.

A Bare Place (W. Smith).—Your feeding is not good. See reply to "G. C.," this week. Anoint the bare spot twice daily (morning and evening) with a tiny smear of sulphur ointment, obtained from a good chemist. I presume you are quite sure the bird is not being pestered by red-mite?

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S., M.B.N.H.S.

Silverbills Bald.

N.J.H.—The birds are possibly moulting, but they are also plucking each other; put in one of your wire divisions, and keep each bird separate till the plumage is renewed. For one day make the drinking water just saline with Epsom Salts, follow this by making the water the colour of pale port wine with Parrish's Chemical Food, and continue this for some time. Keep a piece of clean cuttlefish in the cage. Catch the birds up, and rub a little clean vaseline over the bare parts, but do not grease what plumage they have. If there are any sore or raw parts, lightly anoint these with a little zinc or spermaceti ointment. Keep a little ripe apple between the bars of the cage in lieu of green-food. Keep them out of draught, but let them have a bath every other day, except during very severe weather. It is natural; you simply see the crop through the naked skin. Let them have canary, white and spray millet seeds, also if they will eat it, a little slightly damped crumbled sponge cake.

About Budgerigars.

"Sirac."—(1) As your birds are indoors, it will not, of course, do to take them outside at this season, but in summer weather, during gentle showers, when they have not young to feed, run them into an all-wire cage, and place them outside. On warm, genial days spray them with a fine spray and occasionally get a tuft or two of tall grass, not using it till it has been kept indoors long enough to remove frost, then well water it with a fine-rose water can—the natural bath of the Budgerigars is taken by rolling in wet grass. (2) The greatest "tit-bit" you can offer Budgies is grass in the ear (grass in flower). Most of the birds you see so tame with the fortune tellers at street corners, have either cut or pinioned wings, but in my aviary I have had half a dozen at once on a seed pan held in the hand. (3) As it is now so late in the year, do not encourage breeding by putting up an husk, delay doing so till spring. (4) You have a true pair, the male has the cere bright blue, the female has the cere brown. No. (5) You will find "Popular Parrakeets," by Dr. W. T. Greene, and "Foreign Birds for Beginners," by myself, both to contain chapters with useful data on the breeding of these popular and pleasing birds. The two books named above are 1s. 1d. each, post free, from CAGE BIRDS office.

Troupials and Nonpariels.

E.T.J.—Amber-winged Troupial: Diet, some good soft food mixture (see advert. columns), ripe fruit, such as apple, pear, banana, orange, etc.; two or three mealworms, or other insects per bird daily, also a little seed, canary, millet, hemp and sunflower, with a leaf of tender lettuce, etc., daily. They are fond of bathing, and should have the opportunity of doing so daily. I am afraid I cannot give you an easily-recognised outward sexual distinction, but on careful comparison of adult birds you will find the bill of the male a little stouter and longer than that of the female, the area of amber or orange on the wing is also a little larger. Of course, you will readily understand that with the variation common to all species the latter feature needs a trained eye to discern, and even expert judgment does not always succeed in successfully sorting them out. Nonpariels, I presume, you mean the Painted. You cannot mistake the sexes of this species, the plumage of the female being of not nearly so rich a hue as that of the male, she also lacks the blue and vermilion areas which adorn the under parts of the male. Diet: Canary, white and spray millet, oats, and paddy rice (rice in the husk), give each bird a couple of mealworms or other insects daily, also seeding grass or grass in flower, this can be procured nearly the whole of the year, from garden, hedgerow or waste land, but, of course, during the winter months it must be kept indoors long enough to remove any frost before being supplied to the birds. A little ripe apple makes a good substitution in winter when the birds will take it.

A Sick Amazon.

A.M.—I cannot at present improve upon the directions already given, but you will certainly have to modify your diet, or the bird will be ruined; tea, milk-sop, bread and butter, etc., are the worst things you can give it, and will end in the bird becoming dyspeptic, probably a confirmed feather eater, and premature death. Do not give table scraps, tea, coffee ,or milk-slops, nor yet any kind of animal food. Diet: A seed mixture of canary, millet, wheat, dari, oats, hemp and sunflower seeds; continue to try it at present with a little boiled maize, it will ultimately take it, but if it eats freely of the seed mixture, it will do well enough on that alone, with a little ripe fruit, plain biscuit, and a nut or two (try it with the core of a ripe apple); offer it the water as directed. If it is only a sip or two at a time that it takes, well let it be content with that, it will take it more freely, but note, do not exceed the quantity of the drugs I named. Two of them should be almost tasteless in the water in the quantities given, and if with these quantities the brandy and water smells rather strongly, put half as much water again, or even double the quantity. It will get really thirsty, and take the water freely then. As soon as the trouble yields, drop me a line, and I can then help you further.

Budgerigars and Java Sparrows.

Foreign Birds.—Note, I am assuming there is a shelter shed attached to each aviary. (1) I have no clue to your county, but I may say that all the birds you name, are successfully wintered out of doors in Middlesex, in spite of fogs, wet, and other climatic vagaries. The Budgerigars and Zebra Finches are certainly safe, but the White Javas, I think, would be better inside, especially if this is their first winter in this country. (2) Your birds are not overcrowded; in each aviary you can keep three to four pairs with fair prospects of successful breeding. (3) They should do well enough, but I should think by the introduction of two or three panes of glass into roof, or elsewhere, you could make a way for more sunlight to enter. (4) I don't like red-millet, there is more wasted than eaten, use white and spray millet, otherwise your mixture is all right. I should not trouble about their not breeding this season, they will be all the better for it, and I should say, providing sexes are equal, they will do well next season; in the spring, and also now, when you can get it free from frost, give liberal supplies of grass in the ear (grass in flower), this is their natural food, and they cannot have too much of it. Do not attempt to encourage them to breed during the winter months. Always keep up not less than double the quantity of nesting receptacles that you have pairs of birds.

Parrot and Its Treatment.

Hemson.—It is a Blue-fronted Amazon, very probably a young bird, and also, I think, a newly-imported one. Do not leave water in the cage at present, but offer it three or four times a day, and let it satisfy its thirst on each occasion—make the drinking water the colour of pale port wine with Parrish's Chemical Food for a month or more. Give this bird a little boiled maize daily for a time (later, twice a week will be often enough), but as this only keeps fresh one day, it must be prepared fresh daily, and the food vessel kept very clean. For one day after you have drained all water away from the maize, soak into it one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia, and repeat this as may be necessary to keep the bowels moving freely, but not watery loose. Seed mixture: Canary, oats, wheat, dari, maize, hemp, and sunflower seeds, some of these will be taken ultimately, and if you keep some hemp and some flower seed, separate, and add a little to the tin as required. I should continue to offer fruit (ripe), only a little at a time, it will be taken ultimately. Re the seed mixture, fill its tin in the morning, and then some after midday, mix in a little more hemp and sunflower. The bird is suffering from the effects of importation. Keep it out of draught. Do not give table scraps and slops.

What Parrot is It?

Birdshall.—(1) So far as I can gather, you have a female Alexandrine Parrakeet, but of which race it is rather difficult to tell you from your incomplete description. If you could make a rough diagram of the bird, and write the colours on the various parts of the body, I could then very probably tell you the species. (2): I should certainly talk more distinctly than you indicate; talk to it and pet it. Encourage it to take "tit-bits" from your fingers; you can soon ascertain what there is it specially favours, and you can then use such as a reward and a "tit-bit." By the latter I do not mean anything it favours or asks for; you must not give table scraps, tea, coffee, or milk slops, or any kind of animal food. Diet: A seed mixture of canary seed, oats, wheat dari, hemp, and sunflower seed, well mix, and use this as your staple diet. Supply also daily a little ripe fruit, grit and water for drinking and bathing. Also offer as extras plain biscuits and nuts, and a little plain cake can be given and green food, such as lettuce, etc. Keep a piece of clean cuttlefish continually in the cage, and, providing you keep the bird free from draught, yet not in a vitiated atmosphere, it should continue to do well.

Brevities.

What Bird is It? (Argentina).—It is either a female or miniature male, apparently a Spermophila, but what species I cannot say on sight. I have been away for the week-end, and did not get the body till to-night, when it was rather "high," but I sent it on to my taxidermist at once, and when I get it again I shall have much pleasure in searching out the species, but I shall have to ask you to wait a fortnight, or possibly three weeks. Newly-imported birds of this genus seem very susceptible to chill, and such should be carefully guarded against during their first winter in this country.

Sexing Amazon Parrots (M.A.G.).—I regret I cannot give you the distinction just on the moment of going to press, but will endeavour to do so next week. Most of the distinctions are only such by comparison; correctly sexing an odd bird is not an easy matter at any time. The upper mandible of the male has usually a longer and more extended tip than that of the female, but this again, can only be ascertained by comparison, and will not, I fear, help you much. Will try and help you further next week.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. J. North, 435, Oxford Road, Reading, will examine cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for a reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to J. North, with fee. Any sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

Greenfinch (A. Morris).—Congestion of liver and lungs ending in apoplexy, commonly called "severe chill."

Canary (Bertha).—Inflamed condition of liver and lungs, ending in apoplexy; indicates "Bird Fever," but as decomposition had set in and no items of duration or symptoms of illness are given, it is risky to decide. If another dies, send it without delay for further opinions.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

A Letter (H. W. Carrier).—We have forwarded your letter to the right quarter.

A Washing Exhibition (V. Wynn).—We much appreciate the kind tone of your letter.

Cutting (Mr. Hawkes).—We are much obliged to you, and will use if space permits.

"Odds on Bullie" (R. Robinson).—Very interesting; thanks for sending same along; pleased to hear from you at any time. Hope to use this contribution next week.

A Printer's Bill (Secretary).—Taking the facts you give to be correct, if you can prove them to the hilt, you certainly can counterclaim for damages with every likelihood of success—i.e., for loss of sales and omission of advertisements. In any case, you will need to put yourself in the hands of a good solicitor. You are personally liable; but all the members of committee, etc., are, in turn, liable to yourself.

Competition Indicator (P. Wilson).—The idea seems to have many good points, and we will give it consideration for next week's number. Thanks for kindness in sending it.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE PILEATED FINCH AND ONE OTHER.

SIR,—It may interest Mr. J. H. Verrall to know that the bird he describes is not the Pileated Finch (Coryphospingus pileatus), but C. cristatus. These are two totally distinct species, the only points of similarity between them being contour and crests.

CATCHING HAWFINCHES IN WINTER.

SIR,—Will any of your readers kindly give me information through your paper how to catch Hawfinches in the winter time? These I see are feeding on hawthorn berries, and are almost unapproachable, never coming on the ground. What could I use for bait, etc., and would a call-bird or brace bird be of any use?

A "CONTROVERSIAL AWARD" AT ACCRINGTON SHOW.

SIR,—I read with much amazement the remarks under the above heading in "Twitterings" last week with regard to the gold medal for the best bird belonging to an amateur member of the N.P.C. at Accrington Show. There were only two birds brought out to be judged for this, and they were the 1st prize winners other than those owned by exhibitors outside the N.P.C. Of the two the winner of the medal was an easy first. My explanation to Mr. Raynes was that the winners of 2nd and 3rd prizes in the classes where a 1st had been won by non-members of the N.P.C. ought to have been brought out to compete.

THE RECENT WESTON-SUPER-MARE SHOW.

SIR,—I enclose copy of a letter received from the C.B.U. representative at our late show, and I should esteem it a very great favour if you would publish same,

COME TO STAY.

Mr. Read, secretary Cage Bird, etc., Show, Weston-super-Mare.

SIR,—I wish to compliment you upon the businesslike manner in which your show was conducted on Thursday last, and venture to say it was a success, considering the promptitude in payment of prize money, viz. four days. This is very encouraging to exhibitors. I was struck upon entering the hall to see such comfortable quarters for the cage birds (leaving nothing to be desired), and was very glad to see such a goodly number, especially considering the clashing and unfair competition you had to encounter.

A REMEDY FOR INSECTS AND MAGGOTS.

SIR,—I am sorry I did not notice A. Mallett's letter on this subject in time to reply last week. Of course, I do not in the least mind his friendly criticism of my reply to a correspondent, although I feel sure that the insects he describes are not similar to those which troubled the original querist. What I would like to point out now is a little improvement upon A. Mallett's suggested remedy. If a quarter-ounce of eucalyptus oil is added to a bowl of water, as he suggests, and the cages washed with it, there will be a most unequal distribution of the oil. This oil is peculiarly clinging and penetrating, and quite antagonistic to water. It requires very vigorous shaking to break up the oil into minute globules to cause it to be equally distributed, and even then the distribution is quite temporary and it quickly returns to float in a film on the surface of the water. No amount of stirring would mix it, so that in the suggested plan practically the whole of the oil would be used up in the first few dips of the brush or cloth. To make this plan effective the oil should first be emulsionised by thoroughly macerating it in a jelly made with soap and a little hot water, which would make the oil mix much more freely with water. Perhaps some chemist readers would give the details for making it most thoroughly mixable, though the above simple process is quite practicable for small quantities that are to be used at once. Personally, I consider this method of using eucalyptus too drastic and objectionable and should much prefer a wash with a solution of Jeyes' fluid. But that is only my opinion; others are entitled to theirs.

THE GUARANTEEING OF PRIZE-MONEY.

SIR,—I note in several schedules received this season the statement that "full prize-money is guaranteed, no cancelling, no amalgamation." But on going through the rules I find that they state there must be 8 entries (in some cases 9), or half prize-money will be paid. I cannot see how these societies are "guaranteeing full prize money." when in such cases only paying half. I may say that our society, the Merthyr Dowlais and District F.S. (show Nov. 12th), are guarantoeing full prize money in the proper sense of the word—no half, or withholding anything.

J. H. JONES.

WHEN IS A CLEAR NOT A CLEAR?

And what is a Tick?

SIR,—I have pleasure in accepting Mr. Woollard's assurance that he had no intention of casting a slur upon anyone when he wrote his letter, and that he "simply wrote it in a plain and common way of speaking." He says that he answered my first letter just as it appeared in print. Then why has he not answered my last letter just as it appeared, instead of misquoting me in some places, and totally ignoring the most important points in my argument? Regarding Mr. W.'s first question, I think he will remember that in one of his letters he stated that he was engaged to judge a certain show this year, and that if he was judging a clear class he would certainly handle the birds to see if they were clear or not. A subsequent letter by Mr. W. appeared to give the impression that he thought the birds should be handled first, and judged afterwards. That is why I asked Mr. Woollard if he wished us to assume that such would be the case. Personally, I don't think it is such a terrible thing to handle a bird; I have handled too many for that. As to anyone's being nervous, or afraid to handle a bird, Mr. W. knows perfectly well that this has nothing to do with the question at issue. The point is, Is it right that a man's bird should be handled at a show if the bird can be judged without handling it? I contend that it is not right. Mr. W. contends that it is. In support of my contention, and in order to do away with the handling of exhibits as far as possible, I suggested that "Clears" and "Invisible Ticks" should be allowed to compete together, seeing that in many cases they do so, whether they are allowed to or not. I further suggested that all ticked birds should show the tick when standing on the perch. Now, Sir, Mr. W. objected to these suggestions, but when I asked him to state his reasons, he simply argued on the point that a ticked bird is not a clear. Most decidedly not; nobody ever said it was. Why cannot Mr. W. understand that I never suggested that "ticked birds" should be shown in a "clear class"? My suggestion was that a class be worded "Clear or Invisible Ticks," and, this not being a clear class, it would enable both birds to compete together in an honest manner. Now, will he please give his reasons, for the benefit of the Fancy, as to why the Clears and the Invisible Ticks should not be allowed to compete together? Take a class worded "Clear or Invisible Ticks," and tell the Fancy in what way an Invisible Tick would be detrimental to a Clear, on the show bench, or vice versa. That is what we want to be at. Mr. W. says that I must think birds are "mauled" about while they are being searched for a tick. May I inform him that I have seen birds "mauled" about under such circumstances, and, further, that I have seen judges with some difficulty catching a bird even in a show cage. Mr. W. also thinks a tick can easily be found. I venture to say that the correspondence which has appeared in CAGE BIRDS from time to time proves that such is not the case; and what about the drawing which appeared in CAGE BIRDS two or three weeks ago? Why, Sir, only a short time back a letter appeared in CAGE BIRDS, over the signature of the secretary of a northern society, stating that an exhibitor had had his bird disqualified in a clear class, it being ticked, and the following week the same bird was disqualified in a ticked class because the judge could not find the tick. What has Mr. W. to say about cases like this? I happened to be present at the show where the second disqualification took place, and was present during judging. This particular bird was placed second in the prize list, but when the judge came to handle it he could not find the tick, and the bird was therefore thrown out. After the show was judged the exhibitor came into the room, and on learning that his bird had been disqualified he at once asked the judge to examine the bird again, stating that the bird had been disqualified the previous week for being thigh-ticked. The judge did as he was requested, but with the same result—he could find no tick; yet when the bird was examined during the afternoon by some of the exhibitors present, the tick was found right enough. Does Mr. W. think it right that that bird should have to be handled so much in order to find a tick, only to have it found when it was too late? And the irony of the thing was that the bird had also been placed second on the occasion of the first disqualification. Yet Mr. W. says that a bird need not turn round many times in a "show cage" before the tick can be seen. I may as well inform him at once that he is wrong in his surmise that I am a novice, and further, I have not the slightest doubt that in the course of my experience, which now extends over a good many years, I have handled and washed, both for myself and others, as many birds on a yearly average as even Mr. W. Why, Sir, many of the Northern fanciers thought Mr. W. was a novice until they read his statement in CAGE BIRDS intimating that he had to judge a show. Yet I never termed him a novice; I didn't even call him a judge, and Mr. W. will remember that it was he himself who first stated that he had to judge a certain show this year. In my last letter I stated that there are some birds which, after being handled, will make practically no attempt to plume themselves, etc. Mr. W. says that "if you watch a bird shake itself you will find that every feather goes into its place." Then he adds, "or at least they all should do; it is then or never." Exactly, they all should do, but they don't. Wasn't that my contention? Does not Mr. W. see that by adding that last sentence he has practically proved my statement right up to the hilt, and admitted that his opinion is the same as mine? Mr. W. also says that I admit that birds with very dark underflue should be shown in ticked classes. Now, Sir, Mr. W. knows perfectly well that I don't admit anything of the sort. It is simply another little trick of his, misquoting me to suit his own purpose. What I stated was "these are the birds which are shown in the ticked classes, because there are too many dark feathers to pull out without the fear of detection." Mr. W. will see that there is a vast difference between the meaning of the two words "should" and "are." It is quite plain if you will only take it in the correct way. Mr. W. lays great stress upon a clear bird being a bird that has reached perfection. Then how does he explain away the fact that even the leading specialist clubs allow a bird with a streaked beak or streaked legs to compete in a clear class? In the opinion of many fanciers a bird with a streaked beak or streaked legs is no more a clear bird than a bird is that has a dark feather on the thigh. Even Mr. W. admits this, for he has stated that a clear bird should be clear all through. The very fact that the markings on this bird's beak or legs tell against it, according to their extent, makes it obviously unfair to the bird when competing in a clear class; but it is doubly unfair if it should be competing against birds which have no right to be in the clear class, viz., invisible ticked birds which, for obvious reasons, have managed to get through. I trust Mr. W. will follow my meaning. Then why not word the class "Clear or Invisible Tick"? This would give an invisible ticked bird a perfect right to be shown along with birds which at present it is often shown against, without any right at all, and at the same time it would put the bird with the streaked beak or legs upon a more equal footing in the same class; for the judge would know that there were probably both clear and invisible ticks in the class, and would therefore be more inclined to judge them on equal merits; the stipulation that points be deducted according to the extent of the markings of the beak or legs would then be removed. Does Mr. W. think that this would encourage the breeding of birds with dark beaks and legs? I don't think so. Even if it did, this could easily be remedied by the Specialist Clubs classifying a bird with a dark beak or legs as a "Visible Ticked bird." Personally, however, I do not think that any particular wording of classes will interfere in any way with the methods of breeding, or the methods of pairing up the birds. In the latter part of his letter Mr. W. appears to have got a trifle mixed up. He says he will be pleased to show how he can back his opinion up; I venture to think that after they have read the latter portion of Mr. W.'s letter the majority of fanciers will say he is merely backing my opinion, instead of his own. Now, Sir, Mr. W. may take it from me I am not prejudiced. I have nothing to gain by suggesting that classes should be worded "clear or invisible ticked." My suggestion was made because I thought it would be to the benefit of fanciers to have the classes worded so, and Mr. W. has yet to show us how such a suggestion would be detrimental to the Fancy. But when you begin, Mr. Woollard, for goodness' sake keep to the point, and avoid the little personal sarcasms. Please recognise the fact, as I do, that the Fancy in general does not care one iota who or what either Mr. Reid or Mr. Woollard is, and also remember that you cannot expect to rub a man the wrong way and not have the compliment (?) returned.

A QUESTION ABOUT MEAT-MEAL.

SIR,—Would Mr. T. Androws, who replies to "Constant Reader," please inform me through CAGE BIRDS what is game meal? A number of fanciers I know are very interested on this point. Is it given as bought or should it be moistened in any way? I have enquired for it at many places here, and have also sent to England for it. I have got dog biscuits ground. Is this the article referred to?

THE ROSE-BREASTED GROSBEAK.

SIR,—In your issue of October 24th, Mr. J. H. Verrall draws attention to an oversight on my part in my article on Housing and Keeping, etc., for which I beg to tender him my best thanks. While it is many years since this species has been obtainable, mere stray specimens leaking through have been rare indeed, though many years ago many aviculturists and fanciers possessed it. In writing the MSS. in some (to me incomprehensible) way, I must have mixed two species, or sheets of MSS. The late Herr Wiener possessed this species, and about five years ago I had quite a correspondence with him concerning it. I also noted in "Bird Notes," September, 1907, a pair (obtained by exchange) among the new arrivals at the Zoo. So that while I am really mystified as to how the mis-statement has come about, I beg to tender your readers my apologies for same.

THE FEEDING OF BRITISH SOFT-BILLS AT SHOWS.

SIR,—In respect of Mr. Birchley's letter re food for softbills at shows, I think Mr. B will be satisfied with the treatment his birds had at Gloucester Show, and also those others who sent foreign birds that required soft food and fruit. It would help the committee very much if exhibitors of foreign birds would say what seed or food the specimens will eat. I notice one exhibitor of three foreign birds very kindly sent soft food, mealworms and bananas, which were given them as per instructions on boxes. At Gloucester Show we guarantee their getting the best of attention.

GEO. S. CLOSS.

SIR,—I should like to endorse Mr. Birchley's remarks of last week. I have myself been treated in the same manner, or rather more unfortunately. Since my last exhibit, a Lesser Whitethroat, shown at Cambridge, I found dead upon its arrival home, with not a particle of food to be found in the cage. I put as much food as is necessary for two or three days in the cage, and we cannot do more. Again, why cannot committees send the birds overnight so that (in most cases) we should receive same in the early morning? Otherwise it entails repeated walks to the station. It is most disappointing when one spends much time and money in getting these tender birds ready for exhibition that they are treated as in the case of Mr. Birchley's and myself. I feel now rather chary about sending out others. I hope Mr. B.'s two birds have by now quite recovered.

EXPOSITOR.

THE WHEREABOUTS OF SHOWS.

A Point for Officials to Note.

SIR,—You must ask a policeman if you don't know your way to a show. Such was the picture on page 248 of CAGE BIRDS. That reminds me, Mr. Editor, that if secretaries would advertise the place or street as well as the town where their respective shows are being held, it would save time, and the policy would be a good one. In these days of keen competition, these things should stand out prominently—that is the time and place; if you want to make a show pay, get it well advertised. Two years ago I though I should like to visit Sheffield Show, and I left by the 1.20 train, arriving in Sheffield 2.15. All that was advertised in CAGE BIRDS was "Temperance Hall"; no street was named. I took a tram from the Midland Station to the bottom of the market. "Can you tell me where the Temperance Hall is," I inquired of an old man at the tram points. He studied a bit. "I can't, sir; but ask that policeman yonder." So I went up to this gentleman (he happened to be a sergeant). He confessed he had seen it somewhere, but could not tell me the street. Well, I thought, this is a pretty go; 20s. to spend on a Norwich hen, and half the daylight gone in seeking the show! Then, again, the Huddersfield fanciers grumbled in CAGE BIRDS because they had a poor attendance. Speaking for myself, I was absent simply because I did not know where their show was being held. The same thing happened at Leeds. I had to trapse right down from the Midland Station to the bottom of the bird market to ask where the show was being held! This sort of thing is a mistake, and I hope secretaries will kindly oblige by stating the place and street. Also a few posters, or a good sandwich-man would help the door money. Get the people in, then you sell your programmes, and then they may buy something else.

PRINTER'S INK.

A LEGAL POINT CONCERNING BIRD-CATCHING.

SIR,—If I got permission from the owner to catch birds on his land, could the police stop me? If not, could they stop me carrying nets and birds on the highway to and from my house and the place where I set the nets?

BIRD CATCHER.

The above letter we submitted to our legal expert, and his reply is as follows:—

Bird Catcher.—(1) The landowner's permission is of no avail as regards birds that are protected by statute. If the authorities protect certain birds nothing that the landowner can do affects the illegality of catching them The police could, therefore, stop you notwithstanding his permission. (2) If the catching or the possession of the birds is not prohibited by the authority, you are at liberty to walk along the roads with your birds and your nets, and the police cannot interfere with you. It is otherwise, of course, if the birds are protected.

MORE QUESTIONS FOR EXPERIENCED CATCHERS.

SIR,—In answer to "Amateur" re nets, the best plan is to line the nets up ten yards in length and five feet wide if required for Goldfinches, as thistles and teazles are required under the nets to induce them to pitch. This will allow a good bag of 1 ft. 9 inches. If intended for Linnets, 6 feet wide is a good fly, as only runner and flirt birds are needed under the nets. This will allow a 9-inch bag. Always allow the bag from the sides and not from the ends. The poles or staffs must be of the same length as the width of the net—5 ft. or 6 ft. as required. Deal with a straight grain is very good, and measuring about 1 inch diameter at one end, and about ⅝ inch at the other for the outlines. Olive green, cotton dye, or logwood chips will do well to dye the nets with. I get my pull-lines from a rope factory—three-strand cord very thin and about 150 yards of it, which costs 1s. 4d. Make your own seed mill as I do. J. ASPLIN.

BULLFINCH HENS AT THE GLASGOW AND WEST OF SCOTLAND SHOW.

SIR,—If Mr. Brown had thought for a moment, he would have hesitated about launching at the last moment the intimation (see last week's "Twitterings") that foreign Bullfinch Hens are to be debarred from competition at the show on 13th November, and I ask through our columns upon whose authority he gave the announcement. I know it was not by authority of the members. This society's committee take far too much upon themselves, and they have gone a bit too far in shearing the Bullfinches of birds of quality. It is the outcome of a select few taking exception to the quality birds beating the Wee Britishers that are wrecking the Hybrid classes. I say it is unfair to exclude the Bullfinch that gives birth to the most noble Hybrid. My protest is too late, but it is fully warranted. Stick to the schedule, and be fair to the Bullfinch. Placing British and foreign alternately is fair play.

WILD BIRD EXHIBITOR.

BACON BEETLES FOR SOFTBILLS.

SIR,—Your correspondent who asks for information on this subject might have been reading some of the impracticable advice which is often circulated in some sections of the Press, and which would be amusing to an old practical fancier, were it not that it is taken seriously by the too easily misled novice. In the so-called "good old days," when our forefathers lived on the land, and every cottager grew his own yearly supply of bacon, the bacon beetle would be a little better known than now. But even in those days I doubt if anyone would be able to collect sufficient to keep a Wren, for the simple reason that it, with its larvæ, was a nasty pest, and would be no more favoured by the owner of the bacon than the blowfly and its maggot would be appreciated in a joint of meat to-day. Therefore, your correspondent will readily understand why his enquiries of grocers, etc., fell flat; though I suspect it is doubtful if the pest really exists in numbers anywhere under our modern hygienic conditions. To come to the point of identity, the bacon beetle belongs to the family Dermestidae, comprising the genera Byturus, of which we have two species, both very minute beetles, mostly inhabiting flowers, where the larvæ feed on dead animal substances. The larvæ are the tiny whitish worms found very frequently in raspberries and blackberries. The Dermestes, of which also we have two species, D. vulpinus and D. lardarius. The latter is the true bacon beetle, and is often found in larders where bacon is stored for a length of time. It is, however, rather local in occurrence. It attacks and feeds upon any kind of dried meat, bacon, fur, or hides, and is often destructive to natural history specimens in museums. The genus Attagenus, of which we have one species, pellio, which are found on flowers, and feed upon the petals, but are also destructive to furs, causing the hair to come off in patches. Lastly, we have the genus Anthrenus, comprising the species scrophulariae, pimpinellae, and muscorum. The first is found on umbelliferous flowers and in collections of insects; the second in flowers and old birds' nests, and is said to be common on the Continent, but rare in England. Both species feed on animal substances The last-named is also known as the museum beetle, and is common on flowers in the spring, but, again, they feed on animal substances, and the larvæ are apt to prove very troublesome in natural history collections, where they play havoc amongst insect specimens in particular. In all cases the beetles and their larvæ are very small, and in the majority of cases quite minute in size, so that the collection of them for an appreciable portion of softbills' diet, except to someone exceptionally well placed in a combination of favourable circumstances, is scarcely practicable. When they can be obtained, they are doubtless a very welcome change. CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

THE SAID-TO-BE CHAFFINCH-CANARY HYBRID.

SIR,—In reply to Mr. Andrews, I think he, as the exhibitor of the bird, is the proper person to give the parentage and all particulars he can. He surely would not have purchased such a "rarity" only on account of its plumage. There are many persons who think that if a bird possesses unusual coloured feathers, such a bird must be a Hybrid. I have had in my hands a clear yellow Chaffinch, and I believe that Mr. Lowne, of Yarmouth, has seen several variegated Chaffinches. This is my answer to his first question. To his second question I may say that I consider it quite the correct thing to open the eyes of those persons who do not know, and also to give the exhibitors of genuine Mules and Hybrids a chance to settle the doubt, as to whether it is only a rare-feathered British bird (probably caught wild) which is taking prizes in a class for Hybrids only. In my opinion there never will be a Mule from a Chaffinch and a Canary until some one has succeeded in obtaining eggs from Canaries of similiar colour and markings to Chaffinch eggs, and also educated Canaries to catch white butterflies and other flying insects and eat them as if to the nature born.

THE JUDGING AT SCOTTISH SHOWS.

SIR,—Mr. D. S. Gowans' remarks with regard to the judging of Norwich Plainheads at a recent show in Glasgow are childish in the extreme. It is most amusing to hear this Mr. Gowans giving instructions to men who have been honourably connected with the Fancy for upwards of twenty-five years. It is very often the case that a judge has to converse with his steward. For instance, we have Buff birds shown as Yellows, and Yellows as Buffs; then again, many a Ticked bird has been proved to be a Variegated. Now, a judge would converse with his steward on such occasions. Say this happened at this recent show in Glasgow. Mr. D. S. Gowans infers that the judge and steward were working hand in hand. This is a serious charge, Mr. Gowans. There is only one saving clause in your letter, or I am afraid you might make the acqnaintance of a Dundee and a Glasgow solicitor. Further, this clause, so carefully planned, I am certain is the work of a "clique," and not of Mr D. S. Gowans. Might I ask what the steward was to gain by conversing with the judge, as he was not an exhibitor in any one section of the show? By way of consoling Mr. Gowans I may say that many a bird is well forward in the prize list at one show, and fails to get in the tickets at the next.

A STEWARD AT A RECENT GLASGOW SHOW.

CAGE BIRDS is a very good paper. I have had much benefit from it; also from "House's Canary Manual." "Canary Breeding for Beginners," and "Cage Birds Annual." I have Roller Canaries, in all seven birds, some of which I bred from this year.—H. KEIGHTLEY (Malmo, Sweden).

THE SHOWS.

WOLVERHAMPTON.

The Wolverhampton and Dis. C.B.S. held their second annual show in the Co-operative Hall, on 29th and 30th October. There was a magnificent entry, totalling close upon 500 birds, and very few classes were cancelled. The entry in the Norwich section was very large, there being 150 in eight classes. Two sets of winners could have been picked in most of the classes, some tip-top specimens being right out of the cards. The Unflighted Buff, which created some sensation at Longton, and changed hands at a high figure, stood cardless in its class. The hall is a splendid one for the purpose, being well lighted, and having good high lights, besides being illuminated wth electric light in the evening. We believe the entry was a record for the Midlands. Mr. Howes, the courteous and energetic Secretary, had matters well in hand, and literature from CAGE BIRDS was much in evidence. Mr. J. Robson judged all the classes, except the Rollers, which were judged by Mr. F. A. Lester.

The Canary Classes.

NOR., CL., ETC., YELL. (14): 1, Cooper, good size, hot colour, grand head and neck, some thought lucky to win; 2, Blackhurst, lovely type throughout, good head and neck, nice depth through, short tail and flights; 3, vhc, Jeffs, beautiful bird of correct type, short all over, nice head, neck, and back; 4, Bevan, another good one, nice cobby bird, lacking somewhat substance of 2 and 3; hc, Coventry; c, Bowyer. BUFF (12): 1, Cooper, nice size, well cut out, full of type and quality, gets well over perch, well shown; 2, Coventry, another good one, very close up, nice cobby bird, lacking a little of the finish of winner; 3, Wootton, nice bird of right stamp, not much to choose between these three, just a shade long in tail; 4, hc, Bowyer, 4 hot colour, splendid type and feather, nice typical exhibit; vhc, Hall; c, Emery TKD., ETC. (21): A very hot class: 1, hc, Adnitt and Driver, 1 an almost 4-pointed yell., beautiful type and quality, well over perch, shown in grand form; 2, Cooper, wing mkd. buff, good size and type, very short and cobby, pressed first very hard; 3, Hathaway, varieg. yell., good bird, lacking the depth through of leaders; 4, Hall, wing mkd. yell., short wings and tail, A1 quality; vhc, Emery; c, Weaver. HEN, CL., ETC. (23): 1, Adnitt and Driver, yell., lovely shape, good all over, lovely feather, staged to perfection; 2, Davies, another yell., very little behind leader, rare shape and feather, hardly so good in head, not quite ready; 3, Jeffs, beautiful buff, A1 shape and quality, nice thick set body, good substance and style; 4, Hall, nice hen of equal quality with leaders, but just shade longer than those in front; vhc, Blackhurst; hc, Bellamy; c, Hatton. YELL. UNFLIG. (23): 1, Emery, lovely hird, hot colour, sound type and quality, wonderful substance; 2, Pepper, another good one, shade larger, good shape, grand quality feather; 3, Blackhurst, nice typical bird, teeming with quality, not quite the substance of leaders; 4, Yates, short thick-set exhibit, extra good type, nice wings, short tail; vhc, Adnitt and Driver; hc, c, Hall; c, Bowyer. BUFF (24): 1, Bellamy, a gem for type and quality, beautiful cobby bird, grand substance, short wings and tail; 2, Howe, another beauty, lovely shape and quality, little rough on left thigh when we saw it; 3, Emery, nice bird, good back, wings, and tail, lacks substance of leaders; 4, Blackhurst, another good bird, with same fault as third; vhc, Cooper; hc, Bott; c, Lawrence. The Roller Canary Classes.

This section proved a very interesting one, although some of the exhibits were not quite up to contest pitch, owing to the unreadiness of the birds so early on in the season. Entries totalled 60, and by the enthusiasm shown, it proves that the Rollers have come to stay in Wolverhampton. Another feature was the absence of imported birds in the awards; we think we are right in saying that all the prizes but one (3rd) went to birds bred in England, which must be very encouraging for the British breeders of Rollers. The most interesting class was class 35—young birds wearing 1908 closed rings. Twenty-one birds passed the judge, Mr. F. A. Lester.

CLASS 35: 1, 2, vhc, spl, Whittaker, three very nice birds, which gave promise to be heard of later; 3, Wilsdon; 4, Willows; hc, Harper; c, Whittlestone. CLASS 36 (23), included some old favourites: 1, Wilsdon, one of this fancier's stars, which took same prize 12 months ago; 2, Whittaker, full of song, which found plenty of favour; 3, Healing, we believe had same position at the late Palace show; 4, Wareing; vhc, Turpin; hc, Burton; c, Banks. CL. 37 (8):: 1, 4, Whittaker; 2, Jacquemin; 3, Whittlestone. Two classes were provided for members only, but owing to their being included in the (20/-) limit (which was a great disappointment to some), they did not come up so well. However, in Class 48, young birds, we saw six: 1st, spl, Willows; 2, spl, Wakeham; 3, hc, Bird; 4, Jacquemin. In class 49 we saw 11. It contained some cheap birds at the Limit price: 1, hc, Jacquemin; 2, Crowson; 3, Wakeham; 4, Cadman; vhc, c, Bird.

The Remaining Classes.

CL., ETC., CAN. MULE (except Bullfinch) (8): 1, Gilbert, almost cl. Goldfinch, in lovely trim, good blaze, grand quality; 2, hc, Callear, same cross, wing mkd., lovely quality, nice feather; 3, 4, Lees, noted yell., even wing mkd., grand colour and quality, followed by lightly mkd. Linnet-Canary in fine trim; vhc, Lawrence; c, Pitchford. DARK (8): 1, Hingley, Redpoll, shows cross distinctly, beautiful exhibit, well staged; 2, c, Tonks, yell. Goldfinch, lovely quality, rich colour, beautiful bloom, staged to perfection; 3, Williams, yell. Linnet, of good size and colour; 4, Lees, Greenfinch, buff, well staged; vhc, Callear; hc, Osborne. HYB. (including Canary-Bullfinch) (10), a very hot class: 1, 3, Ward, leading Redpoll-Bullie, greatly improved in colour since we last saw it, grand cap and wings, 3rd Linnet-Bullie, good size, splendid colour; 2, vhc, Gilbert, 2 Redpoll-Goldie, nice blaze, distinct lacing, vhc, Canary-Bullie, splendid size and colour, bit loose in feather; 4, Callear, grand size Goldie-Bullie, nice face and quality, drops one wing; hc, c, Tonks, former Goldie-Bullie, beautiful blaze and markings. BRIT. GOLDFINCH, ETC. (10): 1, Mole, Bullfinch, grand cap, lovely breast-colour, good size, A1 feather, well staged; 2, Yorks, Goldfinch, nice exhibit, good face, and buttons in fine bloom; 3, c, Osborne, Goldfinch, fine rich blaze, nice body colour, shown well; 4, hc, Tonks, Goldfinch, richly tanned, good square blaze, but not yet at its best; vhc, Barrett. LINNET, ETC. (6): 1, hc, Tonks, Redpoll, beauty, wonderful colour and lacing; 2, Osborne, Lesser Redpoll, good colour and markings, well staged; 4, Tams, Linnet, nice size, rich lacing; vhc, Reeves. A.O.S. HARDBILL (7): 1, hc, c, Osborne, 1 Bramblefinch, grand size, rich colour and spangling; 2, Lawrence, Hawfinch, feathered to perfection, grand head and bib, well staged; 3, Bowley, Chaffinch, grand, rich colourings, nicely barred, in fine feather; 4, Millincamp, good Greenfinch, shade pale in colour; vhc, Crundell. SOFTBILL (10): 1, hc, Williams, 1 Chough, well-known, in faultless condition; 2, 4, Hingley, 2 Wryneck, well staged, in spotless condition, 4, Nightingale, well staged, steady as possible; 3, Mort, Thrush, in fine feather, good breast markings; vhc, Souls, Skylark, bred in captivity, a lovely exhibit; c, Souls. FOR. (11): 1, Williams, Toucan in fine feather, greatly admired; 2, Fallows, Pope Cardinals, not yet quite ready; 3, Hingley, black-headed Gouldian, in fine condition; 4, Blood, ring-necked Parrakeet, in lovely feather; vhc, Green, hc, c, Jones. GIFT (2): 3, vhc, Blagg, Nor. MEMBERS' NOR. CK.: 1, 2, Weaver, leader yell., good head and neck, cobby body, short tail, 2 Buff of similar build; 3, vhc, Willoughby, varieg. buff, good type and quality; 4, Garfield. HEN: 1, 4, Willoughby, very nice buff hen, good type, nice, short flights and tail, fine quality feather, 4 heavy mkd.; 2, Weaver, yell., good size and quality; 3, Gibbons, varieg. buff, good type. UNFLIG.: 1, 2, Willoughby, leader good cobby buff, nice type and feather, followed by similar bird; 3, vhc, Weaver, varieg., good size and quality; 4, Smith, yell., fair shape; hc, Garfield. YORKS. CK.: Cancelled. HEN: 1, 2, Leeding, 1 mkd. yell., a little thin in neck, 2 larger but somewhat coarse as yet; 3, Bryan, buff. UNFLIG.: Cancelled. A.O.V. CAN.: 1, 2, Weaver, Cinn. and green Nor., both good type and quality. MULE: 1, Osborne, dark Goldie Can.; 2, Bird, Goldie-Can. BRIT.: 1, Barrett; 2, Osborne. SELL. (5/-): 1, Willoughby; 2, Weaver.

DYSART.

This go ahead society held their fourth annual exhibition in the Normand Memorial Hall, on Oct. 31st. Arrangements were in the hands of Mr. Jas. Logan, the secretary, who proved himself to be in every way capable in the many duties attached to his office, and everything went off with a smoothness which must have been very gratifying. The president, Mr. D. Walker, and his band of willing workers gave every assistance, and the result was a great improvement on former years. Entries were a little short of last year's total, 500, but what was lacking in numbers was fully made up for in quality, which was of a high order. Scotch Fancies were a good lot all through. Mr. Thomson's clear yellow cock, and Mr. Gibson's buff piebald hen were the outstanding specimens in this section. Border Fancies contained some teasers, the winner of the B.F.C.C. Medal turning up in the uneven buff cock exhibited by Jas. Pattison (Chirnside), after a stiff tussle with Messrs. Thomson's Ticked Buff. Norwich Plainheads, although fewer than last year, were of good standard all through. The two S.F.C. Medals were cleverly captured by Unlighted birds, Mr. Holmes' Buff cock and Mr. Smeaton's Yellow hen both being of exceptional merit. In the Mule Section Mr. Arrighi held a whip hand, while the honours in the British Section were well divided. Crests were a good lot, Messrs. W. M. Reid and Shillinglaw sharing principal honours. Judges: Scotch Fancies, Mr. M'Swinton (Methil); Border Fancies, Mr. McAdam (Lasswade); Crests and Norwich, Mr. J. McLay (Kirkintilloch); Mules, British, and Foreign, Mr. P. Pettigrew (Glasgow). The show was well patronised by visitors, and we trust to hear of it as a financial success.

The Scotch and Border Fancy Sections.

SCOT. CL., ETC., YELL. CK. (13): 1, Thomson, rare size, grand top end, splendid action, decided drive, wins well; 2, Leslie, nice size, fine head and neck, failing in shoulder to winner; 3, Wilson and Campbell, well filled in shoulders and wings, works well, lacking in size; 4, 5, Wallace; 6, Melville. HEN (5): 1, Stewart, nice size and depth; 2, Buchan, fine droop, quick in action, could do with more size; 3, Wallace, good hen, nice action, well placed; 4, Barrie; 5, Cairns. BUFF CK. (3): 1, Nairn, good drive, neat head, shade on small side; 2, Thomson, nice style, well set-up shoulders, good wing carriage; 3, Wallace, nice stamp, lacks the style of leaders. HEN (5): 1, Gillies, nice size, good drive, plenty of wing; 2, Wilson and Campbell, good bird all over, but badly staged; 3, Stewart, better condition than former, nice action, hardly the depth of leaders; 4, Nairn; 5, Wilkie. YELL. PIED, ETC., CK. (4): 1, Cairns, splendid size and action, neat head, and fine long neck, wins well; 2, Buchan, also good size, grand shoulders and wings, not so quick into position as winner; 3, Nairn, very fair top end, nice style; 4, Davidson. HEN (4): 1, Cowen, very sweetly got up lady, fine reach, very neat head and wings, hardly finished moulting, will improve; 2, Thomson, nice stamp, takes nice position, wants a bit more substance; 3, T. Auchterlonie, fine nervy bird, splendid drive, very quick in action, sweet exhibit; 4, Gibson. BUFF CK.: 1, 2, Beattie; 3, great substance, well set up, nicely carried wings and tail, neat head, fine long reach, a gem; 2, lighter got up, but takes good position, nice wings and tail; 3, Leslie, plain on top, some thought might have changed places with next; 4, Auchterlonie, beautiful quality feather, full of nerve, splendid action, good one; 5, T. Braid. HEN (11): 1, Gibson, gem of the first water, very large, with plenty of thickness, well filled in shoulders, fine long wings and tail, well carried; 2, Leslie, lacking in style to winner, neat head and neck; 3, Auchterlonie, very neat all round, little between them; 4, Gillies; 5, Cairns; 6, Eagle and Sons. HADDINGTON, N.B.

The 22nd annual show was held in the side room of the Corn Exchange on October 31st. This hall is an ideal one for a cage bird show, being well lighted from the roof, lofty and free from draughts. The birds were carefully staged, and received every attention from the stewards. The chairman, Mr. Douglas, was here, there and everywhere, and in Mr. David Cockburn they have an ideal and obliging secretary, who had every item at his fingers' tips; he is cool and collected, and is the proper man in the place. The cage bird section was a little down in numbers, which greatly astonished us, seeing they have always catered for the welfare of this section, giving good class specials, etc. The only point wherein they err is by confining so many of their cups to the laugh; perhaps if they left them open this might be more inducement for the outsiders to respond more liberally. Scotch Fancies contained many of the leading birds of the day, and what they lacked in numbers was made up for in first-class quality. Norwich, however, were only fair, as were also the British and Foreigners. Borders as usual were the largest section, although down in number as compared with those of former years. Mr. D. Hamilton (Hamilton) judged the Borders, and Mr. J. F. Dewar (Edinburgh) the others.

Mr. Dewar's Classes.

SCOT. FCY., CL., ETC., YELL. CK. (5): 1, King, well-known winner, monster for size, head up, great prominent shoulder, grand length, his head in the right direction; 2, Gorden, splendid youngster, scarcely ready yet, close up for size, massive shoulder, grand neck, only a little slower to respond; 3, Cursie, foul, fails in shoulder and thickness, but nice lively bird for drive, action and symmetry; 4, Johnstone, larger and more shoulder, but slow to get into position; vhc, Lugton. HEN (9): 1, Johnstone, charmer in every point, splendid size, great depth, legs well set, good side, fine head, great drive; 2, Blair, shade shorter, but grand shoulder and drive; 3, Smart, better size and side, very free in action, carries head in the right place; 4, vbc, Gorden, smaller but fine position; hc, Farquhar; c, Barrie. BUFF CK. ROTHERHAM.

The eleventh annual Exhibition was held on November 2nd, and 3rd. The St. George's Hall, which is situated very centrally, provided the accommodation necessary, for the staging of the exhibits. Entries did not come up as well as one would have liked. The committee consists of well-known and energetic fanciers, who all do their level best to help things along in the correct course. The chairman is Mr. R. Thompson, and the treasurer, Mr. G. Knowles, a couple of capital officials. Mr. J. Hayes acts as secretary. Unfortunately, just previous to the show, he was stricken down with appendicitis, having to undergo an operation on the Wednesday, previous to show day. We were very pleased to hear that matters were going on as well as could be expected, and we wish him a speedy recovery. J. H. has the society's interests at heart, and is a capital worker; it was hard lines he could not be present to manipulate the affairs. Staging was neat in character, and all appeared to go well. The total entries were upwards of 320, about the same as last year's. Messrs. W. Vardy and W. H. Shackleton had the placing of the cards.

YORKS. CL. YELL. MEMBERS' CLASSES.—Scanning through these classes, one saw, several very typified and meritorious specimens staged. Open competition would not be too severe for more than one of the local exhibits, and the owners of same would no doubt benefit by giving them a run. Those who placed for inspection, birds of exceptional merit, were Messrs. Brotherton, Oakes, Watson, Ducker, Turner, Bagnall, Hunt, and Smith.

I feel I must thank the management of Cambridge Show, writes Mr. John Hocking, for the splendid way in which they cared for the birds sent from Swansea. They arrived home in the pink of condition, and really I had enough seed in my cages to last me for a while. I feel that we ought to acknowledge these occasions, because we grumble enough when things are not right. I hope to return the compliment at our show (Swansea) next week, and will look after the Border section.

YORK.

The annual exhibition in connection with the York C.B.S. was held on Oct. 30 and 31, under C.B.U. rules and patronage of the Y.C.B.B. and M.C. The venue was the Exhibition Buildings; a finer place for a function of this character it would almost be impossible to find, it being well situated, lofty and spacious, with a magnificent top light, entirely free from draughts, and providing most comfortable surroundings for both the birds and the visitors. Record breaking was the order of the day, the entries totalling 404, against 317 on the last occasion—an item one is always pleased to chronicle. Besides the exhibits being so numerous, the quality far exceeded anything that had been seen before in this great Cathedral city. The staging had been well arranged on the gallery principle all round the rooms. Every bird could be seen at a glance, without the necessity of handling. At the opening ceremony, H. H. Riley Smith, Esq., officiated, and made a speech of an exceedingly encouraging nature, and was supported by Coun. J. Birch (Lord Mayor-elect) and Coun. Boddy. Mr. A. Richardson spoke on behalf of the chairman, Mr. T. Wright. Everything appeared in ample order, and things ran smoothly and well. The president is the Rev. P. J. Shaw, an enthusiastic supporter. The treasurer is Mr. E. Cardwell, who has heart and soul in the welfare of the society. The committee are a band of most excellent workers: Messrs. Campling, Hunter, Chittenden, Senr. Humphries, Simeson, Sissons, White, Watson, and Goodhall, all of whom deserve every praise for their exertions. The stewards were Messrs. Campling, Chittenden, and White, a trio who know their duties to a nicety, and proved themselves capital and practical officials. The worthy secretary is Mr. A. Wand, and in him the club possesses a manipulator far above the ordinary. He is assisted by Mr. H. Thompson, who is also a capital helper; together they trot in fine style. There is no doubt that much of the success of the show is the outcome of their efforts. Mr. D. Hunter was the lucky fancier who captured the president's beautiful silver cup for best bird bred by a member in the current year, his buff ticked Norwich doing the needful. This cup has to be won twice in succession or three times in all before becoming anyone's own property. Reserve for cup was a good exhibit staged by Mr. H. Shorney. The judges were Messrs. J. Robson and A. Brown, who were assisted by a capital light during the ticket sorting.

The Members' Classes.

This section provided many specimens of great merit, and one could have selected some extremely choice birds that would have counted well amongst those doing duty in the higher circle. Type and quality was most pronounced in both the Norwich and Yorkshire classes, proving for itself that right stuff is being produced in and around this locality.

BRADFORD CITY.

The City of Bradford O.S. held their annual open show on October 31st, in the Feversham-street Council School, Leeds-road, under the patronage and rules of the Yorkshire Union, the Y.C.C., and the O.N.P.C. A splendid schedule had been issued, containing thirty-four classes, and a grand list of specials, these attracting an entry of 536, an average of nearly sixteen per class throughout the show. The management was in very capable hands; Mr. F. Rhodes, the secretary, and Mr. A. Gill, his assistant, are thoroughly up-to-date, and very obliging. They had everything well in hand throughout the whole of the day, and in their arduous task were well backed up by Mr. T. Fortnam, their president, Mr. Fred. Ludbrook, treasurer, and Messrs. Stansfield, Horsfield, Simonett, Holmes, Morement, Denison, Stark, and others as stewards. The sectional specials for most points were secured by the following: Classes 1 to 10, Messrs. Bailey and Swanger, first; Mr. W. H. Shackleton, second. Classes 11 and 12, Messrs. Munn, Taylor and Haigh, and Bailey and Swanger, tie. Classes 13 to 16, Mr. J. Wilcock, first; Messrs. Sutcliffe and Son, and H. J. Chittenden tie for second place. Classes 17 to 22, Messrs. J. Haigh and Son, first; Mr. A. Hirst, second. Classes 23 to 26, Mr. F. Ludbrook, first; Mr. A. Radley, second. Classes 27 to 32, Novice Yorkshires, Mr. Beaumont, first; Messrs. Kilner and H. Lodge, tie for second place. Classes 33 to 34, Novice Norwich, Mr. F. Hammond, first; Messrs. Fortnam and Markwell, tie for second place. Mr. J. W. Ramsden's medal for best fed bird, moulted on his feed, was secured by Messrs. Haigh and Son, with their unflighted yellow Norwich, and Mr. J. Sandiford's medal for hottest fed Yorkshire moulted on his feed, fell to Mr. Allen Haigh's uneven marked bird. CAGE BIRDS prizes for Amateurs: First place was secured by Mr. O. Mitchell, several exhibitors being on a level for second prize. Mr. P. Mason was the official judge of the Yorkshire Union, and placed the cards on all open and novice Yorkshire classes, Mr. H. S. Naylor, the assistant, taking Norwich, both open and novice, and all selling classes. The awards of both gentlemen left little cause for adverse comment. The quality of the birds throughout was excellent, and they were a treat, and well repaid the visitors from a distance who had come expecting to see a fine show of Yorkshires and Norwich. Amongst the throng we noticed Messrs. Millar, Williams, and Hodgson, from Skipton; Mr. J. Cuthbertson (Darlington), Mr. J. Wheldrake (Goole), Mr. Waters (Barnsley), and Messrs. Rennie and Crisp, from London.

ILKESTON.

The eighth annual show of this enterprising Society duly came off on October 31 and November 2, in the Victoria Hall, kindly lent by Mrs. Hall for the occasion. About 100 generous persons gave donations, ranging from 6d. to 10s. 6d., towards the funds of the Society. A fine special prize list in addition was compiled through the generosity of shopkeepers and others in the town. There were 38 open and four members' classes. A fair entry was made in Norwich Plainhead section, and the "Fox" tried hard to stem the "Severn" current; both these exhibitors fighting hard for premier honours with some high-class, typical Norwich. The Crest and Crestbred classes were badly supported, there being only 33 in eight classes. Surely the Crest is on the wane in the Midlands. Such liberal classification, with a special judge, ought certainly to be better patronised by exhibitors. Yorkshires were just as badly supported—21 entries only in five classes. One Cinnamon class came up well with some fine birds, Mr. Joseph Bexson securing 1st and 2nd with a very smart pair of Cinnamons. Hybrids came up very well, there being 23 in two classes. British birds also made a much better average all through than the Canaries, though they were not quite so numerous as at last year's record show. Some excellent crack exhibits turned up here. Foreign Birds were very pretty, and attracted much attention from the public. The gift class was a treat for good birds, 11 in all, and they should sell well and help much to swell the funds. All the committee and officials worked splendidly to make the show go off successfully. Mr. T. Smith is a grand secretary, and does his work in a very unostentatious manner; he had everything at his fingers' ends. Mr. Vardy judged the Nor., Yorks, Cinn., A.O.V., Gift, and Selling classes; Mr. Rhodes the Crests; and Mr. Chas. Houlton the Hybrids, British, and Foreign birds. The work was got through in good time, and the catalogues of awards were on sale before 3 p.m.

PENRHIWCEIBER.

This show was held on October 29th, at the Workman's Hall. The cage bird section was somewhat poorly represented in numbers, but the quality of the birds exhibited was such as might have some influence on the Committee in inducing them to cater more liberally for this section in the future, and to provide a specialist cage bird judge. Attention given to these and a few other suggestions would certainly repay the Committee, especially in view of the fact that if properly managed the cage bird section of a mixed show is second to none from a financial point of view. Mr. Evans makes an ideal secretary; he is most courteous and obliging, as also is Mr. Cahill, the cage bird steward, whose whole attention seemed to be centred on the care of the birds under his charge. In fact the committee as a whole, considering it their first venture, was all that could be desired. Mr. Proud placed the cards.

YORKS. CK. (7): 1, withheld; 2, res, hc, Wilton, leader, cl, yell, hen, nice type and quality, good length, not quite ready; 3, Weeks, eye tkd, buff, nice length, good position, bit long in feather; vhc, Oats; c, Evans. CAN: cancelled. BRIT. SOFTBILL (9): 1spl, Clayton, Song Thrush, grand quality feather, nice moonings, very steady, well staged; 2, withheld; 3, vhc, hc, Castree, Whinchat, the Blackwood winner, looking well to-day; res. Dean; vhc, c, Pritchard, a good class this. HARD BILL (9): 1, 3, rs, Wilkins, topping Greenie leading, 3, yell, Bunting, very moderate, some thought it might have given way to res, Chaffinch, in perfect feather and steady; vhc (2), Whitney; hc, Gibbs; c, Pritchard.

BARNSTAPLE.

The 21st annual show was held on Nov. 3rd and 4th, in the Market Hall, unquestionably one of the finest in the kingdom. The birds were located in an ante-room, and were nicely staged, and well attended to by experienced and painstaking stewards, amongst the foremost being Mr. E. J. Piper. Mr. P. Harris was again the Hon. Sec., and, as usual, had everything working as smoothly as clockwork. Mr. J. H. Payne made the awards.

RAMSGATE.

First show held at the Drill Hall on October 21st. The birds were staged in a very nice room, which, however, would have been somewhat improved had there been more light; but taking all things into consideration we must say the show was a great success. The birds were of excellent quality, and some fine specimens, both in Yorkshires and Norwich, faced the judge. Messrs. Patterson and Taylor showed some grand Norwich, and Mr. Johnson put down some topping Yorkies, which were much admired. The entry was first-class, there being over 200 exhibits, which speaks well for the future success of this go-ahead society. Everything was in first-class working order. The secretary, Mr. Thomas, was most obliging, and held the reins in quite a veteran's style. The committee worked very hard indeed, and it was a highly successful exhibition. Mr. Gibbs judged, and his awards were well received.

NOR., CL. YELL. (6): 1, Maddison, beautiful quality, fine colour; 2, Taylor, fine size, full of colour, rare chest; 3, Gwyn, another good one for eye, fails only in colour and quality; 4, Eade, moderate; vhc, Richards. BUFF (12): 1, 3, c, Taylor, former fine quality, good undercolour, round head, nice chest, an admired exhibit; 3rd, another good one, best of quality, short wings and tail, lacks the bloom; 2, Patterson, giant, grand type, with fine head, not the quality of winner, a rare stock bird, however; 4, Wood, nice quality small; vhc, Maddison; hc, Wood. TKD., ETC. (7): 1, Thompson, sweet bird, grand quality, short tail, beautiful wing carriage, taking exhibit, wins; 2, vhc, c, Taylor, 1st fine bold ticked buff, rare substance, grand type and quality, trifle weak in head, good bird; 3, Wood, grand quality, sweet type, bit fat, which spoilt its outline; 4, Gwyn, splendid colour, lacks quality; c, Cock. HEN (13): 1, spl, Patterson and Charmer, wonderful type, brim full of colour, best of quality, fit for any company; 2, Stewart, another good one for quality, fine shape, not the best of carriage, and fails somewhat in condition; 3, Howard, fine head and neck, good carriage, shade longer in flights; 4, Taylor, nice colour, carries little too much feather; vhc, Gwyn; hc, Taylor. CL., NON-FED (6): 1, spl, Holness, a gem for quality, very rich natural colour, good one; 2, Gwyn, another good one, wonderful size and shape, with nice head, hardly the quality of feather; 3, Kew, very moderate; vbc, Maddison; hc, c, Elliott. TKD., ETC. (4): 1, Holness, fine bold bird, good chest, short tail and flights, in good form, wins; 2, Howard, sweet quality but pinched in head, not quite the right type, a good one bowever; 4, Ashbee. CREST (4): 1, Nicholl, very neat, good body; 2, Thompson, nice one, but very small; 3, Potton, bigger crest, but rough at sides. YORKS. CL. (4): 1, spl, 3, Johnson, leader perfect gem of a buff, stands like a guardsman, feathered like wax, a tip-topper; 3rd, fine lengthy yellow, splendid carriage, well drawn, hardly fit yet; 2, Reeve, nice yellow, good length and quality, inclined to get across perch, good bird, wants training; 4, Chapman, well up on leg, lacks quality. MKD., ETC.: 1, 2, Johnson, pair of beauties, former sweet yellow ticked, best of quality wings, nice pipe tail; 2nd, lengthy variegated, beautifully drawn, rare quality, very steady; 3, Reeve, good one, well up on leg, nice tail and wings, will improve yet; 4, Allen, good style, wants steadying; vhc, Chandler; bc, Fasham. PAIRS (7): 1, spl, Patterson, Norwich gems, charming buff cock, beautiful undercolour, quality A1, also lovely yellow hen, rare head, short, and thick-set; 2, Bowes, tip-top pair of Borders, both nice jaunty carriage, well shown, beautiful feather; 3, Scharpf, crested, well matched, good crested cock and fine C.B. hen; vhc, Fasham; bc, Scharpf. NOR. CL. YELL. (Isle of Thanet only) (9): 1, spl, Jones, good one full of colour, nice head and neck, bonny bird; 2, Mills, another nice one, short tail and flights, rare head, not quite the colour and quality; 3, Brown, fine colour, good chest, weak in head; 4, Kew, nice shape and quality, lacks the finish; vhc, Housden; hc, Gwyn; c, Jones BUFF (14): Hot lot; 1, Moore, fine head and neck, beautiful type, thick-set, good one, but a batb would improve him, Mr. M.; 2, Mills, good size and depth of chest, well up in colour, slightly browed, fine bird; 3, 4, Jones, very similar in build, nice meal and undercolour, on small side; vhc, Mills; hc, Ashbee; c, Brown. TKD., ETC. (21): 1, Eliott, beautiful buff, ticked on head, grand colour, good full front, short wings and tail, might have been shown to still better advantage; 2, 3, Jones, two good ones, full of colour again, both nice size, former better type, the latter a trifle coarse in feather, but both bonny; 4, Hobbs, sweet quality and type, fails in head properties; vhc, Kew, Housden; hc, Brown; c, Moore. A.O.V. (5): 1, 4, Boney, two grand C.B. cocks, well lashed, carrying plenty of feather; 2, Thomas, nice exhibit; 3, Moore, moderate; vhc, Thornton. MULES. A practical, up-to-date guide to the cult of Canary breeding, designed specially for the use of the beginner in the hobby. It contains many helpful illustrations, and deals very fully, and in an easily-understandable manner, with the choice, sexing and mating of the birds, feeding for condition, the cages and their fittings, the bird-room, egg-food, nest-building, rearing and moulting the young, colour-feeding, training for show, and all the details and difficulties likely to confront the breeder.

CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

AVIARIES, BIRD-ROOMS AND CAGES.

This Special Handbook is written by that well-known fancier Mr. H. Norman ("Cage Birds" Artist-in-chief) who has illustrated it with a wealth of helpful drawings. It also contains Ten Lovely Full-page Photographic Plates.

It is a practical guide which must be on every bird-lover's bookshelf who desires to thoroughly understand the proper building, fitting and management of Aviaries, Bird-rooms and Cages.

Manchester Puts up a Very Good Show.

Despite the disastrous cotton strike, there is an excellent entry of quality birds, a splendid "gate," and a record take at the sales office.

Manchester's annual exhibition, held on October 30th and 31st last, in the Ilulme Town Hall, can rarely have been held under more discouraging and depressing local trade conditions—conditions which, as must be apparent to everyone, are of vital importance to the welfare of all hobbies. Yet the dark cloud which hangs over Lancashire's chief industry, and consequently over so many of the working men in the County of the Red Rose, signally failed to do more than partially eclipse this old-established fixture. That the cotton strike had so small an effect on their show is a matter upon which the executive can be congratulated—upon which, indeed, we have reason to know they did congratulate themselves. The event under notice, the 26th of its kind held by the Manchester and Northern Counties O.S., drew an entry of 1,655 birds in the open classes, which, with the 208 birds in the members' amateur and novice classes, made the satisfying total of 1,863 birds on view in the exhibition. Of the quality one can hardly speak too highly. In all sections the birds were of very high class indeed, while in some it can be truthfully said that the cream of the land were gathered together in competition.

The display was much appreciated by the huge crowd of fanciers who put in an appearance on the Saturday, and taxed to the utmost the resources of the fine room which the society is fortunate enough to have at its disposal. The "gate" on the Friday (the first day) was also a satisfactory one. A good view of the up-to-date method of staging the exhibits which obtains here, is given in our large photowmph. It is that known as the three-tier system, and which allows the utmost to be made of the floor space in the interests of the visitors. It is very safe, too, as any cage can be reached down without disturbing its neighbours, while the cross-pieces from aisle to aisle at top make the whole wonderfully firm and strong. That everything possible was done for the comfort of the birds and the lookers-on goes without saying—Manchester has a reputation of long years' standing for doing things of this kind to perfection, a reputation they are not likely to lose in a hurry. The officials and members, both "old stagers" and "raw recruits," are too strongly imbued with the true spirit of fancier-ship to permit of such a happening. This it is which accounts for Manchester Show being such a happy meeting-ground for fanciers from all over the kingdom. And this year was no exception to the rule, for we noticed present faces well-known in Scotland, in Wales, in Ireland, and in all the four corners of England, not forgetting the Isle of Man and the Isle of Wight. Their owners seemed to be thoroughly enjoying themselves, too. We enjoyed ourselves, anyway, though it did rain (as is customary when we venture to journey to Cottonopolis).

Some Deserved "Pats on the Back."

No doubt much of the credit for the success of the function from the social side has to be laid at the door of that most genial and kindly of presidents, Mr. W. A. Blaydon, than whom there can surely be no fancier more respected. He has a welcome for everyone, whether noted exhibitor or new beginner, and of a truth everyone welcomes him in return. On this occasion he was, as one of his colleagues observed to us, "in proper exhibition form." No doubt, too, the show from the business point of view is equally indebted to Mr. G. W. F. Lythgoe, hon. sec. and show manager of the society for so many years, and this season joint manager with Mr. E. Jones. His organising abilities have long been recognised as exceptional, and the ease and order which characterise the working of Manchester Show supply yearly proof of this. While keen as mustard from the business standpoint, however, Mr. Lythgoe is courteous and helpful to all enquirers, and considerate as to the wishes of exhibitors and visitors. Owing to exigencies of business he was unable to be present during the whole of the two days of the show, and this accordingly threw considerable responsibility on to the shoulders of Mr. Jones, who, though young in years, rose to the occasion in highly creditable style, and achieved no inconsiderable measure of success. In him the society has a highly promising official, a real hard-worker, and an enthusiasist. Those seasoned and popular fanciers, Messrs. J. Raynes and Geo. Bleach, rendered splendid assistance, both in the secretary's office and in the show-room, while that veteran, Mr. T. Pease (or "Master Tommy," as his friends affectionately term him), kept his eagle eye on things generally, and worked as only a true fancier can, early and late. The feeding arrangements were admirable, and were in the hands of Messrs. F. Parker (Canaries) and S. W. Birchley (Brit. and For.), Mr. D. H. Creasy also assisting in the Foreign section. These gentlemen deserve a special word of praise for the care expended on their charges.

The members of committee, who very efficiently stewarded the judges, saw to the general arrangements, and unpacked and despatched the exhibits in careful, painstaking manner, were Messrs. E. Blensdale, H. Bootliman, W. Boswell, T. Brennan, G. Bruce, C. Clarke, S. Cook, J. Coulson, G. W. Crompton, W. Downing, W. Filder, J. Garner, G. F. Gray, W. Harding, J. Hughes, D. Leigh, W. Lloyd, G. Massey, S. McCann, E. Morgan, C. Pollitt, E. Riley, C. A. Slater, A. G. Smith, J. Spencer, and W. Whalley, with Messrs. Creasy, Parker and Birchley as well. The birds were got off on their homeward journey in record time after the close of the show. All were away by nine o'clock, and the hall locked up by 9.30 p.m. The long distance birds (the Scottish ones, for instance) were "facilitated," and left about four o'clock. The birds being held back until Monday were carefully tended early on the Sunday morning.

T'brass is a'reight.

We have already referred to the fact that the "gate" was a good one, and the sale of catalogues was good also, a slight deficiency in these departments compared with last year's show, being counterbalanced by a splendid "take" at the sales office, where the receipts totalled up a record, a considerable number of high-priced birds finding new owners. This will be satisfactory news for the well-wishers—and they must be legion—of this old-established society. The illness of Mr. A. Ambler (which necessitated Mr. Halliday's judging the Yorks) was regrettable, and we heard on all hands expressions of sympathy and wishes for his speedy recovery. We noticed, by the way, Mr. F. W. Barnett looking over his favourite section, the Crests and Crest-breds. Some of the Belgians, it is worthy of notice, actually travelled down all the way from Aberdeen, while a fine team came from Coatbridge.

The "Giants" and the "Spangle-backs."

The Lancashires held premier position in the schedule, and made a good display. Unfortunately Rochdale Show the week previously always acts as a deterrent to many exhibitors, owing to the birds having met there, and so, as it were, found their places in the prize list. The cream of the fancy, however, appeared on the benches, and a number of the best Lancashires ever staged faced the judge, Messrs. Barrass, Oldham, Garner, Butterworth, Adams, West, Vickers, and Lowe did well. The Lizards were also a grand lot for quality, the winners taking some sorting out. Many of the birds were far from steady, and as steadiness is so much required to show the fine markings of a Lizard to perfection, some good specimens were no doubt overlooked through the birds refusing to show themselves to the best advantage. The principal winners in some stiff battles were Messrs. Dewsnap, Dickinson, Rukin, Holland, W. P. Barnes, Hampshire, and Fisher.

Among the Chubby Ones.

The Norwich section we were sorry to see not quite up to expectations as regards number of entries, although it was the third show of the Norwich Plainhead Club. But the quality, as is usual at Manchester, was of the highest standard, exceptional specimens being staged in every class. Such well-known breeders as Messrs. Irons, Seed, Cook, Dent, Raynes, Aitchison, Evans, Bowyer, and others put down some good birds, and these naturally obtained much attention. Mr. S. Cook's now well-known Ticked Yellow again rightly headed its class, as did Mr. Thos. Seed's "Little King II." and Mr. Evans' clear buff hen. The magnificent natural-colour Yellow belonging to that well-known Scottish enthusiast, Mr. W. Aitchison, was acknowledged by most to be one of the best Norwich in the champion section. The entries in the amateur section turned up satisfactorily, specimens well up to the standard, and capable of holding their own in the champion classes, being staged by Messrs. Hill, Curtis, Anderton, Venables, Fletcher, Walters, Oliver, Leeming Bros., Fildes and Marlor. Coming to the Border fancies, these little gems made a splendid display, both as regards numbers and quality, many noted Northern rooms sending strong teams down to represent them. Mr. J. S. Wilson, of Workington, secured no less than four lots. Other magnificent birds were those of Messrs. Lewthwaite, Hopper Bros., Robertson, Hancocks, Pennington, Cubby, Treadwell, Wardleworth, and Roberts. The Greens were a particularly nice lot, good both in colour and type.

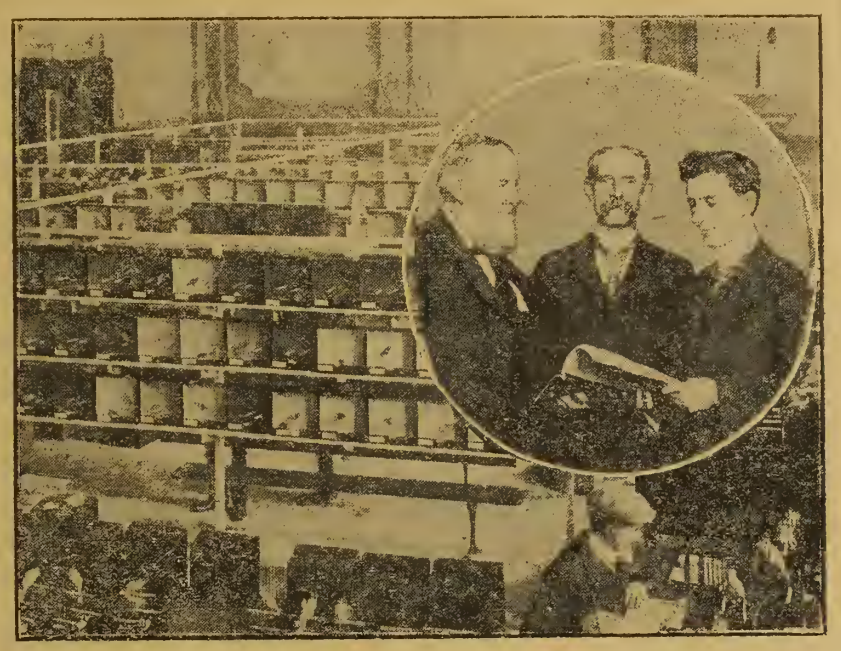
In the Norwich Greens 33 turned up in the four classes provided, and a good percentage of these were foul-marked. The principal winners in the section were Messrs. Harrison, Barker, and Abbott, Jenkins, and R. Davies, who staged some excellent specimens.

Style and Headpieces.

Yorkshires, those birds of "grace and beauty," did not muster as strongly as one would have liked. Many very meritorious specimens were, nevertheless, to be seen. The marked yellow cock, staged by Mr. W. Broughton, struck one as a bird of exceptional merit, and the clear yellow cock, owned by Mr. A. Hirst, was voted a gem. Mr. L. Lane had on view a charming yellow hen, while the clear buff hen, grandly staged by Mr. G. F. Gray, captivated many. In the amateur classes Messrs. W. P. Fletcher and G. Welsh stood out prominently. The Yorkshire Greens were not so numerous as we have seen them on past occasions at this great Northern show, still many magnificent exhibits met one's gaze. Prizes were fairly well split up, the "spoil" being captured by Messrs. Teare, Hughes, Butterworth, Davie, Drinkwater, Cunningham, and Parker. The depth of colour observable throughout these classes was very satisfactory, and the symmetry of outline pleased greatly. Greens are undoubtedly advancing in character. No cinnamon-marked birds were on view, yet a show or two back we remember quite a capital lot of these charming exhibits being present, and we had the pleasure of saying very nice things about them. Now, cinnamon-marked fanciers, buck up, and don't let it occur again. The Crests and Crest-breds contained several "eye openers," and provided a study to those who swear by the "toppin" variety. Quite a multitude of curious eyes were cast on a buff, marked wings and tail, Dark Crest, owned by that well-known Northern "crack," Mr. T. Taylor. This specimen, we guess, is the Newcastle hero, and without doubt is one of the very best. Mr. W. Radley was not far behind with a bird of wonderful merit. In the Crested hens, Mr. T. J. King planted a couple of "right 'uns" down, his first bird being a topper. Amongst the Crest-breds, Mr. W. Radley held the whip hand in cocks, his buff var. being a monster, with a fine rise and great width of skull, lashed to perfection. In the hens, Mr. T. Taylor scored. The Novice section provided more than one bird quite capable of doing a lot of winning in open competitions. Mr. T. Bowyer, in particular, staged a couple of beauties. Cinnamons turned up fairly well, and contained the cream of the fancy. The "spoil" was split up, the following staging choice exhibits: Messrs. Godley, Davies, Bentley, Handt, Riding, King, and Donmer, the latter not doing quite such execution as has been the case on many previous occasions. In the novice section Messrs. Barraclow and Hill stood out prominently with nice teams. Belgians and Scotch Fancies were fairly well up to the mark. The former appeared to be smaller in build than usual. Many of the birds were far from being through the moult, and may in the course of a short time look much better. On scrutinising the amateur section, one was struck very forcibly with the great advancement accomplished since the 1907 function. The quality of feather has been improved upon, and the characteristics of the various specimens are a nearer approach towards the ideal. Many of the exhibits could have been placed in the open competition without fear of disgracing their owners, so meritorious were they.

Some Feathered Beauties.

Taken on the whole, the Hybrid, British and Foreign sections were considered very satisfactory, for, though they shared in the general drop as regard entries, the birds exhibited therein were a grand and highly attractive lot. Needless to say they were, as of yore, a potent attraction to the visitors. Beauty of staging was conspicuous throughout, and the exhibitors concerned are to be congratulated on presenting their pets in so effective a setting. The Hybrids saw Messrs. Jackson and Bond, Beaty, Walsh, Lea, Somerfield, R. W. Jones, Coffey, R. Jackson, Leigh, Longden, and Blackburn sharing the chief prizes. In the British classes the grand specimens put down by Messrs. A. P. Hurst, F. R. Jones, Tams and Son, J. Walsh, McMurdo, Chick, Beaty, A. Coffey, Pickles, Longden, Angus and Crane, S. W. Birchley, Holt, Alton, and Mort were conspicuous. Mr. Birchley secured both "Lucullus" food specials, and his Tree Creeper, truly a gem, was selected as winner of one of the L. and P.O.S. medals. In the Foreign classes Mr. Beaty held most of the trumps, and came out on top in three out of the four classes, Mr. Pickles serving up the other winner. Both of these gentlemen, with Mr. J. H. Harrison also, had some charming birds on view, in delightful condition. Messrs. Cheetham, H. H. Cooper, Creasey, and Smith and Son had out some beautiful specimens as well. Mr. Beaty's Lory secured the Foreign Bird Club medal.



The judges were Messrs. S. R. Compston (Macclesfield), Lancs. and Lizards; J. Trengove (Rishton), Nor. Plainheads; W. J. Ferguson (Lancaster), Borders and Novice Members; J. Dobson (London), Crests, Crests, and Amateur Members' Nor.; R. Halliday (Shipley)—deputising for Mr. Ambler, indisposed—open Yorks., and Amateur Members' Yorks.; E. G. Wright (Manchester), Belg., and Scots.; and G. E. Weston (London), Hybs., Brit., and Foreign. They were favoured with an excellent light (not too common a blessing in Manchester) whilst discharging their duties, and very little grumbling reached our ears concerning their decision.

Mr. Compston's Classes.

LANCS. CL. BUFF COPPY: 1, J. Butterworth, grand coppy, very good in front, well filled up behind, nicely moulded, long-sided, with good position on perch; 2, Barrass, good coppy, rather tight behind neck, making it look narrow behind, rather slack in feather on body; 3, 4, Oldham; 3, nice type, not quite the substance of other two, coppy not as large, but good pattern of coppy, not through moult yet; 4, very tight feathered bird, well shown, wants wee bit more substance; vhc, Garner. TKD. YELL. Jones, charming Greenie-Bullie for shape and style, grand head and chest, fine rich colour, nice size; 3, Coffey, Chaffinch-Bramble-finch, does not show the parentage any too well, very steady, grandly polished plumage, excellent colour; 4, Longden, Greenie-Bullie, biggest in chase and a grand one for shape, colour and markings, unfortunately had plucked a few feathers out of its breast; vhc, Mrs. Cue; hc, Birchley. BRIT. GOLDFINCH (22): 1, Hurst, excels in blaze, wonderfully expansive and square cut, nice clean colour, though not quite up yet, grand almond Finch, very silky plumage, fine size and shape, should take stopping later one; 2, McMurdo, another beautiful bird, loses to leader in size and cut of blaze, though really excellent in those respects, a grand one for substance, and style, richly tanned and polished; 3, Tams and Son, lovely colour and condition, very shapely and stylish, well tanned and marked, grand little bird, fails somewhat in size and shape of face, but scores heavily on account of its forward conditon; 4, Walsh, another fine Goldie, nice flush, well buttoned wings, good chestnut, in capital condition, extra 4, Holt, very nice all round bird, good colour and condition, excellent wings, correctly cut blaze; vhc, Owens; hc, Allcock; c, Wagstaff; Nos. 1438, and 1439 had their flights missing; No. 1446 has a break of light feathers in under-blaze; No. 1448 is of very doubtful nationality. BULLFINCH (9): 1, F. R. Jones, gem for colour and quality, clean and rich on breast, good dense cap, fine back, wings and bars, shade slim in build; 2, 4, Walsh, leader the best bird for type, very cobby and stylish, grand head and wings, just beaten for breast colour and polish, will improve, close race; 4th, hot-coloured field-plumaged specimen, good bird, but loose at thighs at times; 3, Beaty, beautifully steady and shapely Bullie, trifle dull in breast colour yet; vhc, Hurst; hc, Ideson; c, Angus and Crane. LINNET (16): 1, Hurst, lovely all round exhibit, fine size, substance and shape, very steady, plenty of whites, rich sound colour, very nicely pencilled all over; 2, c, Walsh, not quite so thick-set as leader, beauty for colour and polish, grandly marked, nice one; 3, hc, Pickles, splendid size, grand chest, profusion of pencilling, little backward in condition; should do well later on; 4, Alton, another fine bird for shape and markings, beautiful colour and quality; vhc, Longden. SISKIN ETC. (7): 1, 4, Walsh, extra good Twite to the fore, for size, colour and polish a clinker, very nicely marked; 4th, smart non-fed Siskin, lovely quality; 2, Angus and Crane, big, and very good Lesser Redpoll, nice sound colour, finely marked; 3, Birchley, romping big fed buff Siskin, fine chest and head, nice feather; vhc, Whitney and Son; hc, Beaty; c, Fryer. GREENFINCH (11): 1, Walsh, splendid bird for size and shape, fed a nice even colour, and not overdone, lovely wings and tail, steady as a rock and tight as wax in condition; 2, Pickles, romping big non-fed sweet bird for quality, good deep colour, beautiful condition; 3, Coffey, grand bird for size and shape, rich colour, fine head and chest, seemed a trifle "soapy," in feather round neck; 4, Beaty, another excellent non-fed bird, full of quality; vhc, Hulme; hc, McMurdo; c, Fryer. BRAMBLE OR CHAFF. (13): 1, Longden, we suppose is the old champion Bramble, can still make the best of them "gallop," gem for richness of colour, quality and clean cut markings, grand size and shape, well spangled; 2, 3, Hurst, another topping Bramble leading, shade slimmer in build, very deep rich colour, grand hood, beautifully spangled, close up; 3rd, lovely Chaffinch, splendid size and shape, beautifully marked, needs little more time yet; 4, c, Angus and Crane, two fine non-fed Brambles, excellent size and shape; vhc, Coffey; c, Birchley. A.O.V. SEEDEATER (11): 1, 2, Chick, leader a wonderful Hawfinch, immense size, grand shape, plenty of colour, lovely bib and other markings, very forward condition, will want stopping, 2nd a topping Corn Bunting, extra large, very steady, full of marking, lovely condition; 3, vhc, Walsh, clinking good Yellow Bunting, wonderfully rich in colour, and well marked, a shade slim in build at present; 4, Hurst, also a beautiful Hawfinch, grand size, shape and bib; hc, Newlands; c, Pickles. HEN FINCH (10): 1, c, Birchley, splendid hen Hawfinch, grand shape, very stoutly built, lovely colour and polish, very clean-cut, dense bib, quickly claimed at catalogue price, 50/-; 2, Walsh, Corn Bunting, good bird, very steady, and polished, beautifully marked; 3, vhc, Chick, leader lovely Siskin, very shapely and full of marking, latter the noted hen Hawfinch "Queen," but easily deposed here; 4, spl, Alton, very nice hen Bullie, in good trim; hc, Bennett. WAGTAIL, ETC. (5): 1, 4, Walsh, leader a nice Meadow Pipit, excellent colour and polish, latter neat Grey Wagtail; 2, Chick, very pretty Grey Wagtail, fine plumage, looks like a hen; 3, Birchley, also a Grey Wag., grand bird, little rough in feather. SMALL INSECTIV. (7): 1, 2, vhc, c, Birchley, splendid team, staged in grand form, gem of a Treecreeper leading, followed by a fine Black Redstart; 3, Beaty, real good Hoopoe, in nice condition; 4, Williamson, lovely Blackcap, rich colour, good head; hc, Walsh. THRUSH, ETC. (5): 1, Mort, fine, shapely Songthrush, grand head and chest, rich colour, well mooned; 2, Alton, big, fine Starling, beautifully spangled, perfect condition; 3, Howard, very nice Blackbird, good size and shape, rich beak and cercs, not quite fit yet; 4, Young, another excellent Song Thrush.

FOREIGN PARROTS (8): 1, 3, Beaty, beautiful Lory leading, magnificent colour and condition, 3rd pair of Pileated Parrakeets, grand exhibits, but trifle wild, and hen had damaged her eye slightly, both beautifully staged; 2, H. H. Cooper, exceptionally good King, rich head and breast, fine trim; 4, vhc, Cheetham, really fine Port Lincoln leading, hardly over moult yet; hc, Ballington; c, Ditchfield. SEEDEATERS (10): 1, Beaty, magnificent pair Black-headed Gouldians, perfect condition, we heard were the Palace winners; 2, Cheetham, lovely Paradise Whydah, deep, rich colour, exceptionally fine, perfect tail; 3, Pickles, charming Pintail Nonpariel, very tight in feather, beautiful colour; 4, Creasy, fine Zebra Waxbill, gem for colour and markings; vhc, Harrison; hc, Bennett; c, Morgan. TANAGERS, ETC. (6): 1, Pickles, Maroon Tanager, simply perfection, marvel for size, depth of colour, and polish on the plumage; 2, hc, Harrison, very beautiful blue-winged Tanager, charming condition; 3, 4, Beaty, gold-fronted Fruitsucker leading, fine specimen, hardly over moult yet; vhc, Creasy. LARGE (5): 1, Beaty, very fine red-fronted Toucan, rich in colour, perfect condition; 2, vbc, Harrison, white-throated Ground Thrush leading, real beauty for size, colour and markings, splendid condition, latter fine pair silver-eared Mesias, heavy in moult; 3, Walsh, sweetly pretty Shama, perfect in every way, including song; 4, Smith and Son, grand sulphur-breasted Toucan, fine colour, in excellent trim; hard luck to meet winner. MEMBERS' CLASSES—HYB. GLASGOW SOUTHERN (Confined).

Glasgow Confined O.S. annual exhibition of Scotch Fancy Canaries was held in the Grand National Halls, Glasgow, on October 31st, and was a success. The quality was far ahead of anything staged in formers years. The entries were 50 up on the 1907 total, and the competition was keen all through. Mr. Bullions is the most genial of presidents, and takes a great interest in the Association; everybody got a welcome from him. Mr. Fleming, the secretary, is a gentleman of great personality. A practical breeder, he is master of his position, and in every way is a thoroughly capable secretary. He was ably assisted by a hard-working Committee. The business of the show was got through orderly and smartly. The judges, Messrs. Arnot (Sanchie), Black (Govan), Knox and Watson (Glasgow), Caldwell (Ballieston) and Paterson (Edinburgh), could not have been more painstaking, and their awards gave every satisfaction. The cup contest was much keener than is usual in a confined show. The leading birds were above the average, and at the final there was not a great deal between the two. However, the yellow piebald cock had the advantage in a most determined droop, and being seasoned to the show bench was steady, and worked with a will. Mr. Blue is to be congratulated on his success in winning the cup and gold medal, and Mr. Montgomery in gaining the medal for best of opposite sex. Mr. Renwick claimed the second Buff cock at £6 6s., and Mr. Porteous the green cock at £5 5s., other sales were also effected.

"CAGE BIRDS." 154, FLEET ST., LONDON.

LARKHALL.

The members of the Larkhall C.B.A. held their annual show in the Miners' Hall, on October 31st, and although there were seven classes less than at last year's show, the entries were a good bit up, numbering 188 in all. The show was as well conducted as any we have seen, and although it was "Larkhall," there was very little "larking," everything being conducted in quite a business like manner. The birds were all nicely staged, and there was plenty of good bright sunlight, which showed up all the exhibits to full advantage. Mr. G. Martin, of Hamilton, judged the Canary section, and his awards were well received. One thing that we noticed was the absence of Scotch Fancies, there only being two in the whole show. Mr. J. Livingstone, of Bathgate, judged British and Foreign birds, and he also seemed to have pleased the majority. The cup for best young bird was won by the 3rd Crested cock, the 3rd Hybrid (Linnet-Bullie) being runner-up, and only losing by the fact that it wanted three flight feathers in the left wing. However, it won a medal as second in cup competition, the 1st Greenfinch Mule gaining third. Mr. James Pollock makes a splendid secretary, being very willing and obliging to everyone. We heard rumours of the possibility of an open show next year.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. It kills all insects, harmless to everything else.

EDINBURGH (Southern) O.S.

The Edinburgh Southern O.S. held their 16th annual exhibition and competition in the Central Halls, Nicholson Street, on Oct 31. Office bearers: vice-president, Mr. R. Martin; secretary and treasurer, Mr. James Drysdale; committee, Messrs. W. Thomson, J. Baxter, C. Duke, J. Clark. The judges were Messrs. Carson (Dalkeith), and J. Adams (Dundee), whose awards gave satisfaction. There were 32 classes, only one or two classes being cancelled, through lack of support. The principal sections were the Norwich and Borders, which were both strong in numbers and quality combined, many of the winners being fit to win in open competition. The winner of the Cup and Gold Badge was Mr. J. Robertson, with a pied foul cock for the best Scotch fancy in hall. The winner was a fine type of a Scotch fancy. The runner-up was a buff foul cock belonging to Mr. Farquhar. The gold medal for best bird in the Norwich and Border classes was won by Mr. W. Thomson, with a very neat buff Norwich cock. The entries numbered 150 birds, being 60 fewer than last year's total, which is to be accounted for by the depression in trade, many of the members being out of employment. It is to be hoped all will come right next year. The secretary, Mr. James Drysdale, and members of committee, had everything to the best of order. Much credit is due to secretary Drysdale for his able generalship. There was a fair turn out of visitors, and breeders. Amongst the latter we noticed Miss Hope (Pebrie), Messrs. Adam, Drysdale, Senr., and Holmes, Whiter, secr. of the Scot National, Craig, late sec. Edinburgh Northern Society, and Thomson, sec. of the Western Edinburgh, and many others. The Central Hall, Nichol on Street, is very convenient in every way, and well adapted for show purposes. The Scotch Fancy section, although not strong in numbers, contained some very fair birds.

WIRKSWORTH.

The fifth open show was held on October 31st. The Town Hall, which is very nicely heated and spacious, provided splendid accommodation for exhibitors. The entry, which totalled 32 in four classes, was a little better than that of last year, and the quality was very good. We hear there is likely to be a cup for competition next year, so the society will do well to provide more classes for cage birds. There was a very good gate when we arrived, and the show bade fair to be a success. The arrangements were most ably carried out by the Committee, Messrs. R. S. Twigg, T. Pearson, J. Byard, T. Else, H. Palin, J. Brough, J. Adams, etc. Mr. H. Twigg made a most capable and obliging secretary. Mr. J. N. Harrison judged.

YORKS. (11): 1, spl. hc, Elkins, long, stylish, yell, head and wings mkd, A1 feather, well up on perch; 2, 3, Mear, cl, buff and yell, in order named, hardly length of winner, but very slim and upstanding, grand locks and wiugs; res, Shilldon; vhc, hc, and members' spl, Brough. NOR. (8): 1, 2, Dallman, cl. yell. and neck mkd. Buff, leader A1 quality, rare colour and condition, grand shape and size; 2, another cloaking specimen, nice size and shape, in fine condition, both well shown; 3, Gentle, cl, buff, not the size of winners, and bit loose in feather, but very nice shape and condition; res, Elkin; vhc, Walker; hc, Brough. LINNET (7): 1, spl, 2, hc, McCreey, leader, grand size and shape, well pencilled, A1 condition; 2, hardly size of winner, but very nice colour and marking, two very fine exhibits; 3, res, vhc, Brough, hardly so distinct in markings, nice colour and shape. A.O.S. BRIT. (6): 1, 3, Poole, light Goldfinch-Canary, and dark Greenfinch-Canary Mules in order named, winner very nice colour; 3, nice size and shape, grand colour, rather loose in feather; 2, McCreey, very fine dark skin Canary, steady as a rock, extra good size, and markings, splendid condition, could win at many shows; res, Elkins; vhc, Moore.

COATBRIDGE.

The annual show was held in the Hall at the Royal Hotel, Coatbridge, on October 31st, and was a success. The entries were slightly down, but the quality was up to the standard. Scotch Fancies of merit took part in the competition. The cup for best cock was won by Mr. Wynnes, with an exceptionally promising Buff, and the cup for best hen was secured by Mr. Mann, with an ideal Buff Piebald hen, the runner-up to latter being Mr. D. Caldwell's meritorious foul Buff hen. Mr. Smith, the president, in his usual courteous manner superintended the show, and had a kindly word for everybody; and Mr. Prentice conducted the secretarial work with great credit both to himself and the society. The judges were Messrs. Baird and Smith.

OSWESTRY.

This annual fixture duly took place in the Powis Hall on October 29th, when, as usual here, there was brought together a fine display of exhibits both in the open and local classes. This society commands a splendid support from the inhabitants of the district. The cage bird classes were not quite so numerous, but, all the same, a very fine lot of exhibits turned up, and competition was of a high order. The well known names of Major Bull and Messrs. A. Gough, G. Inglis, H. W. Pritchard, G. H. Finney, with those sterling efficient secretaries, Messrs. Morris Smith and G. A. Doody, is sufficient proof that the show was conducted in a perfect manner. Special prizes were given for nearly every class, and valuable extra specials were also included. The open Norwich section contained some excellent Buffs, a very cobby variety capturing special over the section. The Yorkshires were very strong, and keen was the fight for premier honours. A very smart Bull won the special over the Yellows and Buffs. A nice Canary Bullfinch won in the Hybrid open class, whilst a smart variety. Yell. Goldfinch-Canary won in the local hybrid class. The British birds were represented by some very handsome specimens, notably a Cale, a Wheatear, a Yellow Bunting, Goldfinches, Thrushes, Linnets, Bullfinches, Larks, etc. There was a Wader, which, with its big web foot, could not under any stretch of the imagination be termed a cage bird; this was staged in a poultry or Pigeon pen amongst the cage birds. The members' classes filled well as they always do here, and the novice classes were very strong, some wonderful Crests appearing here. The novice Goldfinch or Bullfinch class was a big class of 22, containing some good birds. A few Foreign birds were on exhibition, but not in competition; they were kindly placed in the show by a local enthusiast. The officials expressed their pleasure at receiving such high-class entries, and we sincerely hope there was a big attendance of the public. Mr. C. Houlton judged.

The Open Classes.

NOR. YELL. (5): 1, Campbell, rare size, cl., grand head and body substance, full of colour and condition, compact; 2, Brotherhood, cl., smaller, but grand quality and condition all round; 3, Turner, mkd. head and wings, full of colour, cobby shape, nice carriage and condition; res, Jones, nice cl, just beaten in substance and tail feathers to-day; vhc, Edwards, fair, paler in colour. HYSON GREEN.

The Hyson Green (Nottingham), C.B.S., held their annual exhibition on October 24th, at the Old Stand, the "Cricket Players" Inn, Lindsey Street. The exhibits were not over numerous, but this failing was made up for in quality. There were some extra fine Norwich, especially in the unflig. classes. The Crest and C.B. classes also contained some real good ones. Mr. R. Rhodes judged the Crest and C.B. classes, and Mr. W. Hardy the other classes. The latter gentleman did not arrive from Newcastle (where he had been judging) until 1 p.m., so that he made a capital job in a very short time. Judging was over and prize cards placed on the successful ones by 3 p.m.

"SYPHON" STOVES
Require no Flue.
Give no Smoke or Smell.
Specially adopted for Bird Rooms, Aviaries,

Mr. J. E. Holroyd, Breeder and Exhibitor of Champion Yorkshire Canaries, Bidpley, Yorks, writes:—
I have great pleasure in speaking in the highest terms as to the qualities of your "SYPHON" STOVES. I have had one in use for several seasons in my Bird Room and have found it excellent. It is most economical and does away with the labour of attending to a fuel stove. There is no dust to fly about, a great consideration when exhibition birds are kept. Another great feature is the absence of smoke or smell.

UNDER THE WHITE ROSE.

MORLEY and District C.B.S., formed some few months ago, is making good and steady progress, and now totals twenty-nine members. They have arranged for three members' shows, the first of which takes place to-day (Saturday), and the services of Mr. W. Cruise have been secured as judge. The next will take place December 5th, with Mr. R. Garnett to place the tickets, and third on January 2nd, no judge as yet decided upon. The officials and members are to be congratulated on the success attained in so short a time.

THE show of the Bradford City O.S. on Saturday last was a splendid affair, a grand entry of 536 birds in the 34 classes provided, the cream of the Fancy in both Yorkshires and Norwich meeting to do battle for their owners. Mr. P. Mason officiated as judge, this, I think, being his first appearance in that capacity at a Yorkshire show, and he was assisted by Mr. H. S. Naylor, who took the Norwich and selling classes, so as to lighten his task. All birds were cleared off in good time, being on their way home by about 7.30, and great credit is reflected on the management at this very satisfactory state of affairs.

ONE point I would like to mention occurred at this show, and it is a point where exhibitors could save a secretary and officials a lot of trouble. It refers to birds being entered and not exhibited. It appears that some birds were entered from a distance, but they did not put in an appearance, and the stewards were dispatched to the stations several times to inquire if they had arrived. As a last resource the owner was wired to notify him of the fact, but soon after a return wire was received stating that they had not been sent. What a lot of trouble and uneasiness would have been saved if a postcard had notified the secretary that they would not be there.

ANOTHER exhibitor entered three birds, and during staging one was reported as missing; result, all cases were overhauled to see if it could be found. But the search proved fruitless. These birds were brought to the show personally by the owner, and it would have been an easy matter to report that one was short, and so have saved a lot of bustle and trouble. Every secretary for a show likes to know that all birds are staged, and it is a cause of great uneasiness when some are missing, and it behoves all exhibitors to acquaint that official when they are not sending all the birds they have entered.

LAISTERDYKE B.F.A. officials are sorry that a mistake has crept into their schedule in respect to the special prizes. Several class numbers are left blank in the list, making it appear that no special is given in these classes. But 2s. 6d. per class should have appeared therein, all prizes no blanks being the cry of this society. I note that Cinnamon ticks are catered for at this show, the officials taking advantage of the C.M.Y.C.C.'s offer in regard to ticked 'uns.

ALL exhibitors competing for prizes of the various clubs will do well to note that their exhibits are properly marked in the catalogues, and, if not, to acquaint the respective secretaries, so that entry forms can be seen and mistakes rectified.

"STRAIGHT 'UN."

SHIREBROOK AND DISTRICT F.A.

The best attended meeting since this society's formation was held at the Great Northern Hotel, on October 15th, Mr. C. Halmshaw in the chair. It was decided to hold the second members' show on Saturday, December 5th, prize money to be guaranteed. Will local fanciers kindly note, and assist the committee to establish this young society on a sound basis? Several cage birds classes were guaranteed. Among the guarantors were Messrs. Halshaw, Cooper, Cox, Reddish, Baldwin, Pickering, and Ashmole.—W. H. ASHMOLE, Hon. Sec.

NATIONAL BRITISH B. AND M.C.

Committee meeting held at Headquarters, The "Feathers," Great Chapel Street, Westminster, September 24th. Present, Mr. Robson (chairman), Messrs. Weston, Trower, Dewhurst, Cooper, Maxwell, Goodchild, Plumbridge and Carr. Letters were read from Mr. Birchley, Mr. Chick, and the Liverpool O.S. An application from the Glasgow and West of Scotland Society, the committee granted a silver and bronze medal for most points throughout the British bird and hybrid section. It was decided to hold the club show on December 4th and 5th. Many were in favour of holding the club show at the Crystal Palace, but no application had been received from the authorities. Proposed by Mr. Weston, seconded by Mr. Maxwell, that a gold, silver and bronze medal be granted at this show in each section, viz., Hardbill, Insectivorous and hybrid for 1st, 2nd and 3rd most points. Mr. Trower again offered a gold medal for most points gained by a member who had not previously won a medal throughout the British bird and hybrid sections. The following new members were elected: Mr. A. W. Watson (Leith, N.B.); Mr. S. L. Cocks (Peterboro'.) Mr. Weston then opened a discussion on "Meating off" and feeding small insectivorous birds, and the lengthy discussion that followed brought out some very interesting information from the various members present. The chairman, on proposing a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Weston, thanked him for opening such an important subject, one which had proved so interesting and enjoyable to all present. He hoped further discussions would be forthcoming for it was Fanciers giving the results of their experiments that brought about the successful keeping of our pets. The vote was seconded by Mr. Dewhurst, and supported by Mr. Trower. A vote of thanks to the chairman concluded the meeting.—PLUMBRIDGE AND CARR,

The Belgian Canary: Its Breeding and Management.

By R. J. BAKER.

Belgians as Breeders.

Again, another point which one often hears directed against the Belgian Canary is that it will not feed its own young, and therefore one is put to double expense by having to keep feeders for them. My experience, however, has taught me that they are quite as good feeders as those of any other high-class variety, and require no feeders whatever. I could also give the names of several successful Belgian Canary fanciers who never use feeders, and usually manage to rear between thirty and forty young birds from four or five pairs each year. I think such records will compare with almost any other variety of exhibition Canary.

When you have commenced breeding operations, and the hen has commenced to sit, you should disturb her as little as possible, and I would advise fanciers to have their breeding cages fitted with wire ends, which enables them to look into the nest while the hen is off it for the purpose of feeding without having to open doors and lift the nest out every time they wish to examine it. You will see how handy this is; when you have young birds about, you can glance at them without so much as touching the cage.

I may say that my cages are about 30 inches long, 18 inches deep, and 12 inches from back to front, and are all fitted with moveable wire fronts, which arrangement enables me to clean my cages more easily than is possible with the old-fashioned fixed fronts For cleaning the insides of the cages I find nothing better than a good coat of whitewash, applied hot, with a good tablespoonful of some germ killer added to it. If you use this, you will not be troubled with red-mite very much.

How to Feed.

During the breeding season my method of feeding is as follows:—When the birds are first paired, I give the birds egg-food about twice a week, which I stop when the hen has commenced to sit. Should you have a hen which appears egg-bound, sprinkle a little white moist sugar over the egg food; I find this an excellent remedy, and you will not need to half boil a hen, so to speak, to get the egg away from her.

Until the twelfth day I give only plain Canary seed, after which I commence giving the egg food again. When the young are hatched, I add a little crushed hemp seed, gradually increasing the amount as the young birds get older. After the third day I give a little fresh green food three or four times a day. I like young dandelion leaves, young lettuce, and flowering groundsel, as well as anything. The best plan is to give one sort one day, and another the next, as this gives the old birds a change. Never forget that to be successful in the rearing of young birds you must be up with the sun, and give some nice fresh-made egg food to your birds.

I don't care for the method of filling up the egg drawers over-night, as the food is stale and dry by the time the birds are ready to feed with it in the morning.

What To Do With the Young.

When the young are about three weeks old I part them from the old birds by means of a wire slide, which I put through the centre of the cage, and through which they can continue to feed. And if you place an egg drawer containing some egg food inside with them, they will soon commence to pick it over and feed themselves. I crush the Canary seed for them, as I find this helps them on a good deal. I also give them for a change a little scalded bread in milk, squeezed nearly dry. This is a good thing for them, but you must not leave this in the tins very long, as it turns sour very quickly. You will find when the young are about five or six weeks old, that they can take care of themselves. You must then get them on to a plain seed diet as soon as possible, and at this stage give no green food whatever. If you follow this advice carefully, I feel sure you will be able to rear Belgians without the aid of any common feeders whatever.

About Exhibiting.

As regards the exhibiting of Belgians, I think they have a great advantage over most varieties in that they are exhibited in their natural colour and are not colour-fed, which is a great consideration, when the fancier has only a very limited amount of time to devote to his birds.

In conclusion let me say, when seeking to obtain new blood, or to start in the Fancy, it is best to get your birds from some well-known breeder, and follow the show reports and you will soon see what fanciers breed their own winners. A very decent pair of stock Belgians will cost anything from £3 to £6, according to their quality; but, remember, you will not get Palace winners at this price. A good winning Belgian Canary commands a high figure, and I have known them to run into double figures in pounds. I place before readers a sketch of what I should term a good Belgian.

I hope, should there be any among my readers who find their experiences differ from my own, that they will bear with the writer a little, for I am penning my own experience with the Belgians.

I cannot, in conclusion, do better than advise anyone seeking an interesting variety of Canary to keep for a hobby (or profitable investment) than to invest in a pair or two of this really elegant and fascinating bird, the Belgian.

IN THE COURTS.

Trouble About a Talking Parrot.

A sequel to certain proceedings instituted some three weeks ago, which concerned a deal over a talking Parrot, engaged the attention of the Deputy Stipendiary at the Liverpool Police Court on October 26th, when a well-dressed woman, named Lily Maud Seddon, or Barnes, was charged on remand with having obtained possession of a bicycle by means of a trick.

It appeared that George Collinson, of Huddersfield, saw an advertisement which the prisoner had inserted, announcing that she had a good talking, mimicking, and singing Parrot, which she was willing to sell or exchange. Prosecutor offered a lady's bicycle, valued at £5, in exchange, and this offer was accepted. He sent the bicycle to the prisoner's address, 53, Foxhill Street, Prince's Park, Liverpool. The prisoner, however, wrote back complaining that the machine was in a poor condition and was not worth 25s. She asked for a remittance of £1 or 30s. Collinson sent postal orders for £1, but as the Parrot did not arrive he stopped payment and came to Liverpool. He went to the prisoner's address and was told that the talking Parrot that had been advertised had been sold during the week. The bicycle had also been disposed of. Another Parrot that was in the house at the time was offered to Collinson, but he refused to accept it, on the ground that it wouldn't talk. He instituted a prosecution.'

Mrs. Seddon was brought before Mr. Kinghorn a fortnight ago, but the case was adjourned on the understanding that she would in the interval regain possession of the talking Parrot and hand it over to Collinson. Yesterday Collinson stated that since the adjournment he had received a Parrot, but it did not answer to the advertisement. The Parrot advertised was a Grey, and the one he received was a Green Amazon, and it was not a satisfactory talker. The Parrot was sent by rail to Huddersfield, enclosed in a cage, on which was written the following message:—"This is the Parrot which the magistrate says you must have or do without."—The prosecutor complained that this note was fastened to the outside of the cage "for all the world to gaze upon."

The defence was that the Parrot which was shown to the prosecutor at the prisoner's house was the advertised Parrot, and it was a good talker, although it was too shy to converse before a stranger.—For the prosecution it was pointed out that when the case was last before the court the prisoner admitted having sold the advertised Parrot.—The prisoner has been previously convicted for feloniously receiving money. She was now fined £10, with costs, or two months' imprisonment in default.

WASHING EXHIBITION AT WEST BROMWICH.

A Washing exhibition and lecture were given by Mr. Broadhurst before a good muster of members and friends of the West Bromwich and District C.B.S. on October 27th. Mr. Broadhurst commenced by remarking on the particular kind of soap he uses; he advised all present to use Greaves' soap, it being in a white powder and specially prepared for washing birds. He then showed the company how to hold the bird. He advised us to hold it as loosely as possible and be on our guard, for when the bird fluttered it would otherwise soon be out of our hands. Do not hold the bird too tightly round the neck, he continued also when swilling in first water to first rinse the soap from your hands so that the bird will not get the soap from this quarter, thus saving both extra time and labour. The next thing was to roll the bird in the cloth. A piece of old soft sheeting about 2ft. square did admirably, or any other suitable material that would soak the wet well from the bird. Mr. Broadhurst went on to say: Be sure you keep the thumb and finger out of the neck of the bird or the feathers will not dry properly; also be sure you wash all the dirt from the neck as, of course, it always shows more there than anywhere else, also round the rump and tail. Be sure you hold the bird properly on its back with the tail down the wrist, and also be sure to keep the soap out of the bird's mouth. The lecturer urged fanciers to have plenty of cloths nice and warm before the fire; he felt sure that a cold cloth was answerable for a great many deaths; in fact, this was the cause more than any other of deaths during washing. At this point Mr. Broadhurst took the first bird he had washed out of the cloth and rolled it in the other end of it. Here, he said, make sure, when you are washing several birds, that you do not mix them up when they are rolled in the cloths. Start at one end of the drying board which is in front of the fire, and when the second bird is washed and rolled in the cloth move the first and place this second one where the first one was, thus keeping the first bird that was washed to the right or left, as the case may be, and the second bird second, and so on; by this means you will know which bird was washed first, and it will not be left too long in the cloth. When Mr. Broadhurst had washed several birds he invited any of the company to try his hand as, if you want to do any good on the show bench, he said, you must know how to wash a bird thoroughly or you will be rewarded with very little success. Mr. Beck (Handsworth), first tried his hand, while Mr. Broadhurst stood at his side ready to give him any information that might be required. The lecturer then gave some hints as to drying the birds after they were taken from the cloth. They were taken out of the cloth when about three parts dry, they having been in then about 25 minutes. They were then placed in cages before the fire, not too close, one of the cloths was placed over the front of the cage, thus answering two purposes at the same time—shielding the bird and drying the cloth. Mr. Broadhurst particularly urged any one about to wash a bird to get everything ready at hand, including three or four bowls (large) and some hot and cold water in jugs so as to avoid having to handle the kettle or tap. Also, we should see that the cages we were going to finish drying the birds in were perfectly clean, or the birds would be a lot worse than before they were washed. Mr. Broadhurst recommended holding the bird in the way he did as he thought it was much better than any other. Messrs. Carter and Collier at this point tried their hands at washing, and went through the operation successfully. Mr. Key then washed a bird, and he being an old hand at the game it did not take him long. During the drying process Mr. Key proposed a vote of thanks to Mr. Broadhurst, which was passed. Mr. Green said he thought it was not many societies that had been able to get on as well as we had during the short time we had been in existence (about 18 months) with £5 in the bank. After a vote of thanks to the secretaries the meeting terminated.—DUFFIELD AND JENNINGS, hon. secretaries.

A Working Mans Experiences with British Birds.

By P. JACKSON.

I will endeavour to relate my experiences in the British cage bird hobby as briefly as possible. My experiences date back as far as twenty years ago, when I was but a boy of sixteen years of age.

Nothing used to please me more than keeping birds, except it were catching them. Many a good thrashing have I had from my father for breaking the Sabbath by catching on that day. My mother used to say to father, "Let him have his own way; he might do many a thing worse." I remember once telling my parents Sunday was the only chance I had of studying and seeing God's wonderful works, and that I could not learn more if I went to church three times a day. I used to go at night to church to return thanks for the pleasure I had derived during the day, and to ask forgiveness if I had done wrong.

A First Start Off.

As I grew older, I got more of my own way. Father let me have a small place for my own use; so I turned it into a model bird-room.

First of all I made two small aviaries in it, each 2ft. 9in. long, 2ft. 6in. high, and 2ft. deep. I began with Lesser Redpolls, Greenfinches, and Brown Linnets. These I fed on a mixture of equal parts summer rape, Spanish Canary, linseed, and a little hempseed. The birds thrived well on this.

The water I placed in bottle fountains, but soon found out that for fresh-caught birds it was better to put the water in an open vessel; so I placed it in ordinary penny breakfast tins, which were about ½in. deep and 6in. across. These I filled fresh daily. The birds used the water both for bathing and drinking.

After awhile I began to get faith in myself, and I ventured upon keeping Bullfinches, Goldfinches, and Siskins. For these species I mixed in equal parts, Spanish Canary, teazle, hemp, linseed, German rape, inga, and sunflower. They thrived well on this mixture, but I found out that I must not overstock my aviaries, or the birds would quarrel, as I soon discovered that all three species were quarrelsome.

Increased Aviary Accommodation.

Later on I made an outdoor aviary, about 6yds. long by 6ft. deep, and having a sloping roof, with about 1ft. in 6ft. of a drop, which took the water off splendidly when rain fell. The bottom was raised about a foot from the ground, so that the wood floor was always dry with the wind constantly blowing under it. I had double doors at one end, 2ft. from each other, forming a porch, so that the birds could not get out. I used to shut the first door, then open the second. I partitioned the aviary off in four divisions, which left ample room for fifty small birds in each. I hung cigar boxes round the aviary, about six in each compartment. These I fixed by boring a small hole in one side and hanging them on to nails driven in an upward direction. I found that they made splendid hoppers, and I still use them. The arrangement keeps the seeds dry; they would otherwise go mouldy, especially if placed on the floor in the winter.

In one corner of each compartment, I cut a hole in the floor, about the size of an ordinary roasting tin, and underneath nailed a piece of ½in. mesh wire netting. On this I placed daily a roasting tin filled with fresh water. This to a certain extent kept the flooring dry. In each compartment, there were some fairly branchy but leafless trees, and on the roof I had a pane of glass, about 3ft. by 2ft., under which I nailed wire netting, for fear the glass would get broken and the birds escape.

At the side facing the sun, or which caught most of the sunshine, I had doors which could be opened and shut according to the weather, the opening being covered from the inside with ½in. mesh netting. In these aviaries I have kept almost every species of British birds.

A Stock of Wagtails.

I will now describe how I managed and fed a few of them. First of all, I will start with the Wagtails, a family I am very fond of, because of their graceful manners. I have had as many as 200 of these in my aviaries at once, including Pied, Yellow, and Grey Wagtails.

They all agreed fairly well together, except when mealworms came on the scene, when it was a case of the strongest getting the most. It is interesting to watch these birds. I have seen them even take a worm out of one another's mouths and fight for it like bantams with beak and claws. More than once I have noticed two or more fighting for a mealworm in the trees, and others looking on anxiously waiting for the worm to drop, ready to dart after it, and catch it before it reached the floor; which they were often successful in doing.

The best way to meat these birds off is by offering small mealworms. If a bird will not accept them, force its mouth open (you have sometimes to be cruel to be kind) and place a worm as far as possible down its throat; when it feels it wriggling, it will sometimes try to swallow it. If it refuses to take it then, dip its head in water, and in nine cases out of ten, it will swallow the worm. As a rule, of course, they will take food eagerly, especially if you have one already meated off, in which case place the fresh-caught ones with it.

Give at all times a fair quantity of live food daily. As a staple food for these birds I give them, say, one hard-boiled egg, 4oz. of stale bread, and a pinch of sugar; these I grind together in an ordinary egg mill. The shell of the egg I find acts admirably as grit. If the mixture is too moist, grind up a few tea biscuits, and mix these and the other well together; then add ½oz. of good ants' eggs and the same quantity of dried flies, and mix the whole again. This quantity, along with about six worms each daily, will feed about ten birds. Always give food fresh daily.

Some More Delicate Specimens.

I will now try to explain the way to keep some of the more delicate species, such as the Wrens, Warblers and Pipits. The following species I kept successfully in my outdoor aviary, but in nearly every case I meated them off in my bird-room in cages, which averaged in size 16in. square by 12in. deep, with a natural twig in each. I find that some of these birds are not easily meated off; they need a lot of persuading. But when once accustomed to their staple food, they are as easy to keep as the larger species.

All insectivorous birds I meat off with mealworms, varying the size of the worms according to the strength and size of the birds. The following are a few I have kept:—Lesser Whitethroats, Greater Whitethroats, Common Wrens, Willow Wrens, Wood Wrens, Chiff-Chaffs, Gold-crests, Fire-crests, Rufous Warblers, Tree-Pipits, Meadow-Pipits and Rock Pipits. They are all very interesting to keep.

These birds I treat like the Wagtails previously mentioned when I am meating them off, but I give them a more nourishing staple diet. This consists of hard-boiled yolk of egg and tea biscuits (about three ground with the yolk of one egg in egg mill). Then I add ½oz. of good ants' eggs, and the same quantity of dried flies. I chop a few large mealworms in with this food, and mix the whole well together, occasionally adding scraped raw meat, grated carrot, and hard-boiled liver, also giving fruit occasionally, such as apple, pear and banana. All food must be sweet and ripe. I spread coarse grit on the cage or aviary bottom.

Swallows, House Martins, Sand Martins, and Swifts will also live on this diet, and I find look well on it. These species are not suitable for aviaries, however, unless the aviaries are extraordinarily large, as I find that when aware of your presence they make for the windows, with the result that they sometimes dislocate their necks. I keep the birds in run cages, which measure about 6ft. long, 1ft. high, and 1ft. deep, having broad perches, about 1ft. apart. It is amusing to see the birds trying to perch on their feeding pots (shrimp pots I use). They stumble about as if they were weak or had cramp. They are poor perching birds, especially on anything slippery.

But it is surprising how they learn. I had one which I kept as a pet for a long time; it got that used to perching that it seemed little or no trouble to it. This particular one was a Swallow. I may add that I used dried flies and small mealworms chiefly for meating off and always had a separate pot of dried flies in each cage.

SOME INTERESTING VIEWS ON BIRD-CATCHING.

Who Should Be Summoned and Fined?

I have been invited to say something nasty (Mr. Labouchere in "Truth") about a magistrate at Llandudno Police-court, who fined a man 2s. and costs for setting birdlime to catch Goldfinches contrary to the Act for the protection of such wild birds. If I could say it I would cheerfully, but I cannot help thinking of the fowler as well as the fowl. Nothing seems to me more mischievous than making criminals of men artificially, and to put a man in prison unnecessarily is a more serious matter than putting a wild bird into a cage unkindly. That is the effect of fining the man more than he can pay readily. In these days of unemployment I cannot see that reason requires you to be very hard upon a man who, seeing a market which he can supply without doing anything intrinsically criminal or wicked, sets himself to work for his living in that direction, even though he breaks an Act of Parliament or local regulation which has forbidden him to earn his living in this particular way.

Probably somebody will say that it is wicked to catch Goldfinches. I should be sorry to express an opinion upon that point myself, for it raises a very large question. I know a lady who keeps a Goldfinch in a cage. She lavishes a great deal of affection upon it, probably more than it deserves, and I should not think the bird is altogether unhappy. He frequently sings in the most exuberant style, from which I infer that he feels cheerful, for the time, at any rate. I dare say that he would escape if he had the chance; but even human beings do not know when they are well off, and the same thing may be true of Goldfinches. I should be sorry to see the lady put in a cage as a punishment for keeping the Goldfinch. The question whether it is or is not wicked to keep wild birds in cages seems to me to depend very much on how you treat them. But granting that it is morally wrong, I would point out that if it is to be punished by law the person most deserving of punishment is the one who keeps the bird in the cage, not the poor devil who goes out hunting wild birds in order to get a living for himself, and possibly for a wife and children as well.

As the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds has before now done me the honour of noticing remarks in "Truth," I would ask whether this question of keeping wild birds in cages has ever been considered by its committee or officers. So far as my observation goes, there is no legal interference with the trade in live wild birds. I know a shop—and anybody can easily find such shops for himself—where Goldfinches, Bullfinches, and all sorts of wild birds are habitually exposed for sale in cages. If you prosecute and fine the horny-handed son of toil who catches the birds, why should you let off the bloated capitalistic middleman who stocks his shop with the birds when caught? Still more, why should you let off the parties who eventually buy the birds, and without whom the bird-catcher and the dealer would not be in their present line of business? It is generally agreed that the receiver is worse than the thief. I have also a strong personal opinion, which I have expressed before now, that wild birds are a good deal too much protected in the present day, but this point does not affect the question whether the present law is or is not just and rational.

CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

By the Rev. C. D. FARRAR.

After a few days given to song, he (the cock) settled down to business. The cock, in the case of Mocking Birds, does all the nest building; the hen simply nods approval. The first intimation of what was in progress was my seeing Master Mocking Bird carrying odd sticks in his bill. He selected a site in a small bush about 3ft. from the ground, and was soon as busy as a bee over his task.

The nest is a beautiful structure, very strongly woven externally of short thorns and twigs, and warmly lined inside with the finest grasses, and has a beautiful cup-shaped hollow. I sent the nest, after the birds had flown, to Dr. Butler, as I thought he might like to see it. Three eggs were laid; they are very pale green in colour, spotted all over with little brown blotches. The hen did all the sitting, the cock feeding her attentively, and signalling each time that the mealworms were given out, so that she might come and get her share. This she never failed to do. At the end of eleven days —speaking at a rough guess—I went and had a look, as I thought I saw the birds carrying live bait about. Sure enough, there were two fine younsters in the nest, very pink and very naked, but very plump and well looking.

One unfertile egg remained. I did not like to take it out of the nest for fear the birds might not appreciate it; so I left it to take its chance, but, as I expected, it got broken in the course of the rearing. I found the hatched egg shells at the very farthest point of the flight away from the nest. It is evidently instinct that tells the parents to remove these tell-tales as far as possible from the nest. I sent the shells to Mr. Phillips, knowing the interest he takes in all hatching operations.

I did not dare to enter the aviary after this, but had to content my soul with watching, like Moses' sister, "afar off," to see what would happen.

Things went on all right, as I could see the birds at regular intervals visit the nest with mealworms. They sort of threw themselves sideways on the nest, light as a shadow, in spite of their size. All the time the young were in the nest the cock never sang a note. On June 17, when the young quitted the nest, he opened out magnificently; proud, I suppose, of his success. I wish I could sing, as I am sure I should have joined him.

When feeding was in progress, if the parents fancied they were being watched, they made a loud sort of scolding noise. The weather was not very propitious all the time for rearing. What Fox once called "that little shower" was often going on; to say nothing of several gales of wind.

It is not everyone, I venture to think, that acted like Solomon, when he showed the Queen of Sheba all his royal treasures. I often think it must have made the poor Queen feel small when she got home. Perhaps that is why I have written this. When I do anything worth telling, be sure I always run a pen-and-ink race to tell you. I fancy that as the article is read, there will be a rustling demonstration of surprise, such as you may have observed in a country congregation when they hear an allusion to their week-day offences from the pulpit. The only thing I regret in the narration is that the third egg did not hatch. I'm a little like poor Mrs. Moss in the "Mill on the Floss," who, although she had eight children, could never overcome her regret that the twins had not lived.

Chapter XXI.—My Pagoda Mynahs.

Experiences are generally very like cherocts; they usually begin badly, taste perfect half-way through, and at the butt end are things to be thrown away and never picked up again. My experience, however, this time is a distinct exception; for it was happy in the beginning, middle, and end.

It generally takes me a couple of seasons to get a satisfactory pair, and in the case of the Pagodas there was the usual wait. In buying foreign birds, you have to remember that dealers try to sell the same variety under many different names. I suppose we should do the same, so I cannot blame them. Pagoda Starlings are known of late as Blythes Starlings. I nearly fell a victim; but luckily I asked what they were like, and the moment I heard, I recognised my old friends under a new title. But this is a digression.

I first of all got hold of a good cock, and then I began to look about for a mate for him. This proved an easy task. I wrote to a certain dealer, and he sent me what he said was a "certain" hen. I was none so sure; but I did not like to contradict him, an old dealer. Time, however, proved that I was right, and that he was wrong; for the so-called hen was a cock, and soon showed its sex by battles royal with his fellow-prisoner. In their combats one of the contending parties was slain, and, as it was winter, I did not bother any more for a time.

In the spring, at about Easter, I popped up to London for the inside of a week, and, of course, visited all the bird shops. At Mr. Hamlyn's I found, on my second visit, a pair of Pagoda Mynahs just come off the boat; and, as they looked all right, I bought them, but let them stop with my other purchases until the week-end, when I transferred them to Yorkshire.

They seemed to feel the cold a bit at first; but in a week or two they appeared to get accustomed to the constant changes of temperature we enjoy in England, and here especially in Yorkshire. I kept them in a bird-room till spring was over, and then I put them into what I call a beautiful outdoor aviary, but what my family insultingly call "The Stores." Here they soon settled down, in company with a pair of Redheaded Indian Buntings, and a pair of Red Vented Bulbuls.

I rigged up a box near the roof in the same place as the Andaman Starlings nested last season. It was not long before they took the hint, and went to work at nest building. I may say in passing that when the birds are nesting, I never allow strangers to enter the aviaries. If you would get the soul of Nature, go to meet her as you call upon your sweetheart—alone. There are times when the presence of our dearest friend is a distraction.

The nest was composed of little sticks (as I found on examination after the young ones had flown), and a very flimsy affair lined with box leaves, of all things in the world! The cock and the hen took it by turns to sit, and I think they took certain watches, and not day and night spells. I am unable to say what the eggs were like, as they all hatched out, and I was not so foolish as to touch the nest until the young had flown.

Later in the season the Pagodas laid a second time, and then I "pepped" and found the eggs were small and blue, like those of our common Starlings. I knew that if I looked I might cause an accident, and accidents are forbidden luxuries in birddom.

Whenever my birds are nesting, my procedure is as follows. I look long and lovingly at the nest. There is no harm in that, for may not a cat look at a king? Then I say solemnly: "Get thee behind me, Satan"; then I resolutely turn my back on the nest box, and by walking rapidly away I soon get so far away that it would be too much of a task to return —at least, I try to think so. It is the only way. There are some temptations you must run away from.

The sitting lasted, roughly, some 13 days, and the first intimation I had of "new arrivals" was by seeing one of the parents with a small mealworm in its beak, with which (by careful and unobtrusive watching) I saw it go aloft. But whether it was worth while going through so much, to learn so little, as the charity boy said when he got to the end of the alphabet, is a matter of opinion. I am easily contented, and thought it was.

Pagodas are very fond of fresh ants' eggs, especially for the early days of rearing, whereas the Andamans would hardly look at them. The difference in tastes in birds is very curious.

After about a week I began to hear the voices of the young, and day by day the noise grew more and more uproarious. The Pagoda parents were the shyest of feeders after the first week. I could never catch them at it, watch as I might. For the first week they did not mind a bit. The Andamans, on the other hand, were very shy at first, and got bolder as the days went on. I suppose on the principle suggested by the poet—

"For men may dwell by mountain stream, and all the summer round
Have music lingering in their ears, till they forget the sound."

Can any readers realise what it meant to rear Mocking Birds, Andamans, and Pagoda Mynahs all side by side? My friend, Mr. Phillips, wrote to me quite pathetically: "No wonder mealworms are so scarce and so dear!"

THE YOUNG NATURALIST.

Prizes of 1s. and two of 6d. each will be given each week for the best three anecdotes about birds written on postcards. Competitors must be children under sixteen years of age, and must state from where stories are taken.

*A Wren's Nesting Experience.

When we lived in Worcester we had a summer-house, and every year a Thrush used to build on a ledge in it. One year a Wren made a hay rope from the Thrush's nest and built its own on the end. When the Wren's nest was finished it fell down, or else the Thrush pulled it down. We nailed it up again, but the next morning it was on the floor again. After this the Wren forsook it, but the Thrush reared four young ones in her nest.—Sent by B. E. Frayling (aged 14), St. Nicholas House, Dovercourt, Essex.

*A Beautiful Singer.

I am nearly twelve years of age, and until last December have always lived in the country. My father has always had some British birds, besides an aviary at one time. Two birds which he kept which pleased me much were a little Redpoll, which father taught to wind water and open seed-box and do many little tricks, and also a fine cock Thrush, which he caught in a trap-cage in the back of a garden. This bird became so tame, he would take table scraps from my hand. He was a beautiful singer, and we could start him to sing at any time with our phonograph with a (bird-note) record. I have collected nearly 50 birds' eggs myself, and know each variety. I take great interest in reading CAGE BIRDS, which we take weekly.—Sent by Harry Sumner, 13, Franklin Street, Darwen.

A Nest in a Treacle Tin.

In the plantation at the bottom of our garden is the most peculiar little Robin's nest I ever saw. The men had been cutting down old trees, and one day I was walking along the path with my friend when we saw a little Robin dart out of a tin which was lying on a broken tree. We went to the place and saw in the tin a nice little nest made out of hay and grass. Next day we went to see, and there was one egg, two days passed and then there were three. On the Sunday there were four eggs, the Robin sitting on them. You would thing she would desert her nest, seeing that a boy took one of the eggs, the little Robin seeing him do so. But when the boy saw the Robin near, he put it back, and presently when all was quiet we saw the Robin fly to the tin to see if the eggs were alright. The tin stood on its side and protected the Robin and its eggs from rain. It is as cosy a little nest that any Robin could desire.—Sent by Dorothy Mabel Clarke, Sunnyside, Prospect Road, Woodford Green, Essex.

WILD BIRD LIFE.

More About Chats.

Stonechats never appear to increase or decrease. Any given spot where we have once seen them is a suitable place to find others, although years may have passed since we first noted their beauty. The nest is difficult to locate, and consequently few are destroyed. Many broods must be reared on the wilder heaths and common land, and in August I have seen almost every bush adorned with young Chats. A severe winter may reduce their numbers, and many fall victims to Hawks and ground vermin. All the Chats are beautiful birds, and have a wide range, extending more or less throughout the old world. There is a strong resemblance in all of them to our own species, if not in colour, mannerisms and habits. The Redstarts are no doubt closely allied to them, and so also is the Wheatear; both these are summer migrants, and have departed some time ago to their African home. All the Chats are not hardy, for the Whinchat, another beautiful bird, visits us only during the days of sunshine and warmth. In manner he resembles his congener, but may readily be distinguished by a white streak over the eye, and a patch of white on the side of the throat.

A Professor on Sparrows.

Writing on the Sparrow in a daily paper, Professor Lankester says: "It is really a parasite or 'commensal' (messmate) of man, living and flourishing entirely by helping itself to the grain and the young buds of shrubs grown by man, and in towns to the waste fragments of his food and the grain left in horse-dung. Whether it does any good in the early part of the year by eating grubs seems to be doubtful, but the conclusion is justified that it does more harm than good, especially as it drives away other small birds which are exclusively insectivorous." No doubt this is true enough, but the Sparrow would be tolerated and not much notice taken of his evil deeds, if the species was not so numerous.

Wild Fruits and Berries.

Fruits and berries appear to be unusually plentiful this autumn, for the glorious summer weather has been favourable to the setting of the blossom and subsequent development of the crop. In the hedgerows blackberries and privets are abundant, but the harvests of beech mast and haws are failures. This is the second year in succession that the beech nuts have been scarce, for which one cannot fail to be sorry. Three years ago when the crop was heavy we had enormous flocks of Chaffinches and Bramblings in certain districts in Surrey, their gay bright colours and alert manner, enlivening the woods and plantations, and giving a touch of living colour to the sombre hues of winter. No doubt the birds will drift into other districts where the nuts are more plentiful.

Migrating Kingfishers.

The Kingfishers have already moved down the streams to more open waters, which they always do at the approach of winter. There are more reasons than one for this migration, but the chief, no doubt, is the moving of the fish upon which they feed. As the weather gets colder these gradually leave the shallows and follow the stream. Sometimes the Kingfishers' movements are hurried by early frost, and instead of working gradually down stream they hurry to the mouth of the river, where many can be seen spread about the marshes and inlets, where they find food plentiful. They form brilliant objects in the sombre landscape. This is the time when these gorgeous birds are netted; they have a habit of flying under the arches of the bridges, and a fine net skillfully spread results in the destruction of many of them.

Coloured Plate.

Calendar.

A monthly calendar and diary, with novel table for ascertaining when eggs are due to hatch.

"Work of the Year."

A splendidly useful article, in which is set out the work amongst your birds for each month of the year. Perusal of it will enable the bird-keeper to anticipate his future wants, and be always ready to do whatever is needful and beneficial for his stock. Full of practical hints.

"The Breeding and Rearing of Canaries."

A very practical and thorough contribution from the pen of an old fancier, who gives many excellent "tips" as to the best ways to proceed. An article that will teach you something.

"Pairs Matched for Breeding."

"The Breeding of Hybrids."

An article on the fascinating pursuit of Hybrid breeding, by one who has made it a considerable study, and devoted much time to it. There are hints and advice in this contribution which may bring you profit and fame.

"The Keeping of British Birds."

A concise and practical article dealing with the mistakes of fanciers, and the keeping of birds in show condition, and giving valuable "tips" on feeding.

"Some Easily Obtainable Foreign Birds."

"Review of the Exhibition Year."

Every breed of Canary, together with Hybrids, British and Foreign birds, has its progress on the show-bench during 1907 dealt with by leading judges, specialists, and experts, and the names of the principal winning exhibitors are given.

"The Diseases of Cage-Birds."

A feature in itself worth the whole cost of the volume. Diseases and accidents are described, and the best medicines and methods of treatment stated in simple language, and very fully and completely. It will save you many valuable birds.

"Glossary of Terms."

The curious terms used by fanciers are fully explained. Reference to the alphabetically-arranged columns will at once tell you the meaning of such expressions as jonque, leafy feather, mooning, rowing, and the like.

DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor for the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers. In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION. If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT. Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or, if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

UNDISPLAYED.—Three Words a Penny up to eighteen words, MINIMUM Fourpence. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over eighteen.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz, Fourpence.

Headlines or Footlines 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6 according to size.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

"rumour" is again busy, the latest false rumour going the rounds is, that the testimonials I publish week by week are not genuine. To prove that this statement is false, I have sent the whole of the letters printed this week, together with scores of others that have never been published, to the Editor of CAGE BIRDS for his perusal, and I publicly offer £50 to any person that can prove that I have ever solicited a testimonial, or published one that was not genuine. I believe in giving every customer sound, honest value at a reasonable price, and when a man does that, he can get plenty of trade and testimonials, too. If you want anything in the bird-catching line, patronise me just once, you will see I do not want extortionate profits. Clap nets made from genuine thread netting, ¾ mesh, 3 yards long 4/- pair, 4 yds. 5/-, 5 yds, 6/-, 6 yds. 7/-, 7 yds, 8/-, 8 yards 9/-, 9 yards 10/-, 10 yards 11/- per pair, all guaranteed fully 5½ feet deep and strike 4 feet. All fitted complete with brass-mounted stave poles, pegs, lines, etc., ready for immediate setting. Sparrow nets, fitted on 15 feet poles 5/6, ditto 19 feet poles 6/6 each. Loose netting, made from 60's genuine thread, ¾ mesh, 7 feet deep, 3d. yard, 9 feet 4d. yard, 12 feet deep 5d. yard, post free. This netting is guaranteed finest procurable, and must not be confused with the American cotton fishing netting now being sold as bird netting. Self-acting spring net traps, by far the largest and most simple traps on the market, 24 inches long, 18 inches wide, 1/- each, ditto 18 inches long, 9d. each, carriage 4d. extra. Single trap cages 6d. each; double ditto, 10d. and 1/-; Treble ditto, 1/3 each, all have seperate compartment for call bird. Patent self-setting and self-acting trap cages (Reg. No. 23927) guaranteed to automatically reset immediately each bird is caught, 1/6 each. Real Japanese birdlime, absolutely strongest made, does not run in sun, and guaranteed to hold a Hawk, 6d. ½ lb., 10d. ¾ lb., 1/6 1 lb; sample 3d., all post free. Round or square topped call-cages, 3d. each, 2/6 dozen, 27/- gross. Linnet or Goldfinch cages, 6d. each, 4/6 dozen. Lark runner cages, 3/6, 4/6, 5/-, 6/- dozen. Every description of cages in stock. Dealers should send stamp for wholesale cage list, prices and quality will surprise them. Everything required by catchers kept in stock; send stamp for full catchers' list See following letters, all recently received:—"Cavalry Barracks, Windsor, October 10th. Sir,—Please send pair clap nets as follows. I had a pair last year from another firm, and found them to be made of twine, which is a failure and a fraud. Yours, T. Smith." "3, Nicholas-street, Middlesbro,' October 5th Sir, —Please send another tin birdlime. It is best I ever tried. You boast of it being able to hold a Hawk, and, strange to say, a Hawk was first bird over our twigs, and the lime held it on. Yours, V. Moody." "10, Steps-road, Stenhousemuir. October 5th. Sir,—We tried birdlime on Saturday, and found it a great success. Yours, C. Godfrey." "Woodford Grange, Thrapston. October 1st. Sir,—Please send me pair Sparrow nets for a friend who saw the clap nets you supplied to me and was quite delighted with them. Yours, W. Meacock." "46, Portland-row, Selston. Sir.—Please send following. The netting I got from you last year is best in the world. I had a bare in it, and it never broke a mesh. Yours, A. Fielding." "10, Munro-street, Stenhousemuir. Sir,—Netting I had from you last year is as good as ever, and has done good service. Yours, P. Braidwood." "Grange-road, Kettering. Sir,—Very pleased with loose netting you sent. Yours, T. Green." "10, Dyke Nook, Frizington. Sir,—Please send two call cages. My uncle has his, and is very pleased with them. Yours, J. Jenkison." "65, Low Town-street, Worksop. Sir,—Please send 4 yards netting. I had some from another firm last year, and it did not last the season out. Yours, J. Richards." "Bright View, Old Ratbay, by Blairgowrie. Sir,—Please send 1 lb. birdlime. I have had it this three seasons, and it is best and cheapest I ever got, and first-class stuff. Yours, W. Hovelsrond." "10, Alpine Cottage, Beeston. Sir,—Please send 24 yards netting. I had some from one firm more like garden netting than anything else. Yours, W. Worthington." "13, Finsbury-terrace, Finsbury Park, London. Sir,—Please send another pull line, I was highly pleased with last, as it is better quality than I can get in London. Yours, G. Barfoot." "Turnhill-terrace, Nantyglo. Sir,—Please send ½ lime. I had some last year, and cannot get better. Yours, J. Wise." "94, Whitworth-road, Rochdale. Sir,—I am quite pleased with trap cage. Please send following. Yours, E. Dean," "7, Birkland-street, Mansfield. Sir,—Please send following. I had very good results with your lime last year, also with nets you sent. Yours, G. Barson." "East Haddon. Sir,—Received nets, and am quite satisfied with them. Yours, R. Pudney." Thousands of similar letters open to inspection any time, but these are sufficient to show that my goods are by far the cheapest and best on the market. Why pay extortionate prices when you can get better value for half the money? Remember everything is sent on approval: cash or CAGE BIRDS deposit system, and money fully and promptly returned if every satisfaction not given See British Bird column for further advertisement.

Linnets in full song, with a beautiful polished cage, and my book of secrets, and a packet of my special mixture, 3/-, this is a real bargain; look, fierce singing cock Linnets, with bood-red breast, and extra loud voices, with new cage and my book of secrets, right for catching or contest singing, only 2/-. I defy any dealer in the world to supply the same for the money; deposit your money with the Editor of this paper for honest stuff, all on seven days' approval. Hundreds of these special birds in stock. Linnets, taught by the world's champion, will sing anywhere, only 1/6, these special birds are real bargains. I have four quality singing Linnets to dispose of, they have been with the champion Linnet of the world since they were six weeks old; they are mad proud, and can run as long as Germans, two £5 each, and the other two £7 10s. each. Goldfinches, real Peartree cock Goldfinches, full colour, the largest in England, with deep, square-cut blaze, beautifully buttoned and mooned, and well tanned on breast; these prize-winners, 4/6 each, they are grand birds. I have a monster Peathroat cock Goldfinch, a real gem, and a bargain, 10/6; other fine Goldfinches, same size, full colour, right for muling, with 3/6 Greypates, large, big birds, beautiful wing bars, well buttoned, showing splendid colour, will make winners, 2/6, these birds are very cheap, as they are all singing. Cock Canaries, singing grand, 6/- and 7/6 each, the best value in the market; my Roller Canaries will be ready next week; beautiful, red-breasted Redpolls, the largest I have seen this season, right for muling, 1/6 and 2/-; other birds 9d.; beautiful cock Larks, singing grand, and in show condition, 1/- and 1/6, these are as steady as rocks; best Linnet whistles in England, 6d. each. Please read what others say:—205, Welholme-road, Grimsby. Dear Sir,—Bird and cage arrived safe, and in the pink of condition; I have been duped with ——, of ——, but never no more while you live, its the finest Goldfinch I have ever had, its the same as your advert. in CAGE BIRDS. If people will only give you a trial, they will find you as good as your word, the bird was as fresh when I unpacked him as he was when first caught. Wishing you every success. A. Fowl to H. Allen. No. 3, Kershaw-street, Pemberton, near Wigan. Dear Sir,—I received Linnets; more than delighted at the price; they were singing well in a day or two after they arrived. I am sure if people would send to you when in need of some good birds, instead of buying such cheap rubbish, they would he more than satisfied. John Aspey to H. Allen. Those who want sure winners, write to the largest British bird dealer in the world, Harry Allen, Bird Specialist and Judge, City Aviaries, 40, Becket-st., Leeds.

better than for a customer to tell his friend exactly how he has been treated by me. In fact, I rely upon personal recommendations for the bulk of my trade. I believe in serving everybody so well that he is bound to advise his friends to deal with me, and so become a walking talking advert for my stock. I have largest collection of Worcestershire cock Goldfinches in the world, all in pink of health and condition, and well on hard seed, at 1/6 each, three 4/-, six 7/6, twelve 13/-, specially selected larger cocks, to moult, for show or muling, and guaranteed now in song, 2/- each; three 5/-, six 9/-, twelve 16/-; few clean moulted cocks, in superb condition, 2/6 and 3/- each, extra special clean moulted cocks, fit to win, immediately, 4/- and 5/- each; Cheveral cock Goldfinch 5/-, Peathroat ditto 3/6; hen Goldfinches 1/- each, three 2/6, six 4/-; grand lot cock brown Linnets, everyone guaranteed red-breasted, 8d. each, three 1/6, six 2/6, twelve 4/6; specially selected larger cocks for show, muling, or Contest singing, and warranted now in song, 1/- each, three 2/-, six 3/6, twelve 6/6; few fit to win now 1/6 and 2/- each. Don't pay exhorbitant prices for Linnets, but send to the man who has sold cup winners at 4d. each. (See recent testimonials). Cock Bullfinches, in full colour, 1/6 and 2/- each; Exhibition specimens 3/- each, Hew Bullfinches 1/- each, few extra large rich-coloured hens for show or Hybridising 1/6 each, cock Greenfinches 6d. each, three 1/-, six 1/6; Yellow Exhibition specimens 1/- each, cock Chaffinches 8d. each, three 1/6, six 2/6; cock Bramblefinches 8d. each, three 1/6; Exhibition specimens 1/6 each; hand-reared cock Blackbird, magnificent singer and fit to win, 5/-; hand-reared cock Larks, contest singers, winners of two and three contests each 20/-, 30/-, and 40/-; wild-caught cock Larks, steady and in song, 1/-, 1/6, and 2/- each, Redpolls 6d. each, three 1/3. In response to numerous inquiries I beg to say that first consignment of Siberian Goldfinches reaches me on November 15th next. I am the only direct importer in the provinces of the genuine Siberian Goldfinches, and these will be absolutely first lot to arrive since last season. I am now booking orders for exhibition specimens at 7/6 and 10/- each. Intending purchasers will do well to place their orders with me at once, as all will be executed strictly in rotation, and everyone knows that the real deck sweepers are not as plentiful as blackberries. No man in England is allowed to select one of these birds until actually on my premises, so send to fountain head for the "Simon Pure." See following few letters, which are not old as Adam, but all recently received and never before published:—"Strathepey, Heythorp Street, Southfields, London, October 13th.—Sir,—Goldfinch arrived safe, and I thank you very much for sending such a beauty, as I wished. I am delighted with it.—Yours, A. Polley." "Attwood Terrace, Tudhoe, Spennymoor, October 19th.—Sir,—I am well pleased with the Goldfinch. I am certain no one would have sent a bird half so good for the money, and I shall certainly deal with you again. If all dealers in British would try to please customers like you, they would not need such catching adverts. I am now sure that I have found an honest dealer.—Yours, H. C." "Croft Buildings, Markinch, Fife, October 17th.—Sir,—I won first and special at Kelty with the Goldfinch I had from you.—Yours, J. Mackie." (This Finch was one of my 5/- birds and was supplied only a few days before show.—W.G.) "12, King Street, Thornhill Road, Falkirk, October 19th.—Sir,—Please quote price for the following birds. I had six of your picked Linnets three weeks ago, and they were grand birds at the price which shows you to be an honest man to deal with.—Yours, T. Dougall." "11, Townfoot, Old Cummock, October 20th.—Sir,—Many thanks for splendid cock Goldfinch and Linnet you sent me. I am more than pleased with them, and can assure you that you will have many more orders from here.—Yours, M. Semple." "Sandy, Beds, October 21st.—Sir,—Received Linnets and cages safe, and am well pleased with them.—Yours, A. Brown." "Poolstock, Wigan, October 22nd.—Sir,—Received birds quite safe, and am well pleased.—Yours, W. Ridge." "Hutton, Rudby, October 23rd.—Sir,—Received birds safe and am well pleased with them.—Yours, G. Eden." "Bridge Street, Helmsley, S.O., October 26th,—Sir,—Please send following. The Goldfinches I got from you have turned out good birds.—Yours, A. Hogart." See previous issues of "Cage Birds" for some of the most convincing testimonials ever published. I guarantee every bird to have been properly netted in County of Worcester, and all are well caged steady and properly on hard seed before being sent out. All are sent on approval solely at my risk, either on receipt of cash or "Cage Birds" deposit system, and unless birds prove in every way satisfactory, all you have to do is to return it, and I promptly and cheerfully refund every penny of your money. No undermentioned conditions or trickery about my method of trading. You return birds and I return money; simple, isn't it? I claim to have more Worcestershire birds through my hands than all other advertisers together, and also to be originator of approval system in connection with wild birds. (Will copiers of my advertisement kindly copy last two statements of fact.) One trial solicited. See Roller Canaries; also appliance columns for further advertisement.

W. GORE, 131, Cooch Street, BIRMINGHAM.

SILKS'
CHAMPION NORWICH.

Have some of the finest Norwich living for disposal, real gems. At Manchester, Peterborough, Newcastle, Bolton, Dysart, birds supplied by me were to the front. The following well-known fanciers have purchased stock from me within the last 3 years:—Messrs. Grimes, Dobinson, Portman, Bancroft, Wilson, Pickering and Wright, Jones, Sharp, Tottle, Dosey, Leigh and Nesbit; space does not permit my publishing more. Fanciers wishing to win should write at once stating wants; don't risk unreliable strains, but send to the right man; all birds on approval. Grand show birds, 20/6, 25/6, 30/6, 35/6, 40/6 45/6, 50/6; stock pairs, 25/6 to 60/6. Stamp.—Judge A. E. Silk, Whitstable.

QUALITY FIRST.
QUANTITY THIRD.

Don't be deluded by paying 30/- or 40/- for Birds that I sell you at 10/-. They cannot be better for going through three or four hands before coming to original purchaser, with all profits added, if a mystic strain is added. Who can breed sufficient Birds to sell all the year round? I sell more in one week than any person or firm ever did breed in one season. I keep the Stock that been seen, and no other such, it is admitted, has ever before or since been seen like it. I can guarantee the breeding, etc., of many of the best; those I cannot, have to stand on their merits for the low prices I charge, as I never have and never can sell Birds on fairy tales, but I can and do defy all competition in giving best value for money, whether high or low priced Birds are selected.

Note a few prices as follows:—
Cocks, 4/6, 5/-, 6/6, 7/6, 10/6 upwards. Hens, 2/-, 2/6, 3/6, 5/- upwards. PAIRS, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/- upwards. Some good Show Birds.
COCKS NOW READY at 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/- each.

R. KREMNER, 104, TIB-ST., MANCHESTER

Invites the so-called Importers to prove this statement to be false. I am the only direct importer in the North of England (Manchester included) that holds a yearly ticket between England and Germany, which enables me to travel to and from Germany as often as I find it necessary. I buy from the most prominent breeders in Germany, and by buying from me you save the middleman's profit, and you buy from the man that knows what he is selling. I have just returned from Germany with a large stock of Rollers, guaranteed in full song 7/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 25/- each; Hartz cocks, singing, 5/6; cash with order or deposit CAGE BIRDS; trade supplied.—Note address, R. Kremner, 104, Tib-st., Manchester, and 96, Great Moor-st., Bolton.

HARTZ ROLLERS.

Cock Canaries, 3/6 each, 20/- a stick. St. Andreasberg Rollers, the very best and sweetest songsters in the world. All my St. Andreasberg Roller have a delightful deep hollow bell roll, water bubble roll, bow roll, tong hollow double bar roll vibrating into sweet harp and flute notes only, 7/6 and 8/6 each; carriage paid on 7 days' approval; travelling cage with food and water free; St. Andreasberg Schoolmasters 12/6 each; satisfaction guaranteed; try one, you will be delighted with it.—J. Thorn, Importer, 37, Plumstead Road, Woolwich. Telephone 365 Woolwich.

CHAMPION ROLLERS.

Notice.—I have a splendid consignment of those extremely musical St. Andreasburg Rollers; these are splendid day and gaslight songsters; they are delightful, with their deep bass rolls, hollow rolls, sweet silvery trills, water bubble runs, piccolo trills, bell, sharp, and gong notes, etc.; these are splendid quality; and are certain to please you; all on 6 days' approval, on receipt of P.O., or you can deposit the amount with the Editor, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/6, hens to match 3/-, 3/6, 4/-, inspection invited.—William Shaw and Son, 67, Essex-road, Islington, London, N.

FELLOW FANCIERS.

Don't order your Rollers for a few weeks yet, as the best quality will not arrive till then. Our celebrated conte d Rollers will arrive in November, and our breeders assure us they are better than ever. So reserve your order if you want satisfaction. We have now got some good St. Andreasburg Rollers in song; these are advertised by others as the very best, our price for these is 7/6 and 8/6 each. Hartz Mountain cock Canaries in song, our price 4/6 and 5/6 each; these are worth double. Send for price list post free.—Northern Aviaries, Preston.

ATTENTION PLEASE!

This is what you have been waiting for. I have just received my first consignment for this season of the world famed "Leipzig" Roller Canaries. (Cocks, no hens yet.) These cocks are in magnificent condition and full song, with long, hollow, and double rolls, sweet silvery trills, waterbubble, runs soft roulades, deep bass rolls, hollow bell rolls, piccolo trills, bell harp, and flute notes, etc., etc., and are guaranteed entirely free from harsh or objectionable notes whatever. Price 6/6 and 7/6 each. These birds are imported by me direct from Leipzig, and are same strain as have won innumerable contests both in Germany, and also England. Every bird is stamped on wing, "Hans Weber, Leipzig," and as I am sole agent, no other dealer can get so much as one feather of this strain unless purchased from me. All are safely and warmly packed in special travelling cages, with seed and water to last 48 hours, and are sent on full week's approval, solely at my risk during the whole time, either on receipt of cash or deposit with CAGE BIRDS, and every penny of your money is refunded if bird fails to realise every expectation, and prove fully satisfactory. See British Bird and Appliance Columns for further advertisements.

SHALL I Send You one of

My high-class Rollers on 7 days' approval. I shall be very pleased to do so, and I guarantee to give you every satisfaction. I do not profess to give you a sovereign for twelve-pence, but I do send you birds of such quality that cannot be equalled elsewhere at nearly double the prices. All Rollers I sell are especially bred for me by expert breeders and judges from birds of the highest quality, including leading contest winners. I have already sold over four hundred of this season's birds, and every customer is highly satisfied. Have one of my birds on approval and compare it with another at same price; you will soon be convinced that for quality and sweetness of song my

Thousands of testimonials have been published by me in CAGE BIRDS from satisfied customers. I guarantee strictly honourable trading and satisfaction to all.—Varney, sole proprietor and importer of this remarkable Roller Canary. Twenty years advertiser.—Varney, Stratford, London.—St. Mary Abbey, Mill Hill.—Received the Hummel; it sings beautifully indeed. It sings sweetly, and oh, so softly, all day, and I cannot imagine any bird with a more lovely voice; he begins, even these dark mornings, at 7.30, under his serge cover, and sings till 6 o'clock. Although his song is so lovely, it is beautifully sweet, he has no shrill notes, and I am able to read through it.—Miss F. Blockett, Southfelt, Poynton, Cheshire.—Received the Hummel, and am more than delighted with such superior song.—W. Glover to Varney, the largest importer of Rollers in London. Sunner-place, Billinghurst, Sussex.—Please send 12 good Hummel Rollers. I have six of your Hummel Rollers; all perfect Rollers.—J. Leyland. January 16th, Sunner-place, Billinghurst, Sussex.—I enclose cheque for the 12 Hummel Rollers. Am very pleased with them.—Mr. J. Leyland. Oulton Lodge, Aylsham, Warwick, Sept. 20th, 1908.—Mr. Bapha wishes another Hummel Schoolmaster as supplied by Mr. Varney a few months ago. 24th.—Mr. Bapha has received the Hummel, which is again quite satisfactory. 22nd, 1908, 20, Bailey-street, Barnsley.—Hummel arrived safe. I am more than delighted with such superior song. 7, Broadington, 22nd, 1908, Snow Hill, Skelton, Staffordshire.—The Rollers to hand all safe and satisfactory.—Geo. Gratton. 20th, 1908, 20, Gladstone street, Kilworth. Hummel to hand; what a beautiful song; so superior to all other Rollers imported in this district.—W. Pebury. 20th, 1908, 5, Millfield-road, Blencome.—I enclose 20/- for another Hummel. I am so delighted with the last one; it is one of the best birds ever heard in this district, and I have seen a few.—The Hon. A. Stevenson. 22nd, 1908.—Canaries to hand in pink of condition. I have had birds from all over the kingdom, but never received such value.—J. Smith. List free; sole importer and proprietor of these Rollers.—Varney, the Great Hummel Importer, Stratford, London. 23rd year of advertising.

ANOTHER LARGE CONSIGNMENT.

Direct from the Hartz Mountains.

Better than ever!! Don't be deluded into having Crest Belgians for Hartz; nor get inferior quality at high prices under senseless names. I now hold an enormous collection in various qualities, including pure Seifert, also Trute Strains, many bearing pedigree ring. I know the Continent, and hence can purchase to the best advantage. Observe some prices:—

Trained Cocks, 7/6, 8/6, 9/6, 12/6, 15/- and 20/-. Hens, same strain, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6 and 7/6 each. Pairs, 10/6, 15/-. Hartz Cocks, Singing, 4/6, 5/-, 5/6 each. Selected, with better notes, 6/6. Hens, 1/6, 2/6 each. Pairs, 5/9, 6/6, 8/6. Matched for Breeding good Songsters. Travelling Cages 3d. extra. If you require special strains, the very best known in Germany, I can supply them.

NOTE.—Persons not liking much noise and wanting low and sweet singing birds, can be supplied by mentioning the fact with order. A large collection of these in stock. Printed instructions how to keep in health and song sent with each bird. All on one week's approval.

If you want to know more about these interesting Birds, send for my book: "Profitable Canary Breeding as Practiced in Germany," by the late Albert Rettich, Judge, Author and Breeder both in England and Germany, price 9d. paper cover; cloth, gilt, 1,3 from the sole owner of copyright

CHAMPION Yorkshires.—For this last 5 years I have bred and sold some of the prominent winners that have ever been staged. I have a few pairs to part with at 30/-, 40/-, 50/-, sure to breed winners; see reports Dulwich and Peckham.—Willie Wadsworth, Skelmanthorpe, Huddersfield.

HIGH-CLASS Yorkshires for exhibition or stock; yellow, buff, ticked, variegated, and colour-fed; cocks, 5/6, 6/6, 7/6; hens, 2/6, 3/6, 5/6; inspection invited; can be seen any time; seven days' approval; cash or deposit with Editor.—Marsh, Freemasons' Arms, Mercerom-st., Brady-st., Whitechapel-road, London.

I have the following typical Yorkshires for disposal, clear yellow 1907 cock, winner 1st prize only time shown, £1; grand long yellow hen, 1907, a gem, £1; two Cinnamon marked yellow cocks, 1908, 17/6 each, can win; one Buff cock, 12/6; 1 yellow, 10/6; no better bred.—Saunders, Feathers Cigar Stores, Ealing, W.

CHAMPION Yorkshires, again to the front; I showed eight birds at Crook, Middlesbro', winning two firsts and specials, second, two thirds, three fourths; those wanting reliable birds, either for stock or exhibition, at rock-bottom prices, send to the old 27 years' breeder; birds kept in cold rooms and sent approval.—Frank Stevens, Great Ayton, Yorkshire.

THOSE who want real good bargains, I can spare a few high-class Yorkshire Greens, also in clear and ticked; the very best blood obtainable; this strain has won the championships at the Palace and medal for the best bird at Liverpool; cocks from 10/-; hens from 7/6; seven days' approval; P.O. or deposit; stamp reply.—C. Pickup, 1, Cragg-st., Gt. Horton, Bradford.

ROOM wanted. For immediate disposal my entire stock of high-class Yorkshires, consisting of sixty grand birds, all prize bred, and include all my recent winners; also several proved muling hens and lark Linnet Mules; pairs, properly matched to breed winners, all at lowest possible prices to clear; inspection and correspondence invited; stamp for reply.—Thorpe, 174, Elmhurst-mansions, Clapham, London.

HIGH-CLASS Yorkshires, F. Hampson can spare eight yellow cocks, 8/-, 10/- each; ten buff cocks, 6/- to 10/- each; grand stock birds, some fit to win local or members' shows; also ticked buff cock, 3rd Oswestry open show, October 29, 12/6; see show report, '08 breed, all good, stylish birds, and well on leg, with nice quality feather, good, young hens to match, yellows, 6/-, 7/6; buffs, 5/-, 6/- each; approval cash or deposit. The Priory, Wrexham.

HIGH-CLASS Yorkshires from best strains, splendid length, type and quality, leggy birds, colour-fed, good singers and stock birds; cocks, 5/6 to 6/6; lovely hens from 4/6 to 5/6; a few Buff cocks and Yellow hens, fit for exhibition, 15/- per pair, including Greens; sorry to disappoint a few late customers last season, as Baron Duc Theil, of Dordoyne, France, took all the best stuff I had left after January 3rd last; approval on deposit; working-man breeder.—William Hatcher, 27, Corporation-st., Barnsley, Yorks.

Wish I had done so before.

8, Arinide Road, St. Leonard's-on-Sea. Nov. 5th, 1908.—Birds arrived yesterday in pink of condition. I must congratulate you upon their clean appearance, and the care you bestowed for their comfort during transit. I shall certainly deal with you for the future. Had I done so before, I should not have the wasters purchased elsewhere. Wishing you every success.—T. Walters to Miss Storey.

87, Lower Yellow Road, Waterford. Nov. 6th, 1908.—I beg to acknowledge receipt of crest-bred, which reached me in the pink of condition; I consider it good value for money, and shall remember you in all my future requirements in the bird line, etc.—T. Lloyd to Miss Storey. 6, West Hill, St. Austell, Cornwall. Nov. 5th, 1908.—Birds arrived in fine condition yesterday; they are above my expectation; thanking you for same.—A. Williams to Miss Storey. 96, Watford Road, Birmingham. Nov. 6th, 1908.—Bird arrived Tuesday; I am more than pleased with it; shall send you order for two more next week.—T. Mason to Miss Storey. 126, Hudson Road, Woolwich, London. Nov. 6th, 1908.—It is with much pleasure I acknowledge receipt of bird; I am perfectly satisfied, and thank you for sending such a nice one.—Geo. Poole to Miss Storey. 434, Green Lanes, Small Heath, Birmingham. Nov. 7th, 1908.—The birds arrived safe in good condition; they all are doing well, being quite healthy; thanking you for your straightforwardness towards me.—F. Bodenham to Miss Storey. 2, Hill Grove, Bryn, Glam. Nov. 6th, 1908.—Roller received quite safe; he is singing nicely; I am quite satisfied with him.—D. Clement to Miss Storey. 5, Cecil Street, Yeovil. Nov. 6th, 1908.—Many thanks for birds, which I received quite safely. I am very pleased with them indeed; they both are quite lively and well after the journey; again thanking you.—R. Sibley to Miss Storey. 91, High Street, Guildford. Nov. 6th, 1908.—Many thanks for Roller, which arrived safely at 3 p.m., and at 3.40 he gave us an excellent specimen of his rolls.—W. Chapman to Miss Storey. 21, Gainsboro' Road, Felixstowe. Nov. 5, 1908.—Received birds quite safe and healthy; I am very well satisfied with them, and your prompt attention to my order.—A. Green to Miss Storey.

Bablock, Culloden, Inverness. Nov. 11th, 1908.—Received birds in a very sound healthy condition; quite gems; will keep you in mind for future orders.—D. Anderson to Miss Storey.

"Two 1sts, Seven 2nds, and Seven 3rds."

Still further proof of the quality I send out:—Read this testimonial from 51, Raymond Street, Dublin, Ireland, Nov. 6th, 1908.—Yorkshires I bought from you have won all over Ireland, and are very good value for the money. They have won two firsts, 7 Seconds, 7 Thirds and 5 Specials, and other prizes which I cannot remember at present. Please send following birds for enclosed amount.—J. J. Cloke to J. Taylor, Frizinghall. Send for my illustrated price list, before deciding elsewhere, or have one or two of my Yorkshires on approval, and some from some other advertiser, and then compare the quality and value for money. Typical racy yellow Yorkshire cocks at 6/-, 7/6, 8/8, 10/6, 12/8, 15/- each; buff cocks, 5/6, 7/-, 8/6, 10/8, 12/6 each. All on full song, and fully seven inches long. FRIZINGHALL, BRADFORD.

YORKSHIRES "THE CHAMPION WINNING STRAIN."

Without doubt my strain of Yorkshires is one of the best in the Fancy. My birds this season have won 11 firsts, 12 seconds, 3 thirds, 5 fourths, 6 spls. See reports of Potteries, Cambridge, Torbay, Cheltenham, Sheffield, Bolton Woods, etc.; and birds that I have sold this season have won highest honours at Clapham, Watford, Hanley, Stockton, etc.; see testimonials published recently in this journal; and for further proof of birds sent out, and for straightforward dealings, read this testimonial from Elder Cottage, Aslington. Nov. 8th, 1908.—I received the birds in grand trim; thanks for your careful packing. I am more than satisfied with the cock; he is a beauty, and quite confirms what you said of him. I am obliged to you for dealing so fairly with me. I see you still continue to sweep the deck at your own show and at Cheltenham, etc., and am not surprised. Again thanking you for your straightforward dealing, and hoping to have further dealings with you.—E. H. Amos to L. Dykes.

Another from Cwn, Gelly, Blackwood, Nov. 9, 1908. — Bird arrived quite safe and am very pleased with it; wishing you every success.—W. Bradfield to L. Dykes.

I have received hundreds of similar testimonials from highly satisfied customers, which are open for inspection at any time.

The show season is now in full swing, and if you want to win, or stock birds to breed your own winners, then send to the old reliable breeder who breeds his own winners, and can therefore give you the best satisfaction. I have the best collection of high-class birds in Bradford or elsewhere to select from, in clears, ticks, marked and cinnamon marked; all healthy and tight feathered; correct type and standard length; and possessing that touch of breed so much admired on the show bench, and all cold room bred and kept.

Grand typical yellow cocks at 6/-, 7/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-; buff cocks at 5/-, 7/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/- each; all cocks on full song, and 7 inches long; pairs properly matched to breed the best (NOT WEEDS) at 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/- per pair; grand leggy racy yell. hens at 4/-, 5/-, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6; buff hens at 3/6, 4/6, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6 each.

EXHIBITION COCKS OR HENS.

Ready for immediate exhibition; some real gems, including some that have at above shows, that can win in the keenest competition; or some that can win at local or members' shows; very reasonable; state wants, and before deciding to purchase elsewhere see my illustrated new price list, post free, and note:—All birds on seven days' approval, at my risk, either cash or deposit with editor; no risks whatever in dealing with the old reliable breeder, and no waiting; all orders despatched same day as received. Travelling cages in all cases 3d. extra; inspection invited. Please note old address:

OGDEN BROS.,

up-to-date winners are now ready. Having proved to the Fancy to have the best, winning the world's championship in the C.M.Y.C.C., 1907 and 1908, also second place for Shackleton's 30-guineas trophy, competed for at all Yorkshire Union shows, also prize winners in the Y.C.C. competitions, finishing up first at Crystal Palace 1908. Having bred over 200 we have for sale real good birds, bred direct from these champions; cocks from 9/-; hens from 6/-; can be seen any day; inspection invited; all sent on approval; cash or deposit; if not highly satisfied your money returned prompt. (See show reports).—15, Ashwood-st., Dudley-hill, Bradford.

FANCIERS READ THIS.

I have some grand young Buff and Yellow cocks, unflighted; extra length, splendid quality, good leggy birds, fit to win anywhere. I have won Hartlepool's challenge cup 1905 and 1906; just beaten by one point last year by a Norwich fancier. I have not the time at my disposal to get them ready for exhibition, so I am selling nearly all my birds. I won 3rd and 4th at Middlesbrough (see report), also sold 3rd at South Shields to Mr. Elwell; all on three clear days' approval. Money freely returned if not satisfied; that is my way; £1 and £2 each; grand stock birds, 7/6 and 10/-.—Williams, 30, Lester-st., West Hartlepool.

CHAMPION WINNING YORKSHIRES.

Direct from "Mr. Bates, Stoke," strain, which won for him thousands of prizes. I have sold from this strain to Mr. Blackhurst some toppers, and he won 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 1908, Crystal Palace; also 1sts, 2nds, 3rds at Bolton, Morecambe, etc., this season; also Mr. Banks, Cardiff, won 1sts, 2nds, etc., with this strain supplied by me. Some grand youngsters, same strain and models; cocks, Yellows or Buffs, from 6/-, 7/-, 8/-, 10/-, 12/-, 15/-, 20/-; hens, Yellows or Buffs, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6, 10/-, 12/-; matched pairs, to breed winners, 12/-, 14/-, 16/-, 18/-, 20/- pair; any I send on approval, and guarantee to please you, as I don't exhibit these myself; order at once; breeder 25 years.—Sandiford, Canary Breeder and Judge, Preston, Lancashire.

have been known throughout the Fancy for over 20 years. Winning at all the leading shows, including Crystal Palace. Our last season's champion yellow was acknowledged the best yellow seen for years, finishing up 1st Palace, also winning CAGE BIRDS £5 special—thus proving our strain one of the best in the Fancy. As we are not able to exhibit much we offer for sale absolutely the choicest stock of exhibition Yorkshires in the world; perfect type, fine length, showing plenty of leg, teeming with quality, and showing that breed that always catches the judge's eye. All grandly fed, and can win in the keenest company. One exhibitor alone last season who bought a team of birds from us won 26 first, 21 seconds, and 14 third prizes, besides 3 cups and specials. This is no empty bounce, but solid facts. If you want to win or breed winners send to Amblers. Stock birds, wonderful length, full of style and quality, just the sort to breed champions, pairs from 15/- to 60/-; state wants; satisfaction guaranteed; all birds sent on approval; stamp particulars.—Messrs. Amblers (late of Bradford), 138, Westminster-road, Morecambe.

A CAPITAL INVESTMENT.

THE SHOWS.

LEWES.

The annual show of the Lewis F.A. was held on October 27th and 28th in the Assembly Room of the Town Hall. The quality of the cage bird exhibits (which were unfortunately slightly fewer in number than last year's) was all that could be desired. The society possesses quite a number of valuable officers, but two in particular, the hon. secretary and his assistant, Messrs. Frank M. Huggett and his son, H. Huggett, respectively. Mr. H. Tarbox placed the awards:—

NOR. OR YORKS. (non-col. fed): 1, res, Gravett; 2, Newman; 3, Walter; vhc, Plummer, Skinner; hc, Durrant. NOR. CL.: 1, spl, 2, Hedges; 3, Miller; res. BODMIN.

The Bodmin and Dist. F.A. held their annual exhibition in the large Market House (which is well lighted and free from draughts), on October 28th. The committee consisted of Messrs. Perkin, Pincombe, Roberts, Spear, Chapman, Cole, Lander, Northcott, Cosway, Eade, Ham, and Hosken, who worked most assiduously and gave every attention to exhibitors and their exhibits. The secretary, Mr. E. Harris, being a most enthusiastic fancier, had all the arrangements well in hand, so that everything went like clockwork. This association was formed in April, 1903, not in opposition to the Bodmin and District Cage Bird, etc., Society, which has been in existence for 16 years, and has become such a popular and annual open show, being always held in November, but as a nursery for the encouragement of breeding and exhibiting among the more youthful local and district fanciers. And so successful has it become that two shows are held annually, one in January and the other in October, when nothing but young birds bred by the exhibitors can be shown. The exhibits show marked improvment and would do credit to even open shows; and the fact that five silver cups are annually offered as specials creates a keen interest among the exhibitors. The cup in the cage bird section was won this year by Mr. W. Lobb (Wadebridge) with a clear Buff Norwich of excellent type and quality, the best bird in show. Mr. S. Tickell (Bodmin) judged, and his awards gave general satisfaction.

NOR: 1, spl, 2, Lobb, 1st medium size clear buff, grand shape and feather, good head, neck and chest, lovely colour, well frosted, takes cup for best bird in show; 2nd, eye mkd. buff, lacking in type to winner. YORKS. YELL.: 1, spl, 2, 3, Pincombe, former tkd. head, yell., well drawn, neat head and wings, good feather; 2nd, tkd. wing, nice quality feather, good position, wee bit small; 3rd, head and wing mkd., nice length but a little rough; vhc, Wills, variegs., nice length, loose in feather. BUFF: 1, spl, 2, Pincombe, former very typical, grand head, neck and feather, the Liskeard winner; 2nd, Redwing, good shape and position, fine quality feather; 3, Lobb, trifle shorter than winner, good head, neck, and wing carriage, but not so well drawn; vhc, Wills, good length, nice head and neck, one we liked but a little loose in feather. HEN A.V.: 1, spl, 2, 3, Pincombe, all York., lot nice lassie of good type and quality; 2nd, good position, but a bit small in head and not the type of winner; 3rd, nice one, but a little patchy in colour. SELL, 10/-: 1, 2, Lobb, cl. buff Nor. and buff Yorks.; 3, Pincombe, buff York.

TORBAY O.S. (Paignton.)

The second annual show of the Torbay O.S. (Paignton), took place on Oct. 28, in the Badminton Hall. The entries exceeded 300 in the 55 classes provided, and were much in advance of the previous year's total. The exhibition throughout was a gratifying success. The officials we found to be an excellent lot. The secretary, Mr. J. N. Jeffery, had the arrangements well in hand, and carried his duties out in a thorough and creditable manner, being courteous and obliging to all. He was ably assisted by Mr. Jeffery, Jnr. The president is Mr. H. Whitley, and the vice-president Mr. W. J. Ham, C.C. The committee consisted of the following: Messrs. J. Webber (chairman), A. N. Innes (vice-chairman), F. Badcott, H. Daw, H. Fletcher, W. Hodge, G. Mudge, G. Parnell, J. Bastard, J. C. Elliott, G. Heathman, P. W. Mugford, E. Parnell, and J. Stoneclake. Mr. G. Sharp is the hon. treasurer and Mr. W. Drew is the auditor. Enthusiastic fanciers, they all worked splendidly, and took every care of the birds. The staging was lent by Messrs. Drew, and the hall was beautifully decorated with plants lent by Mr. H. Whitley. The quality of the exhibits was all that could be desired. The Yorkshires were the strongest section, and attracted most attention. Messrs. Parnell and Son won the members' cup for the best bird. The winner of the medal for hybrid or mule bred by an exhibitor was Mr. F. S. Collings. Mr. E. White carried off the set of fish carvers for the best British bird. Other special winners were Messrs. Gill and Pethick (for best Nor. or Yorks.); F. Collins, O. Millsum (silver medal for best For.), and J. Jeffery. Mr. J. Robson was the judge.

Critique.

NOR. CL. YELL. GREAT YARMOUTH.

The 20th annual show of the Great Yarmouth F.S., held November 4th and 5th, in the Winter Gardens. As a place for shows it cannot be beaten. The hard-working secretary, Mr. J. S. Shearman, who, by the way, did well with his Crests, deserves great credit; and he was ably assisted by the committee, Messrs. Tiptod, Smith, and Claxton, who paid every attention to the birds under their charge. The Norwich were first-class. Crests were good, though few. Cinnamons, too, were a nice lot. The Mule or Hybrid class contained a very fine Linnet-Bullie, also a good Goldie-Bullie. The British and Foreign classes contained some very interesting specimens. The show was officially opened by the Mayor, Mr. F. Arnold, who wished the society success. Mr. W. E. Greeves judged.

St. Albans' Show is to be held on December 16th, when the cage-bird section will be judged by Mr. C. A. House.

Exhibitors will kindly note, writes Mr. H. Emerson, hon. secretary of the Grimsby C.B.S., that we are affiliated to the C.B.U., and that our show on December 3rd will be held under C.B.U. rules.

A very nice little Young Stock Show was held by the Hertford F.A. on November 2nd. In Canaries Messrs. Dickins and Welch had matters all their own way with a nice lot of Yorkshires. Mr. Brace secured all the prizes in Soft-billed British, also taking the special for best bird with a magnificent Skylark. Mr. Welch held a very strong hand in Hard Bills, his winning Linnet being a little beauty.

BLAYDON-ON-TYNE.

Blaydon on Tyne held their fifth annual show on Nov. 6 and 7, and we are pleased to chronicle an increase in the number of entries. The show was held in the Co-operative Hall, a very suitable place for an exhibition. Unfortunately the show was not favoured by ideal weather, there being a heavy fog during the whole time of judging. Norwich and Yorkshires were the strongest classes, some real good ones being on view. Crests and C.B.s, although not large in numbers, contained some really high-class specimens. Mules and British were well represented. The judges were:—Messrs. J. Wilcock, for Nor. and Yorkshires, and J. Mellay for Crests, C.B., and A.O.V. Their judgment on the whole was well received. This society are favoured by an ideal committee, under the watchful eye of Mr. Hawver, who did everything in his power to please the general public, and was ably assisted by his colleague, Mr. McGuinness. The society, judging from the manner of their despatch of birds which had been sent from a distance, are doing well and establishing a good name. The show was well supported by visitors, and we hope to see a good balance sheet as the result.

I have been a subscriber to CAGE BIRDS for a long time now, writes Mr. James Stredwick (Wood Green. N.), and think it a fine paper for all bird fanciers. I have myself got over many a difficulty by following the advice to others given by your experts.

LEICESTER.

The ninth annual Show of the Leicester Hand in Hand C.B.S. was held on November 7th and 9th, and proved a great success, the entry, within a few of 400, being a record. Quality was excellent in nearly every class. The venue was again the large room of the White Swan Hotel, where the exhibits were nicely staged in tiers. The birds were well attended to by well-known and experienced fanciers. Mr. Charles Draper again held the reins of office, and, as usual, was most efficient in his duties, and was the embodiment of courtesy and tact. He was assisted by an able body of workers, comprising: President, Mr. A W. Gibbon; vice-presidents, Messrs. F. J. McCarter, C. W. Wallen, Jno. Allen; committee, Messrs. J. Needham, E. Kilsby, W. Neale, W. Hales, W. Smith, and A. Boulter; trustees, Messrs. E. H. Hulse and E. Noakes. Mr. J. H. Payne made the awards, which were well received.

SUDBURY (Suffolk.)

A capital little show, with a nice entry and some high quality birds, was that of the Sudbury Society, which was held in the Drill Hall, on November 10th. Prominent amongst the committee is our old friend Mr. J. F. Hills, who is not only our oldest living judge, but also one of our oldest fanciers, and with him in the cage bird section were Messrs. C. H. Row, Simmonds, and H. Wilson. Major Armes, the chairman, Mr. W. J. Langdon J.P., the vice chairman, and Mr. J. H. Brown, the treasurer, each take great interest in the show, and are prominent workers, whilst the hon. sec., Mr. F. Machin Goodall, worked with a zealousness, and an urbanity that made him an ideal official. Mr. C. A. House judged.

PRIZE MONEY PAID.

[Will exhibitors who have not received their prize-money please communicate with the respective secretaries at once.]

Dysart, Earlston (N.B.), Blaydon-on-Tyne, Cheltenham, Luton, Arbroath, Leicester.

We are holding our First Open Show on Saturday, December 12th, and we hope fanciers will help us make it a success, writes Mr. G. E. Spencer, hon. secretary of the Tamworth and Dis. C.B.S. We are giving numerous specials and prizes.

The Lancaster Primrose C.B.A. has decided to hold its 2nd annual Open Show of Matched Pairs, on January 23rd, 1909, writes the secretary, Mr. H. J. Brown. Judges: Dr. Hird (Norwich pairs), A. Ambler (Yorks.), and W. J. Ferguson (Borders). I hope fanciers will rally round and give us their support, as we are dependent on outside help for the continuance of this show of matched pairs. If fanciers will please watch the columns of CAGE BIRDS they will find issued a second-to-none schedule, and can enter therefrom.

There is only one entry to hand, write Messrs. Jeremy and East, hon. secretaries of the Morriston and Dis. C.B.S., and that a foreign bird. Where are the Canary Mule and British bird fanciers? We hope fanciers will rally around us this year again. I have been compelled to extend date of receiving entries until November 14th, and letters bearing this post mark will be accepted. Arrangements have been made with the railway companies at Swansea to deliver direct into the show. Birds arriving in Swansea at or before 9 a.m. on the day of show will be in time.

TWITTERINGS.

I have removed from Haverstock Road, to 35, Litcham Street, Kentish Town, writes Mr. H. Kemp.

Dulwich Show. Exhibitors. Entries close on Tuesday, November 17th. Kindly support us.—(ADVT.)

Yorkshire Union novices, do not forget Bradford (West) Show. A special judge for novice classes only.—(ADVT.)

At time of writing I have not had a single entry in cage-bird classes, writes Mr. John Hy. Dixon, secretary of the Selby F.S.

Kindly note my change of address from Arundel Crescent to 69, Mutley Plain, Plymouth, writes Mr. Charles Harries.

My last advertisement in CAGE BIRDS was very successful, as I sold all my surplus stock in two days.—W. EVANS (Manchester).

The report of Shields Show, writes Mr. J. Hands (Ryton), gives 2nd in pair Crest class, Hutchinson; this should read 2nd. Hands.

Morcambe Show report should read: Goldfinches, v.h.c. and h.c., Durston, and not Hardy, writes Mr. H. Durston (Lancaster).

The show of the Bonaccord Cage Bird Society (Aberdeen), is to be held this Saturday (November 14th), writes Mr. Wm. Jamieson, the secretary.

A printer's error occurs in our catalogue, writes Mr. J. Irlam, secretary of the Sale Open O.S. Classes 47 and 48 should read hens not cocks.

CAGE BIRDS has been a great help to me in my hobby, and as for the "Annual," it is simply invaluable to any fancier.—W. C. MCINTOSH (Glasgow).

I am shortly leaving Yeovil to start in practice at Taunton, writes Mr. W. G. Elsmore, the well-known South-country Yorkshire Canary enthusiast.

Will secretaries when sending out schedules kindly send one to me, writes Mr. A. Brown, 11, Melrose Avenue, Lordship lane, Wood Green, London, N.

As the schedules of the Hinckley and Dis. F.S. Show, writes Mr. W. Warner, the hon. secretary, are exhausted, will fanciers please enter from classification in CAGE BIRDS.

The Garston B.B.A. Annual Show will be held in the Wellington Rooms, Duke Street, on November 14, when Mr. W. Mundell will judge. The show opens at 1 o'clock.

We shall be glad of exhibitors' support, writes Mr. W. A. Holness, hon. secretary of the Herne Bay F. and F.S., as this is our first venture in open classes.

I have received four foreign birds from Burton-on-Trent, the sender of which gives neither name nor address, writes Mr. G. E. Wilkinson, hon. secretary of the Nottingham Show.

As entries are so terribly short, write Messrs. Slater and Turner, hon. secretaries of the Matlock and Dis. Society, we are compelled to extend, and shall be pleased to accept same if posted Saturday.

Entries are very poor at Launceston Show, writes the secretary, Mr. Pascoe, and I will accept up to Monday next, November 16. We are under C.B.U. rules, and appeal to exhibitors to help us.

Report of Dysart Show, in the Linnet class, reads: "3rd, Kennedy, nice colour and condition, good in work." This should read 3rd Ramsay, as I took that honour and have my prize money.—JAS. RAMSAY.

At a meeting of the Ormskirk Ornithological Society, held October 29th, writes Mr. F. Foster, hon. secretary, it was decided to hold our 1st annual members' show of Canaries and British Birds on New Year's day, 1909.

Mr. Davis (Coventry), had his three birds each of which stood 1st in the Norwich section of our show, claimed at catalogue price, writes Mr. C. Draper, secretary of the Leicester Hand-in-Hand C.B.S. Our sales totalled £28.

We hope exhibitors will support Cambridge O.S. Show, held November 25th and 26th, writes Mr. H. Driver, the secretary, as we have done everything we possibly can to attract them, and our schedule is a captivating one.

Entries are particularly slack, write Messrs. Collier and Clode, secretaries of the Sidmouth and Dis. F.S., and we are bound to extend till November 16th. Full prize money is guaranteed, and there will be no amalgamation of classes.

I have resigned the secretaryship of the Burton-on-Trent C.B.S. through ill health, writes Mr. S. A. Dicken. Messrs. Kirkland and Hadley have kindly volunteered to fill the vacancy. I hope fanciers will give them their best support.

On Thursday, October 29th, according to the "Wellington Journal," while removing some hay from a stack belonging to Mr. William Cooper of the Granville Pit, near Oakengates, Shropshire, a Wren's nest was found, containing two eggs.

The old time show at Prescot is once more to be brought into existence, with a strong committee to work same, writes Mr. John Platt, the hon. secretary. A two day show will be held early in the new year, dates to be advertised in CAGE BIRDS.

The bird section of our show will be held under the management of Messrs. Lupton, Tait, Melrose, and Henderson, all veterans, writes Mr. A. Smith, secretary of the Galashiels O.S. Birds will all be sent off on the Saturday evening if they can get to their destinations in time; if not, they will be dispatched by the first train on the Monday morning.

An error occurs under the heading "Choose the Right Birds" in Mr. F. Wraight's lecture, reported in your issue of October 31st, writes Mr. F. J. Bingham, hon. secretary of the Tonbridge and Dis. F.A. "Dark Mules" in line 10 should, of course, read "light Mules."

The Camborne fanciers are extending date of closing entries to last post Monday, November 16th (show November 19th), writes Mr. C. J. Allen, the secretary. Will exhibiting fanciers please support our first open show venture. There is good prize money and low entry fee.

The double number was more than the surprise you promised. It is enough to make one break the 10th commandment. It reflects great credit on CAGE BIRDS. Birds are so lifelike that one almost expects to hear them sing at any time.—MISS MARSHALL (Winchfield).

The report of Hyson Green Show, writes Mr. J. Bertie (Mapperley), credits me with 1st in the Yellow Norwich hen class, whereas I took 1st and 2nd. In Buff hen class I also took 1st and 2nd, and the report only credits me with 1st and e.

The second annual show of the Welsh C.B.C. is due to be held on November 18th, at the Parish Hall, Brecon, when Mr. T. L. Castroe will judge. The exhibition will be opened by the Ven. Archdeacon E. L. Bevan, M.A., at 12 o'clock, supported by the Rt. Hon. Lord Glanusk.

After Tuesday, November 17th, my address will be 9, Gladstone Street, Myrtle Park, Bingley, writes Mr. J. Hartley, the well-known Yorkshire fancier, where I shall be pleased to see all friends. Business premises at the old address, 4, Willowfield Street, Princeville, Bradford.

Entries for Worcester and Dis. C.B.S. don't average two per class, writes Mr. A. E. Bisbop, hon. secretary. Obliged to extend entries till first post Tuesday, November 17th. Fanciers please help us and find me something to do, seeing I have sacrificed my week's annual holiday for the show.

OBITUARY

It is with much regret, writes Mr. J. Lees (Rochdale), that I have to announce the death on Sunday, November 8th, of Mrs. Bescoby, wife of Mr. Wm. Bescoby, chairman of the Middleton O.S., after a painful illness of over two years' duration. The deceased lady was 43 years of age, and leaves a family of three sons and two daughters, to whom, and to Mr. Bescoby, will go out the Fancy's heartfelt sympathy.

Mr. H. Thomas, hon. secretary of the Middleton O.S., also writes in sympathetic terms concerning the regretted demise of Mrs. Bescoby.

At the City and County of Perth Open Show (November 21), kindly intimate that we have fixed up with Mr. Geo. Fulton (Partick), the well-known Scotch Fancy judge, in place of Mr. E. G. Wright, who could not fulfil his engagement for business reasons, writes Mr. James Kerr, the secretary.

Through an oversight the medals for most points, given by the Glasgow and Western Counties N.B.M.B. and F.B.C., have not been mentioned in our schedule, writes Qr.-Master Sergt. Cant, A.P.C., secretary of the Hamilton Cadzou Oaks O.S. We have been granted the patronage of this club.

Mr. W. J. Taylor, of Newcastle, has again won our challenge bowl, which makes the trophy his, writes Mr. Wm. Duke, secretary of the South and North Shields, C.B.S., he having won it twice in succession. Mr. Godley, the winner in 1906, ran Mr. Taylor very near for it this year.

We are obliged to extend entries until last post Saturday, November 14th, writes Mr. H. Smith, hon. secretary, Wimbledon Show, and hope fanciers will give us their support. I have made special arrangements for birds entered at Worcester to leave here and arrive there in good time for judging.

Bird-lovers of the Metropolis, make this note for next week: Visit the City and Suburban's 13th Annual Show, Friday and Saturday, November 20th and 21st, at the Church Institute, 60, Paddington Street, Marylebone, W., 4 minutes' walk from Baker Street Station (Metropolitan Railway) and Regent's Park Station (Bakerloo Tube).—(ADVT.)

At the recent Liverpool O.S. Show, Messrs, Bunner and Sons, the well-known cage-front and show and other cage makers, of Blake Street, Copperas Hill, Liverpool, had a very nicely arranged stall of their specialities, and the excellence of their goods, combined with the very moderate prices asked, attracted much attention from the fanciers present.

Fanciers should not overlook making entries for the great Welsh fixture, Cardiff Show, held November 25th and 26th, the date of entries closing being Wednesday next, November 18. This show has a well-earned good name for first-class management, and the secretary, Mr. W. Sampson, writes: We will undertake to forward, in good time for competition exhibits to any shows held on the Friday following ours, on receipt of labels and instructions.

The Musselburgh O.S. first show will soon be here (November 28th), writes Mr. D. Kay, and the excitement is beginning to be felt among members, most of them having been winning at both open and confined fixtures. Musselburgh promises to be the "Tit-Bit" of the Edinburgh district. We have two excellent judges—Messrs. Patterson (Chirnside), and Chalmers (Kirkintilloch). The schedule is an extensive one for a first venture, but I think will go far to increase our membership next year, our club being open to all.

The Coventry Fur and Feather Society are not holding their show at Christmas this year, writes Mr. A. Booton, the secretary, to avoid clashing with the Dog Show on Boxing Day (the date we had fixed upon). It will be held later, and the date advertised as usual in CAGE BIRDS.

Arrangements have been made, writes Mr. Woolhouse, the manager, that any exhibit entered for Swindon will be despatched from Dulwich Show early on November 25th. Entries are coming in very slowly at present, but we trust exhibitors will appreciate our efforts by sending as many as possible. As entries close next Tuesday we cannot make a further appeal. Sixteen more specials have been given and have been alloted to the best fourths in each section.

In last week's advertisement under "Yorkshires," of Mr. Rudd, of Norwich, our printers made the words "proved winners" read "trained winners." This well-known bird specialist informs us that he has just executed the following foreign and colonial orders: Birds to Canada (five lots), Russia, Spain, Calcutta Australia, Natal (two lots), Switzerland, New Zealand, United States (three lots), France and Trinidad (two lots), also goods to Gibraltar, Natal, India, Canada, and other places.

Tonbridge Open Annual Show takes place on November 25th, and 26th. Messrs. W. H. Cook and T. Lambert are the judges, and a tempting array of specials should induce fanciers to give the society a record entry. Messrs. Spratt feed and pen the exhibits, and the committee are taking all possible steps to ensure the comfort and safety of the birds. Remember the entries close on November 14th, positively, so exhibitors should send along at once to F. J. Bingham (secretary), 88, Barden Road, Tonbridge.—(ADVT.)

At Cheltenham Show, writes Mr. A. S. Treasure, the hon. secretary, (Mr. T. Taylor (Gatesbead), was the winner of specials for the most points in classes 1, 2, and 3, and Mr. L. Dykes for most points in Yorkshire classes, and not the exhibitors named in our catalogue, the latter being a mistake. Many thanks for your "twittering" re our short entry; it helped to bring in a very good one in the end, over 500. All the birds were packed and in the hands of the railway companies by 10 o'clock the last evening of the show.

All Happy at Cheltenham.

Everyone seemed very happy at Cheltenham, writes our representative, with the excellent show, while the hall it was held in delighted visitors, who said it was far the best the society had ever hit upon. The society deserves support; its officials are the best of fanciers, and its show is grandly managed.

Trouble About a Parrot.

With reference to the case reported in last week's CAGE BIRDS, where Mrs. Seddon, of Liverpool, was fined £10 on a charge preferred by Mr. George Collinson, of Huddersfield, we are in receipt of a letter from Mr. W. Seddon (son), stating that an appeal is being made against the magistrates' decision, on the ground that the conviction is "wrong in law," and that the case was not one in which a criminal prosecution could hold good. He promises us a report of the proceedings.

At Dulwich and Peckham Show.

The opening ceremony was of a very pleasing character, the Mayor, who officiated, and Dr. Freemantle, who supported him, making felicitous speeches, the former expressing his pleasure and surprise at the character of the exhibition, and stating that he considered the hobby just about the best anyone could take up. Before leaving the hall, His Worship subscribed £1 1s. to the funds, and the Mayoress 10s. 6d., while the worthy Doctor also left £1 1s. as a token of his appreciation. The society presented a fine Canary, in a lovely brass cage, to the Mayoress, the chairman Mr. Tringham's little daughter gracefully officiating.

Are You for Nottingham?

It is Nottingham Show this week-end. Are you going? We expect the answer from hundreds of our readers will be: "Why, certainly. We never miss it." The old-established fixture in the city of the Goose Fair has every claim to be considered the premier show of the Midlands, both for attractiveness and accessibility, and the crowd of fanciers who annually makes pilgrimage there constitutes a remarkable sight in itself. We hear there is to be a splendid display of birds this Saturday and Monday (14th and 16th), both in number and quality, so that those who venture this year will be well pleased—and those who have to stop away are to be commiserated with.

Echoes from Falkirk Show.

That the show was a big success; that the entries, 535, made a record; that the members are elated; that they have a right to be; that secretary Chubb worked hard and well; that Mrs. Chubb was a power in herself; that her work was highly appreciated; that the hall was too small; that visitors were out in strong force, and delighted with the quality of the birds; that the specials were a big attraction; that an extra judge would have been an advantage; that considering the number of classes they got through well; that the forthcoming show of Scotch Fancies promises to be a good one; that the Derby bird has been already selected; that the judge may differ on the point; that a noted fancier from Rutherglen will judge; that "Sandy" knows a Scotch Fancy when he sees it.—SCOTCH FANCY.

Parrots for Pleasure & Profit.

By C. P. ARTHUR.

Being full instructions on the Caging and Treatment in health and disease of the Grey, Amazon, and other popular Parrots.

In writing of Parrots, one naturally takes the "Grey" first, although the Blue-fronted Amazon runs it close as a talker, and is much hardier when first imported, requiring no special care.

The Grey Parrot is so well known that a description seems superfluous. However, I must go on the usual lines, and begin by describing the bird. The Grey measures from ten to twelve inches long, is a pretty pearl grey in colour, being much lighter on the rump between the wing tips. The feathers on the head and neck, and often on the underparts, are also edged with a much lighter grey. The tail is short and broad, and its colour is bright scarlet. The beak is black and very strong, and the face is bare white skin and appears to be covered with a chalky substance; in fact even the bird's feathers seem to be chalky. The eyes are straw colour, and the legs ash colour.

Young Greys when first imported may be distinguished by their dark grey, almost black eyes. These begin to get paler when the bird is about seven months old and when it has reached the age of twelve months, are almost as pale as in the adults.

How to Sex Grey Parrots.

It is very difficult to distinguish the difference between the sexes, but a practised eye can usually tell the sex of a Parrot at a glance. In the case of such birds as Rosellas, Mealy Rosellas, and many other species in which the plumage of the sexes is exactly alike, if an aviculturist gets genuine pairs, he can carefully compare them, I mean sit and watch them closely, and look at them well in the face, when he will soon get to know the hen from the cock at a glance as well as he knows his own friends apart. Of course, he will then be surprised that other people cannot see the difference in them as well as he can.

I believe the late Mr. J. Abrahams was the one to discover a difference in the sex of Grey Parrots by the shape of the white skin on the face. He carefully compared them for a number of years, and came to the conclusion that the bare skin of the face was more rounded behind the eye in the case of the hen than in that of the cock. In the latter the white is more pointed behind the eye. My own opinion is that male Grey Parrots are very scarce in this country, but for what reason I cannot say, unless it be that more males than females die on arrival. Why I have formed this opinion I will state. I have been a taxidermist for over thirty years, and during that time I have had many Grey Parrots pass through my hands for stuffing; some have been most noted talkers, one bird having a forty years' reputation. Yet, during the whole of my experience, I have never yet found one of them to be a male, although every one has been carefully dissected after being skinned.

So, in choosing a Grey Parrot, I think no one need trouble about the sex of the bird. There is a Grey now only about a mile from my home, belonging to an old cottager; this bird is a most talented talker, and would not be dear at £10 Yet there is not a year goes by but she lays two or three white eggs in the bottom of her cage. So it is far more important in buying a Grey to see that you get a good, healthy bird, than to trouble about its sex.

The Evils of Importation.

If Greys were imported in a proper manner, they would be as hardy as any of the foreign birds we get, but they are crowded into boxes almost as thick as herrings, with just room enough to stand upright, the boxes measuring about 24ins. from front to back, with no ventilation except that provided by the wire front, and seldom any means by which they may be cleaned out. This kind of cage certainly keeps them free from draught, but what a stifling heat it must be for those at the back, to mention nothing about the unhealthy fumes which arise from the excrement on the bottom. So it is nothing to be wondered at that so many young Greys are sent out by the dealers already tainted with disease, only to die within a fortnight or three weeks.

I am not a man of science, so I cannot tell why it takes so long for this disease to show itself; but I once tried an experiment which may interest some of my readers. I had from a dealer in Shoreditch 6 Pennant Parrakeets and 4 Rosellas, which began dying off the day after I received them, and within a fortnight were all dead. As he had been advertising them for about three weeks, I thought the disease must take some time to develop, or he would have lost all his stock in that time. So as I had a Rosella in one of my outdoor aviaries that was useless, on account of an injured wing of long standing, I caught her and put her in the cage with the last two which were dying, scattering the seed on the bottom so that she should pick it up from among the others' voidings. In this way, I think the bird must have got infected within the first two days; yet she did not show the slightest symptoms until five weeks from the day she was put into the cage, when she became listless, sitting with closed eyes. Diarrhœa came on, getting more severe each hour, and in 48 hours, she got from a plump bird to a perfect skeleton, the disease only showing itself 48 hours before death. So readers will see from this that a dealer may have a hundred Greys in his possession, and everyone of them may be infected, and sent out only to die, for I believe the disease is exactly the same; the symptoms and death are, I know.

If a Grey lives over six weeks after you get it, I think you may be sure it is alright. Two years ago, I had 50 Egyptian Quails from a London dealer, and they were infected in the same way. I tried everything I could think of, but without effect, until I had only seven left. I then thought of Condy's Fluid, and so put some in their drinking water, making it quite coloured. This seemed to have immediate effect. One died, which was very bad before; but the other six quite recovered, and lived two years in one of my outdoor aviaries.

So, if ever again I went in for young Greys, I think I should give them a little Condy's in their drinking water on alternate days, and a little brandy on the intervening days for the first few weeks. The water should never be allowed to remain in the cage of a newly-imported Grey, but should be offered two or three times a day, and always with the chill taken off. I never give newly-imported birds of any kind cold water, but put just sufficient hot into it to take off the chill. It is best to cover the cage at night, leaving a small space at the top for ventilation; this keeps off all draught, and even an ordinary living room becomes cold about four or five o'clock in the morning, as anyone will find who sleeps in a chair all night, and lets the fire go out.

The Feeding and Treatment of Greys.

The very best food for a Grey when first imported is boiled maize, made just soft enough to be pressed quite flat between the finger and thumb. Great care must be taken to give this fresh, as it will soon go sour, when diarrhœa will result. The food tin must also be scalded out each time before fresh food is given. After the first week or two, the bird may be weaned on to dry seed. This can be done by three-parts filling its tin with hemp and small grey sunflower-seed, and covering the top with the boiled maize. When the bird has eaten the maize he will taste the hemp and sunflower, and will soon prefer these to the maize; but the maize must not be given up too suddenly.

Also offer the birds every day a bit of dry biscuit and a bit of banana. Apples they are fond of, but my experience is, that apple is liable to give birds diarrhœa; I much prefer banana. Young Greys have a habit at first of making a horrible squawking noise every time anyone goes near their cage. The best way I know of stopping this is to put the cage on the table when the bird has got hungry, stop your ears with cotton-wool, and then sit down and talk to it in the most endearing tones you are capable of, and (if he will eat it) offering it a piece of banana at the same time, or a piece of sweet biscuit; and don't forget that the bird does not make this noise in anger, but in fear. As soon as you convince your bird that you are not going to hurt it, and that you are its best friend, you will get no more squawking.

When and How to Train Parrots.

When your bird goes fairly tame, and allows you to feed and water it without making a noise, then is the time to tame it, for the sooner it becomes perfectly tame, the sooner it will learn to talk. Now, the best way to make your bird quite tame is to always hang its water tin in the doorway of its cage, or better still, on the outside of the doorway, with the door open. Get your bird used to coming down to the doorway for its drink. When it is used to this, let it get very thirsty, and then open its cage door and hang a water tin outside, so that it must put its head outside to drink. Then when it attempts to drink, have your hand just above where its head will be when the bird is drinking, and without frightening it, try to scratch its poll.

You will not effect this at first, but with a little patience, you will eventually be able to do it. After this you will soon find he will come to the open door or the cage wires to have his poll scratched. With proper treatment you will soon be able to do almost anything with it

The Seed Mixture.

The seed mixture recommended for Grey Parrots by one authority is as follows: one part wheat, two of dari, two of hemp, and two of Canary by measure, together, of course, with banana, etc. Now, I cannot tell whether this authority speaks from an experience with these birds, but I must say I have never yet had a Grey, or an Amazon, or a Macaw, or any other of the Parrot tribe, that would touch dari, and very seldom wheat. Having at one time seven Greys, eight Blue-fronted Amazons, a Double-fronted Green-cheek, a Yellow-nape, a Red-vented, and two Macaws, I sent to London for a bushel of the best dari that could be got, and in a month my birds had not eaten half-a-pint of it between them, so I sold it to someone as a food for Doves.

I think hemp is the best staple food for Parrots, with about half its quantity of Canary seed mixed with it; and as a change from the hemp, I give grey sunflower seed. But I do not give sunflower and hemp at same time.

Grit is very essential for Parrots. I think none better than Spratt's Parrot grit. But when giving it first it should not be left in the cage, for after probably having been kept from grit for a long time, the bird may eat more than is good for it. Hang the tin of grit in the cage, and let the bird pick it over for a few minutes, after which take it away. Of course, after a few days, the grit tin should be kept constantly hung in the cage. I always cover my cage bottoms with pitch-pine sawdust; it keeps them so sweet and clean.

Mimics as Well as Talkers.

There is no particular way of teaching a Parrot to talk, except by repeating to them the sentence you wish them to learn. But Greys generally pick up most of what they learn. Amazons, it will be found, require more teaching. There are a few Greys I know that are really exceptional talkers, and seem almost to know the meaning of what they say. One of them even mimics the actions of a person as well as words. When my friend is going out, if he puts on his overcoat, a Parrot of his will go through all the motions exactly the same. But I think the most amusing bird I ever heard was one I saw about thirty years ago in a certain hotel. A customer would say, "Can you count ten, Polly?" The answer would come promptly, "Yes." Customer: "Come on, then." Polly, counting fast: "One, two, three, four, five, six, eight, nine"—then a pause; "D—— it, I left out seven." The last sentence usually caused roars of laughter, for Polly said it so earnestly.

THE NEW BEEF TEA.

In Fluid Ju-Vis (the New Beef Tea) you get about double value for money as compared with the usual Fluid Beef Extracts. Fluid Ju-Vis is equally nutritious, being prepared solely from Beef, with valuable vegetable additions. It makes delicious rich gravies, or a Cup of Strong Beef Tea for a penny. Try it — 6½d. bottles of all grocers.

The Treatment of Thrushes & Blackbirds in Captivity.

By MISS M. E. PALMER.

Many articles have already been written on the above subject, but I have no doubt a little advice to the novice will be welcomed. By carefully following the directions given below the novice will have little cause for disappointment.

Now suppose you want a nice, tame bird; do not go rushing off to a bird-shop for it; you will very probably only be able to obtain a fresh-caught one which is absolutely of no use. Such birds never become tame; certainly never so tame as a hand-reared one. Get instead a nest of young ones about 10 or 12 days old, i.e., when the quills in tail and wings are just sprouting, and put them in a rather deep basket with a lid. The basket, however, must first be lined with fine, soft hay.

On Feeding the Young.

Do not force the little things to eat just at first, as they will probably be rather shy. Shut down the lid of the hamper and wait until they cry for food, which they generally do very soon. Then open the lid of the basket and you will find that they will gape readily enough.

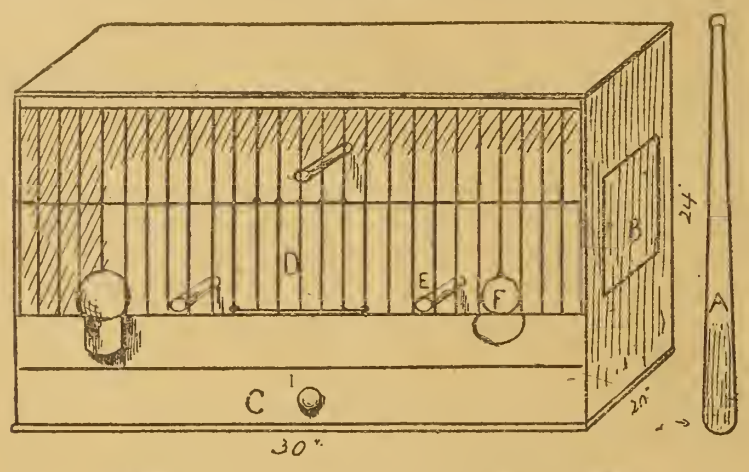
Their food should consist of the following: One part finely-crushed puppy biscuit, two parts hard-boiled yolk of egg, and two parts soaked ants' eggs (the best). Just before feeding the birds moisten the food with warm new milk to the consistency of milk sop. Prepare only just sufficient of it at a time for one meal, as it is very liable to turn sour during hot weather. The young birds must be fed every half-hour from 6 a.m. till dusk during the first week, and every hour or two afterwards. In addition to their stock food they may have mealworms, beetles (small), snails, slugs, flies, caterpillars, earwigs, etc.

The food must be given them on a shaped and hollowed-out stick (see sketch), and put well at the back of the bird's mouth, or it will very likely be rejected, as these birds do not close the bill after a mouthful like young Finches. Do this very carefully, as the bills of young birds are very tender. In about a month's time your birds will begin to feed themselves.

Transferring to Separate Cages.

When you find your charges becoming restless, transfer them to separate cages. The size of each cage is a very important matter; it should not be less than 30 ins. long, 24 ins. high, and 20 ins. deep, and should have a good, deep tray for cleaning purposes. A zinc tray is the best, as it can be washed and does not rust like iron or tin, nor does it swell when wetted like wood; nothing is more annoying than to find when you go to clean out a cage that the sand drawer sticks so that the bird is frightened by the sudden jerk, when it gives way. This will not happen if you use zinc trays. Any ironmonger or zinc worker will make you one for a few pence.

Peat moss or road grit is the best floor covering for these birds. The cage should have two doors, one in front and one at the side. Three perches are required, natural branches being used for preference, the best position for which will be seen in sketch.



From Milk to Meat.

Now you must gradually wean the youngsters off the sloppy food you have been giving, and on to the following: 4 parts crushed puppy biscuit or pheasant meal, 1 part meat meal or fine crissel, and 2 parts ants' eggs. Prepare this as follows: Soak the meat meal in boiling water for ten minutes, then strain the water off and stir in biscuits and ants' eggs; add a little cold boiled potato, raw scraped carrot, lettuce, or finely-minced watercress.

I do not give egg to adult birds except during the moult. If properly made the food should be just crumbly moist.

Insects and clean water should also be given. None of my birds seem to care much about fruit, though a Thrush I have is rather fond of melon and banana.

In a few weeks' time the cock birds will begin to sing softly to themselves, and by the time they are over their moults will be in full song. They are generally at their best, so far as song is concerned, in their third year. Thrushes and Blackbirds, as we know, have sweet songs, but the Missel Thrush, Fieldfare and Redwings do not sing so often or so sweetly; they all, however, make excellent pets.

Colour-feeding Not Necessary.

I never colour-feed my birds, but I give them plenty of insects to eat and clean water to bathe in during the moult, and I find their colour is quite good enough.

I have only exhibited one bird—a Thrush—but he won two firsts and specials, one second, and one v.h.c., the only times he was shown, together with such birds as Waxwings, Great Grey Shrikes, Nuthatches, and, of course, Missel Thrushes, Blackies and Song Thrushes. And he has not even seen colour-food.

All the Thrush family are passionately fond of a bath, and they should be given one every day during the summer, and twice a week during the winter. The bath is best taken out of the cage, as it saves the cage from getting wet, damp being very injurious to birds. If a mealworm is placed in the cage after the bird has bathed, he will go in after it, and the door can then be closed. After a few times he will return to his cage of his own accord.

Plenty of Light and Fresh Air.

All birds are best kept in an unwarmed room, as the heat of a fire or a gas stove tends to make the feathers drop out, and they are also more liable to be worried by red mite. To have plenty of baths, light, and fresh air, is the best way of keeping these pests off. My birds are very seldom troubled with the red-mite.

At all times keep your birds perfectly clean, both in the nest and in the cage. They will require cleaning out every day if you wish them to look spick and span and keep their feet clean.

An Attempt at Breeding.

I do not advise the keeping of these birds in pairs in a cage, some being very pugnacious, though I should say a pair of Thrushes I had were on excellent terms with each other. The hen made a nest in an old one I had given her, and laid three eggs, but unfortunately laid them on the floor, where the cock promptly broke them. After this Mrs. Thrush gave up housekeeping, and the cock fell in love with a wild Thrush that lived in the garden, whom he welcomed with loud singing. But this was not the worst; the faithless husband clawed his poor little wife about so roughly that I had to remove her and bring naughty Mr. Thrush indoors. I dare say one would obtain better success in an aviary.

THE HAWFINCH AS A CAGE PET.

By J. W. CUTMORE.

From my experience I have learned one thing, which chiefly concerns the exhibitor of the Hawfinch, and that is that there is a danger of the birds getting a claw smashed if kept in an aviary; if suddenly surprised he sometimes flies with great force against the wire netting. In a cage a fresh-caught bird will frequently catch a claw in the v-shape formed on each side of the drinking holes, and nip off a tip; and if it bleeds freely it will frequently dry up, and grow no more. The small rings formed at the top of the ordinary sliding-up door are also dangerous.

New Form of Steadying Cage.

I am constructing a new form of cage for the purpose of steadying down the Hawfinch in. It is one having no door on the front, no drinking holes, and no inside catches, and has a calico top, a door at each end for running the bird out for spraying, etc., a food and a water vessel fixed on little hinged doors in the centre of the front rail, clear from the cross perches (these perches being the only ones), and doors fastened with buttons outside. There is one objection an exhibitor may make to this cage, and that is that it has no drinking hole, and all show cages have them. The general objection to placing the water inside because of pollution is ruled out of court if the vessel is kept clear from the perches, and given fresh daily. The size of the cage is 21 inches long, 18 inches high, and 11 inches deep.

About the Moult.

The moultings of the Hawfinch and of the Goldfinch, for instance, are very different when the birds are kept in a cage. The Goldfinch, if properly fed and given a bath frequently, gets over it quickly and naturally; but with the Hawfinch it is different He is rather slow in starting, and the process is slower.

It takes a young Hawfinch about four weeks to grow a bib after the first sign is noticed near the margin of the lower mandible. It is a serious matter for the bird if he fails to moult in season, because he seldom lives to have another chance. I have moulted my birds outside in both a small aviary and an ordinary breeding cage, in an outhouse, with a bit of muslin drawn across the upper half of the cage front for shelter. The bird seems to appreciate this arrangement.

I trust that my effort in this article to stimulate a greater interest in a bird that, to my mind, has not been fairly treated by earlier writers, may not prove futile. I often think if he were an alien, what an attraction he would have for us.

MEATING OFF and FEEDING SOFTBILLS.

By JOHN FROSTICK.

A practical and concise handbook on this interesting branch of British Bird keeping. No Fancier of Softbills who wishes to succeed in his hobby can afford tobe without a copy. It also contains notes on Bird Trapping, Cages etc.

A COLUMN FOR FANCIERS.

Appended are brief particulars of some of "Cage Birds" SPECIAL PUBLICATIONS for keepers and lovers of birds, with post free prices.

"THE HYGIENE OF BIRD-KEEPING." - 1/1
By W. Geo. Creswell M.D.
A most useful manual, thoroughly treating of modern hygiene in bird-keeping, by the most eminent living authority on the subject.

"SEPTIC FEVER OR CANARY PLAGUE." - 7d.
By K. H. Clarke, M.D.,
A very useful booklet concerning this dread disease. It is the only one published, and should be found in every bird-lover's library. Dr. Clarke has given the subject very special study.

"THE NORWICH PLAINHEAD CANARY." 1½d
By J. H. Payne.
A Lecture reprinted from Cage Birds, delivered by this leading judge and expert before the London and Provincial Ornithological Society, and pronounced by all experts to be a most valuable pamphlet concerning the breeding of the variety.

BREEDING CAGE LABELS, 1d. doz., 7 doz. 6d
A boon to all breeders. Neatly printed in sets of twelve, on perforated gummed paper. They can be torn off, and affixed to the breeding cage in a moment, and prevent all confusion. Useful alike to both small and large breeders of birds.

CARD BREEDING REGISTERS, 1d. each, 4 for 3d., 9 for 6d.
For hanging up in the birdroom. Printed on suitable stiff card, they are ruled to hold a complete record of the breeding results of six pairs of birds; invaluable for future reference, to ensure that knowledge of one's stock essential to accurate breeding.

LIVE BIRD LABELS, 24, 3d.; 50, 6d.; 100, 1/-.
For use when despatching live birds on journeys by rail, or to the shows, etc. Printed in red ink and gummed on back. The simplest, neatest, and best on the market.

NOTE PAPER & POSTCARDS, 250 for 2/-; 500 for 2/6.
Until further notice we have decided to supply below cost price artistic Memorandum Forms and stout postcards, with name, address, twelve words of particulars, and blocks of any special variety of bird at half cost for cash. Carriage paid to any address in the U.K. Our latest style of note-head and postcard has been universally admired, and we will gladly send specimens to anyone enclosing stamped addressed envelope.

BLOCKS OF BIRDS, 1/6 each, 5 for 6/-, or 9 for 10/-.
For inserting in advertisements and for printing memorandums blocks of all kinds of birds at above low prices can be supplied. Larger blocks to order at cheapest possible rates. These dainty little blocks immensely enhance the appearance of note paper, postcards, and advertisements.

PICTURE POSTCARDS, 1d. each; set of six, 6d.
The most delightful and appropriate postcards of Canaries, British Birds, and Hybrids on the market, executed in colours by Mr. H. Norman. Ideal for Fanciers' correspondence. All represent exact and correct show types and have accompanying descriptions. State which bird or birds are required, or whether a mixed selection is preferred.
The latest set is entitled, "Pairs Matched for Breeding"; very educational art postcards. Price 3d. set of 8.

ORNAMENTAL PLATES, 1/- & 1/6 each.
The following coloured plates of cage Birds can be obtained mounted on stiff card and gelatined. This process makes them washable and gives them the handsome appearance and all the durability of framed plates under glass:—Bullfinch, Blackbird and Robin, Border Fancy Canary, Bullfinch Hybrids, Cinnamon Canary, Cinnamon Marked Yorkshires, Foreign Finches, Goldfinch and Bullfinch, Hybrids (popular), Lancashire and Lizards, Mules (popular), Norwich (Yellow), Parrakeets, Yorkshires. Price 1s. each. Crests, Desirable Aliens (Foreign Birds), Larks and Pipits, Norwich (Blaze of Colour), Wagtails and Stonechat. Price 1s. 6d. each.
Also a padded plate of KINGFISHER having all the appearance of a hand painting executed on ivory. A most charming ornament for brackets, occasional tables, etc. Price 1s. All are post free.
Why spend large sums on decorating the house with other pictures?

FANCIERS' PRINTING.
Fanciers requiring business notepaper, postcards, trade envelopes, etc., should write us for a quotation. We are now in a position to supply these at specially low rates combined with first-class work.

The Red Mite Nuisance.

Those little pests known as Red Mite are often a source of trouble to bird-keepers and their charges, and this contribution, which is written by Mr. J. C. DAVIES, and originally appeared in the "Bazaar," tells us something of their life history and discusses means of cure.

Probably all those who have had much experience of Canary-keeping have also had some experience of Red Mite. No pest is, indeed, more dreaded by breeders than these ubiquitous parasites, which, if not perpetually guarded against, soon overrun the cages and cause the greatest discomfort to the inmates. Like most other parasites of a similar nature, Red Mites are chiefly troublesome in the summer, particularly in hot weather. In heated bird-rooms, however, they may thrive and multiply the whole year round, and will then cause endless trouble to birds and owner.

These parasites are Acarina, or Mites, creatures of small dimensions, with short, thick bodies, and no appreciable head and neck. Once seen, their identity is unmistakable, as besides being decidedly red in colour, large specimens are about the size of a pin's head and easily visible to the naked eye, and the young ones appear as animated scarlet specks. The flattish bodies of Red Mites when running about (which they do most actively) are raised above the legs, and when in motion they suggest little red spiders more than anything else.

As a further aid to identification it may be mentioned that the Dermanyssus avium, as they are scientifically called, will usually be found in colonies of a great number of individuals, generally ensconced in some small hole in the wall, crack or joint in the woodwork, or especially in or beneath the lining of the nest-pan when there are young birds. Upon disturbances of their habitation the parasites scuttle actively about, and a certain nimbleness on the part of the operator is necessary to prevent distributing them broadcast.

The life-history of the Red Mites agrees closely with that of the other Acarina. The females lay eggs which, in a few days, hatch out into minute Mites (larvæ), distinguishable by being provided with only three instead of four pairs of legs. In a short time these immature specimens go through a change which leaves them with a fourth pair of egs (nymphal or pupal stage). A further metamorphosis brings about the development of the reproductive organs, and the Acarus is now a pubescent male or female, the former being always smaller in size and fewer in number than the latter. Finally, after mating, the females alone go through one more change, which makes them ovigerous or egg-laying females, and the cycle is complete. The rapidity with which one generation succeeds another is probably dependent upon the warmth of the weather and a favourable environment; under the best conditions a week or two possibly suffices to see the birth of a new generation. The colour of Red Mites is, to some extent, dependent upon whether the individuals are full or fasting; mature females, however, always seem to be darkish (under the microscope, purplish) in hue, whereas males and immature specimens are bright scarlet. These differences may, though be due to a preference for venous or arterial blood at different ages.

As already hinted, Red Mites live and breed in holes and cracks in the vicinity of their prey, and not upon the bodies of their victims. They are almost exclusively nocturnal in habit, and at nightfall issue forth from their hiding-places, spread themselves over the birds within reach, and by pricking with their sharp rostrums extract a notable quantiy of blood. Their punctures are not, as a rule, visible; indeed, their attacks are often quite unsuspected by the owner of the birds, who is frequently ignorant of the cause of the mysterious loss of condition, wasting, and even death of his charges. A close examination of cracks in the woodwork of the cages, the ends of the perches, or the picking out with a pin of any small holes in the stonwork of the walls will sometimes create a surprising exodus of scurrying Mites, which can be promptly exterminated with a drop of paraffin oil.

As Dermanyssus avium can live for months without satisfying its sanguinary appetite, it is not sufficient merely to remove the cages temporarily from the suspicious neighbourhood, as when returned months later the Mites will probably be found still waiting for a suitable host. The pests must be destroyed with limewash, boiling water, or some dilute parasiticide, such as carbolic acid or creolin. Personally, we have found paraffin oil quite as good as and much cheaper than the camphor dissolved in methylated spirit which is often recommended as a dressing for Canary breeding-cages. If every crack, joint, and crevice is carefully gone over with a small brush dipped in paraffin, all lurking Mites and their eggs will be successfully destroyed, and it is then advisable to distemper or limewash the cages inside to complete the cure. (We have ourselves found turpentine one of the best possible exterminators of Red Mite; or it can be mixed with paraffin in equal parts, and thus be rendered cheaper in use. A suitable brush, such as a one or one-and-a-half inch flat paint brush, is all that is needed to apply it to the cages, etc. Both the pests and their eggs will be destroyed.—EDITOR "C.B.")

(As seen under microscope).

Of course, if a few Mites are seen at any time they can be killed very easily, as comparatively slight pressure causes them to crush. If their presence is only suspected, it is not a bad plan to hang up a white cloth over the cage at night, and some Mites, if present, will be found on it in the morning; or to crumple up a piece of white paper and place it between the bars of the cage, or—if the birds pick it out—close up to the cage, and leave it for a day or two. If Red Mites are about some of them are sure to be found ensconced in the folds of the crumpled paper.

Where the Red Mites come from in the first instance is certainly something of a mystery. Some fanciers have thought that they are introduced in the seed or green stuff; others that they can only come on the bodies of newly-purchased birds from infested premises. It is possible that they are always present on all premises, and only increase unduly when they find an environment so peculiarly favourable to them as the vicinity of Canaries. Spiders are said to prey on them and keep them down; but we do not vouch for the accuracy of this statement, though it is extremely probable that some sorts of spiders eat any Mites they come across.

Red Mites do not, as a rule, find conditions favourable to their multiplication on man; but they may temporarily invade and bite human beings under certain conditions. People who have to pluck much poultry are the chief sufferers on the hands and arms and other exposed parts. Dogs and cats have also been known to suffer, and a peculiar eruption on cows have been traced to the Mites from Swallows' nests in the shed, and entirely ceased when these nests had been removed. It will be seen, then, that no trouble should be too great to exterminate this unpleasant Mite.

HOW I KEEP AND TRAIN MY LINNETS FOR SONG.

By J. Barber.

In writing these few notes on British birds, I do so in the hope that they will be of some use to someone who wishes to keep his birds in perfect health and feather, which we all ought to be anxious to do; it is our duty if we keep cage birds to see that they are properly fed and caged to the best of our ability. I will try and enable the reader therefore to do so, for what I have learned is what I have gathered by experience and from what I have seen. Many of us when first starting in the Fancy have sent for a dozen birds or so, and on arrival have turned them all into one large cage thinking there will be plenty of room for them; and after a few days we have seen them drooping and dying one by one and have stood by quite helpless, not knowing the cause. But I have found out since my earlier experiences that "one bird, one cage" is the best; and if they have come to me in a healthy condition I have always managed to keep them on this earth. Remember: When you have any fresh birds in—birds which you have sent away for—it is fresh clean water they first require. When I have any fresh-caught birds I have the cages all ready with plenty of sand in the bottoms, no seed at all in the cage, and the water fountains in their places. And when I have my birds in their cages I fill the fountains with water and cover the top of the water with seed, when they will not be long before finding it. When they have found their water I give them seed; if they are young birds they require scalded rape and crushed hemp until they can properly crack their own. I do not forget to give plenty of green-food, such as shepherd's purse, groundsel, plantain stalks, and rape seedlings. (The last-mentioned are easily procured; sow some rape seed in boxes and keep them in a window or in any other suitable place which is under cover.) Supposing they are Linnets you have sent for and your wish is to get a good singing bird or two, don't think you are sure to get a contest winner out of a few odd birds, although you may be lucky enough to buy a good bird even though it is the only one you buy. The best plan is to buy as many as you have room for, as far as your pocket will allow, and then feed them so as to get them fierce and in full song, when you can pick out the freest singing and the best noted birds. Then if you do not require the others you can easily sell them for Muling purposes, or as call-birds for catching. Linnets, as a rule, do not sing their best in their first year; they are a great deal better after being house-moulted as they are steadier and seem to gain more confidence in you. If you obtain a bird which you think is good enough for contest singing begin at once to steady it. I have seen birds steadied by hanging their cages about four or five feet from the floor in a room where there is someone frequently passing to and fro, offering the birds every time they pass some tit-bit they have a great liking for. Birds treated thus will soon begin to know you. Another way of steadying them is: if you happen to have a corner where you always sit, hang your birds in the corner, level with your face, and offer them the tit-bits. Never let your Linnets see one another. When they are singing fiercely, if you have a friend who has any fierce birds, take your birds frequently with you to his house and see how they will sing against other birds in a strange place, and it will get them used to singing in strange places, by which they will soon come to know what is expected of them. I will now tell you how I feed my birds and how best to bring them fierce. For their stock-feed I give them 1lb. of Spanish Canary, 1lb. of German rape, 1lb. of English or black rape, ½lb. of teazle, ½lb. of linseed. When I am feeding them so as to bring them fierce I get ½lb. of dandelion seed, 1lb. gold of pleasure seed, 1lb. of clean charlock, ½lb. of maw, and ½lb. of turnip seed. I give them this mixture every other day, and when they don't have this I give them some wild seed which I have gathered, such as shepherd's purse, plantain, red weed, or any seeds I have seen Linnets feeding on in the fields. If you have not gathered any of these, go to the farmers when they are threshing their corn and ask them for some of their screenings, and when these are cleaned you have a fine assortment of seeds. For green-food, when it is scarce, I give them the rape seedlings mentioned above. Some of the birds I occasionally give a few drops of whisky in their water, but I prefer rum, or else essence of peppermint. I will give you my reason. Place a piece of liver in two cups and cover one piece with whisky and the other with rum, on the overnight; and the next morning look at them both and you will see which of the two liquids is the better to give birds. Some fanciers, when getting their birds ready for a singing contest, cover them well up (leaving it just light enough for them to see to eat and drink) for the last few days before the contest, and on the same day as the contest keep them in darkness until they are taken out for the same, not forgetting to give them a drink with something in their water. And when birds are hung up in the contest (if treated as I have advised) if they don't open their wings and sing for all they are worth when they see and hear other birds it will not be my fault nor their owner's.

A CANARY FIT.

The Sad Experiences of a Young Couple in Search of a Hobby.

Martha is something of a dog-fancier (relates "W. B." in the "Manchester Evening Chronicle"), but as she generally fancies dogs much beyond our moderate means, I persuaded her—not without difficulty—to adopt a less expensive hobby, to fancy something cheaper; birds, for instance. I see now that this was a ruinous suggestion, and, indeed, as far as mere expense was concerned, to have advised my wife to keep a pet rhinoceros would have been a saving.

The bird idea, once implanted, however, took firm root, and, as it were, brought forth fruit in due season, the first fruit being a mighty gorgeous Parrot. This I absolutely and finally refused to have about the place because, as I said—well, I gave my reasons.

Bitter Tears!

A few tears were shed, and Polly departed, only to be exchanged, however, for a couple of Doves! There are poets who rave about the cooing of Doves and liken it to "the soothing music heard by Love's young dream," and so on. And I don't dispute that it may be all that and much more to a poet; but to a sleepy man who needn't be knocked up till eight, there's not much soothingness in being disturbed at five every morning. So although I raved about the Doves equal to any poet, it was in a different way.

I didn't say anything to Martha, however, as relations between us were a trifle strained over the Parrot business; but I had a chat with Cardwell, our next-door neighbour, and at length prevailed upon him to come and make a complaint to me about our Doves disturbing his wife's rest, etc., etc. Needless to say, this little farce was timed for an evening, when Martha was present.

So the Doves went the way of the Parrot, and Cardwell's wife was crossed off our invitation list.

A Triumphant Entry.

Then came the Canary!

What, exactly, were the terms of the bargain Martha made with the bird-dealer, I don't know; but a few days after the Doves were returned a man brought a cage with a Canary in it. As he didn't fix the thing in position, Martha became quite friendly with me again, and I set to work to put up the cage.

At first we couldn't decide on the best place for it: the Canary, it appeared, was a delicate bird, must not be in a draught, nor near the fire, nor away from the light, nor where the cat could reach it. After due consideration of these conditions I fixed on a likely spot in the ceiling and brought the steps and some tools.

The matter presented little difficulty. At the first knock I made a hole about a foot square. Most of the loosened plaster fell on my head and I beat a hasty retreat, knocking over the bird-cage in transit.

A Clearance.

The cage-door burst open, and the startled Canary made a dash for liberty. Martha screamed and fussed about to such an extent that the frightened bird soon departed through the open window. We dashed through the front-door and gave chase, assisted by the whole neighbourhood, and so energetically that in half-an-hour we returned triumphant with the captured truant.

Then we discovered that some wanderer had entered the house by the front door (which Martha had obligingly left wide open), and in our absence had cleared the portable silver from the sideboard in the dining-room, and the two best umbrellas from the hall!

So far, so good; but the main thing at the moment was the Canary. I hung him up on high, and waited with a sad heart for his cheering song. I have waited for that song a considerable time now—nearly a fortnight, in fact—but the only notes I have heard so far are in the style of the chirp generally associated with a sparrow.

I don't like to say anything to Martha till she gets over the Canary fit but I have also noticed that the brilliant yellow of the bird's wings is changing to a dirty brown, and I sometimes wonder——!

Our Coloured Plate: Four Favourite Buntings.

By S. A. SANDY.

Some Interesting and Practical Observations on the Corn, Reed, Cirl and Yellow Buntings: their life, both indoor and outdoor.

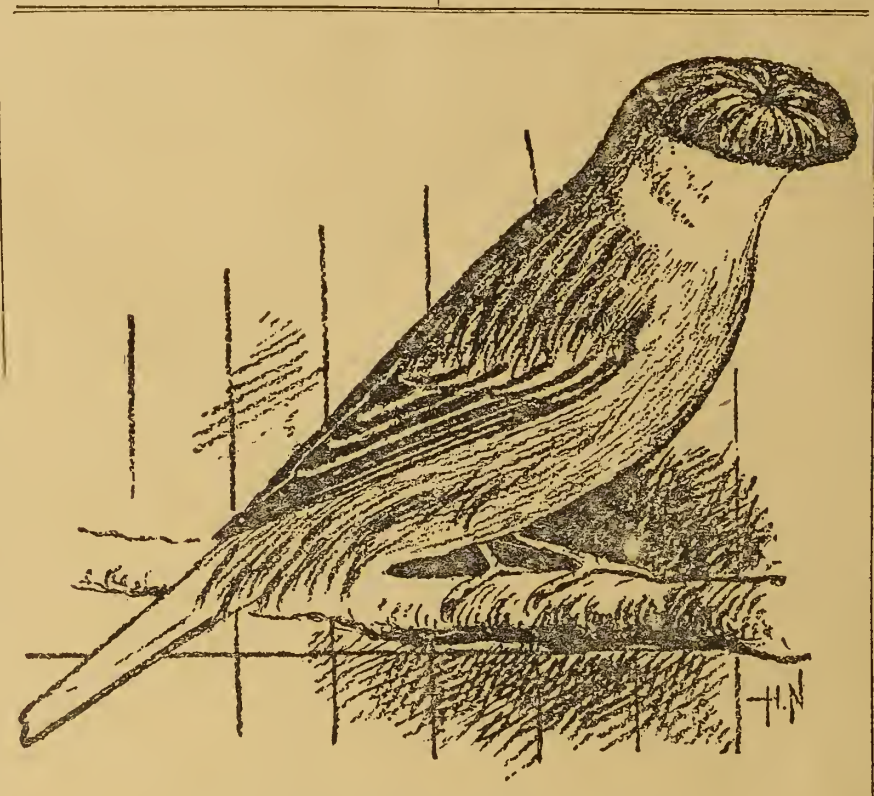
The various members of the Bunting Family, although utter failures as songsters, are very useful as exhibition birds, and no British bird exhibitor's stock should be considered complete without at least some specimens of the Yellow, the Cirl and Reed Buntings. If he has an unlimited amount of patience as well as "nerves of iron," he should also include a specimen or two of the Corn Bunting.

The family is a very numerous one, but, with the addition of the Snow Bunting which visits us in large numbers during the winter months, the Yellow, Cirl, Reed and Corn Buntings are the only species that have any real claim to be called British birds. During recent years a good number of Meadow Buntings have found their way on to the show bench in British bird classes, and also a few Ortolans, but I think the nationality of the specimens has in every case been open to question. They are both said to be migratory, and this is certainly correct, for I have very little doubt they had "assisted passages" over from some Continental port.

These Buntings are all resident species, and generally speaking very hardy birds. In winter they swarm round the stock-yards in great numbers, and feed upon the grain that is mostly found scattered around.

The Ever Popular Yellow Bunting.

The Yellow Bunting, or Yellowhammer (or "Ammer"), as it is more familiarly called, is the best known of the four birds under notice, and the most popular as a cage bird. But it has little to recommend its being kept in captivity, except for the purpose of lending a touch of colour to an aviary collection, or for the purposes of exhibition. In an aviary, it is very peaceful, and seems soon to make itself at home and upon good terms with the other occupants. I have, however, noticed that when I have kept a single specimen in my aviary for a good time, and have then turned in a fresh one, there has usually been a little disagreement to commence with; but they soon appear to become the best of friends



The staple diet of Yellow Buntings in captivity is Canary seed and the bird seems to do very well on this alone; beyond oats, it looks for little else, and will not eat hemp or linseed. In its wild state, it feeds very largely on insects when they are obtainable, and it consequently appreciates a tit-bit when caged, such as a few mealworms, flies, gentles, earwigs, and the like. I also give my Buntings a supply of soft food several times a week, and notice they are very fond of hard-boiled egg.

The Yellowhammer is common in almost every part of Great Britain, but I remember a few years back when staying in Devonshire taking a stroll in the evening through some fields on the outskirts of a town, and it seemed to me they were unusually plentiful in that part, for every few yards I heard the monotonous song (if song it can be called) which has been coined into "a little bit of bread and no cheese"; these words seem to fit very well to the six or seven short notes, and one long one for a finish, all uttered in the one key, and repeated a considerable number of times, the bird being perched on the top of some bush or hedge the while. This bird does not, however, confine itself to any particular locality, for it can be heard on most of the heaths and commons singing on some tall piece of furze or other bush.

It is, I am sure, needless for me to take up space in describing the plumage of the Yellowhammer for our artist, in the plate which is presented to the readers of CAGE BIRDS with this issue, has hit off the points of a perfect show specimen to a nicety, and I can imagine some of my friends wondering who possesses the bird from which Mr. Norman sketched his picture.

Desirable Points in the Yellowhammer

It is a very difficult matter to meet with a perfectly-marked specimen among those newly caught. A great deal of the markings and colouring depends upon the season of the year at which the bird is caught. For instance, after the autumn moult in the wild bird the head is usually heavily marked, as also is the throat; but as the spring approaches and the bird gets into breeding trim, the dark marks disappear, until the head in some cases is perfectly yellow, as in the Canary. I always think that a show bird, no matter of what species it be, should excel in the points most difficult to obtain, and I am bound to say I rather disagree with some of our judges who attach so much importance to size. Possibly I am wrong, but it always seems to me a fairly easy matter to get a big

A Noted West-Country Crested Canary.

Second Prize at Plymouth Show for Mr. J. Ryder (Plymouth).

Yellowhammer, showing plenty of yellow on the underparts, but badly marked on the cheeks and head. I have both seen and possessed a great number of Buntings, but for every one that is seen with dense markings running from the bill to the back of the head in the shape of a "V" and having heavy, dark, cheek marks and the crown of the head clear yellow, there are at least fifty with the head lines broken or irregular in shape, and the top of the head marked with small dark tips to the feathers.

Again, the back should be a rich tint of brown, the wing coverts nice and even, and the thigh marks regular. The yellow should extend from the throat down the breast as much as possible, and the bird should stand well on the perch and not crouch, as many of them do. I have found the medium-sized birds the best marked.

The show cage should be of the same size as that used for the Bramblefinch, and should be enamelled dark green, not quite so dark as for the Goldfinch. For a steady bird the cage illustrated in the issue of CAGE BIRDS of the 24th October last is about as good as anything I have yet found. I prefer to use well-damped fibre to sand for the cage bottom. The stock cage should be about 18 inches long and fairly roomy, with a door in front for a bath to be hung on. It is very seldom that societies provide a class especially for Yellow Buntings; the birds usually have to take their chance in the "A.O.S." class, and if there happens to be a Hawfinch in the class, the Bunting's chances of premier honour are somewhat remote.

The hen of this species is duller in the general plumage than the cock; it is usually smaller, and shows very little yellow. It is not worth keeping, as it stands little or no chance even in a class especially provided for hens.

As regards nesting operations, the birds go to nest at about April. The nest itself is composed of moss and dried grass, with a lining of hair, and may be found in a low bush or sometimes on a bank or among tangled herbage. The number of the eggs is given by most authorities as 4 or 5, but I have been told by several of my country friends that the usual number is 3.

The Beautiful Reed Bunting.

The Reed Bunting (or Reed Sparrow, as it is very often called), as its name implies, frequents the reed beds by the sides of rivers and streams, and for that matter may be found wherever there are plenty of sedges and reeds, in which it usually breeds. It is a resident species, and is generally distributed throughout the British Isles; but during the winter a movement south is said to take place, and the birds then congregate in small flocks.

An adult cock bird in full breeding plumage is a very taking bird. The head and throat are then a jet black, with a good sheen on the feathers, and the collar and marks at the sides of the throat are pure white, the breast being of a greyish white with dark markings on the flanks. The marks on the back are very regular in many specimens. Like the Yellow Bunting, this bird loses a good deal of its beauty after the autumn moult. The ends of the head and throat feathers are heavily tipped with brown and the collar and throat markings are buff instead of white; so that the bird is rarely seen at its best on the show bench.

The Reed Bunting is slightly smaller than the Yellow, being only six inches long. It is a restless bird in captivity, that is when caged, but in an aviary it seems quite at its ease, and keeps in the pink of condition. It is a great bather. Mine is usually one of the first into the bath, even in the coldest weather. I find, however, that the cocks do not agree quite so well as the males of the Yellow Bunting. They seem to take a delight in plucking the feathers from off each other, which is rather inconvenient if they happen to be wanted for exhibition purposes.

Reed Buntings do very well on plain Canary seed, but when newly caught, should have a rather liberal supply of mealworms or gentles for a week or so, for in their natural state they feed largely on aquatic insects. It is a good plan to put several in a spacious cage when they are first caught, as they seem to settle down better. But you will soon have to separate them, or they will commence the plucking operation.

The hen of this species is smaller than the cock, and has no black on the head and throat nor a white collar. It is very restless when first caged, but usually stands a good chance of being in the "tickets" in a hen class at an exhibition. If caged it should be given a bath daily, by which means it will keep in splendid order. I am in favour of colour-feeding this species, for I have found it puts a good sheen on the feathers and a rich tint. But I will deal with the question of colour-feeding further on. I have moulted a fair number of this species, and have found them to do well.

The Reed's Domestic Arrangements.

The nesting operations are commenced towards the latter part of March, and the nest, which consists of moss and dried grasses and is lined with the feathery tops of reeds may be found sometimes upon the ground or in small willows or clumps of reeds. The eggs number from 4 to 6 and are of a buffish colour, streaked and spotted with dark purple brown. The Cuckoo, by the way, is supposed to be somewhat partial to the nest of the Reed Bunting.

Two broods constitute the average, but sometimes as many as three are reared during the summer. It will, therefore, be seen that compared with some of our other birds, these are at any rate are workers. The youngsters resemble the hen, but if it is desired to select the cocks from hens in the nest feather, the safest way will be to take the largest birds.

The same sized show cage does well as was recommended above in the case of the Yellow, but it may be enamelled either dark blue or darkish green—the bird looks well in either.

The Cirl Bunting's Attractions.

Fanciers are perhaps less familiar with this pretty Bunting than with the two species we have been considering. It is by no means numerous in any part of Great Britain, and with the exception of the Southern parts of England, may be called rare. In Scotland and Ireland, it is practically unknown, except in captivity.

Its plumage is perhaps more striking than that of any of the others under notice. An adult cock has a yellow streak over each eye, the ceres, ear coverts and throat are black, followed by a pale yellow collar and a broad band of olive grey, succeeded by chestnut stripes and patches, with the abdomen and underparts yellow. The back, flights and tail are almost identical with those of the Yellow Bunting, and the length is usually a shade over 6 inches. After studying the plate, any reader should be able to easily identify a specimen, should he come across one.

Like all the Buntings, it has no musical attainments, its song being similar to that of the Yellow Bunting, without the last two notes. My friend, Mr. Walter Swaysland, of Brighton, in the course of a little birdy chat, told me that a few pairs built regularly at Portslade, in Sussex. He had found the nest sometimes in small bushes, and sometimes in a hole in a bank.

The young number from 4 to 5, and are very dull in plumage. The hen is slightly smaller than the cock, and is without the black throat and cheek markings, showing hardly any yellow in the plumage. The Cirls require a stock cage the same as that advised for the Yellow and Reed Buntings, and the show cage should also be of the same size, and enamelled a medium green in colour. The bird has to take its chance in a Bunting class, or in small shows in the "any species" class, but it usually gets near the top, for it is a species that catches the judge's eye.

As regards food, I have found that it thrives well for a while on Canary seed, but I consider it requires more attention to keep it in the pink of condition, than do the others, and it should have a frequent supply of soft food and a more liberal insect diet.

The Largest of the Buntings.

As will be seen from the plate, the Corn Bunting very much resembles the Song Thrush in the breast markings, the spots appearing quite as distinct as in that bird. The plumage generally is the same shade as the Skylark and that is why we call the bird a Bunting Lark. Like the Lark, it frequently builds on the ground in a clover field, or under a clod of earth in a cornfield. The nest is a loose affair composed of dried grass, small roots and a little moss. The eggs are large, and are of a dull whitish colour, blotched and streaked with purple brown. The Corn Bunting has no song whatever, and the call note uttered from the top of some tall bush may best be described as "tio tio teese."

When fresh caught, this species is about as wild a bird as any fancier could possibly be unfortunate enough to find. It seems to do little else but feed and make frantic efforts to get free. It should be placed in a low cage with a canvas top, and should be hung in some part of the bird room, or in the kitchen where people are constantly passing too and fro; it may then become sufficiently steady to be shown at an exhibition, after the first cage moult; but I think the chances of success on the show bench, where steadiness very rightly plays a prominent part, are very remote until after the bird has passed through a couple of cage moults.

It of course requires a roomy cage when properly tamed, and the show cage should be of about the same measurements as that for the Hawfinch. For exhibition, the bird should be colour-fed, undoubtedly, and I think the judge when he sees a nice specimen shown, is pretty sure to recognise it by giving it an award. We must not forget that the judge sees before him the finished article, and unless he is a practical British bird keeper, probably has but a very vague idea of the patience that has been bestowed on our friend.

Its food should be Canary seed and plenty of oats, with a mealworm or two now and again as a delicacy. I do not think insect food is nearly so necessary for this species as for the other three species.

I have found each of the four birds fond of bathing, and as the bath is about the finest thing by which to keep a bird in good order, it goes without saying that it should have access to a bath every day where possible.

I have not found my Buntings to care much for green food; in fact, I have given up including it in their daily menu.

The Colour-feeding of Buntings.

I have previously referred to the question of colour feeding. I think it is essential in the cases of Yellow, Cirl, and Corn Buntings, if one wishes to get that density of yellow and that rich tint to the darker feathers, which are so much sought for in high-class exhibition birds; besides which, I find from experience that when moulted on colour feed, the birds have a finish that is seldom seen in a non-fed bird, and are far superior to field-moulted ones.

When colour-feeding, I commence to use the red feed early in August; I gradually reduce the supply of seed and increase the number of mealworms, etc., until I find the birds, especially the Yellow and Cirl Buntings, casting their body feathers freely, then I drop the seed altogether, and feed on ants' eggs, dried flies, etc.—in fact the food I use for my insectivorous birds. To this I add sufficient red feed to make the food a deep red in colour. The yellow parts of the birds should not be red, but an intense yellow. Some specimens take the colour more deeply than others, and if a specimen shows signs of coming out too hot, the quantity of feed should, of course, be reduced. It is as bad to turn the bird out too red as too pale.

When they are finishing up the moult, I put them back on seed again, but I keep up a little red food until the birds are well over the moult. I give a bath daily as I think it helps a free moult; I also put a small piece of sulphate or iron in the drinking water every other day.

The Koller, Glucke and Flute Notes of the Roller Canary.

A [Paper read before the British Roller C.C., by Mr. J. C. Schluter, being a translation from an article by Mr. L. Tretter in the "Allgemeine Kanarien-Zeitung."

Not so very long ago I was discussing with a few old friends, all, of course, being "birdy-men," our favourite topic, viz., Canary-Breeding. By and by, the conversation drifted to the "Koller," and one of my friends remarked: "I have been looking for a bird with the Koller for the last three years, and now, quite by accident, I have got hold of one; you cannot imagine how fortunate I consider myself in possessing a bird with this noble tour. Please come and hear it, and you will find it one of the greatest pleasures of our time to hear again a bird sing his song from the depth of his breast, after the tiring monotony that we have been used to of late."

The Revival of the "Koller."

Such and similar are the ideas of a good many other present-day breeders, and especially of those who have been breeding for this tour—unfortunately now so rare—and who remember the time when it was in its prime. That which one calls a "Kollertour" nowadays is nothing more than a shadow of that beautiful tour of bygone days.

It is only Koller-like tours that one hears now. Considering the fact that the demand for these tours is greater now than it was a few years ago, and, further, that a refinement of taste seems to have taken place amongst breeders, it is safe to predict that if the way to the "good old song" has not already been found, it soon will be, for at every possible opportunity—at club-meetings and in the Fancy Press—one hears of people lamenting the disappearance of those tours, at the same time giving expression to the hope of their early re-appearance.

And the young breeders, inspired by the old and yet new idea, ask: "We shall be glad to take up and care for these birds, but where can we hear and buy them?"

The "Koller" Described.

Let us now have a closer look at the "Koller" tour, already mentioned. Many breeders may not have had an opportunity of hearing it and, therefore, can form no idea of its beauty and effect. If I now take the liberty of describing it, I shall only give my own impressions from what I have actually heard. I describe the Koller as a deep, hollow, breast tour, which, rendered with a closed beak, combines sounds like Knorre, Glucke, Schockel, etc., in a wonderful richness of tone, which is still further enhanced by the tender, quick change of the sounds: o, u, ü, ö within one and the same song. As the light gleams in many colours, so the Koller shines in richness of tone! Now the bird presents to us the ü (pronounce between u and ee), with the guttural sounds g and kw, then he changes the ü for u (falls) or ö, o, and combines these sounds with b, bl, or r, somewhat like this: kwrruru rürübloooobe. These variations are the origin of that beautiful melody from which one might imagine to hear a triad.

If I have said before that the Hollow-roll has always been one of the noblest tours of the Canary's song, I should like to say with regard to the Koller that it is the finest—the Queen of all tours. And, therefore, it ought to be judged on the basis of main-tours, such as Hollow-roll, Knorre, Water-roll, etc., and to be awarded up to 12 points.

The "Glucke" Considered.

If you empty an ordinary beer-bottle filled with water, you will hear a glucking sound, sometimes accompanied by beautifully hollow and full-sounding echoes, making quite a distinct "gluck-gluck." We also hear the gluck-gluck in the fowl-run when the old hen calls her chicks. Very similar to these sounds is a tour of our birds' song, and which has derived its name from them, viz., the Glucke. One has to distinguish between Water, Hollow, Bell-Glucke, and Glucke-roll.

The Water-Glucke resembles the sound which you get when you empty a bottle of water. The silvery sounds glucklukluk, glokloklok or lokloklok, luklukluk follow each other in quick succession, but between the syllables there are short intervals which remind one of the bell tours. If you hear the vowel a or ä, the good sound is missing, and this fault is called the flat Glucke. This tour also loses through the too liberal use of the guttural sounds of k and g.

The Hollow-Glucke I. should compare with the Glucke of our house-fowl. Consonants and vowels are the same as with the Water-Glucke, only the rippling, watery sounds are missing. A very beautiful tour was the former Double-Glucke, which, however, seems to have quite disappeared.

The Bell-Glucke has its name from its ending in the letter i (pronounce ee): gluigluiluilui or kluiklui, and it used to be a very fine tour. It was the more beautiful when the i was the more metallic and pure.

The Gluck-roll is a Glucke rendered with the letter r. Started with kl or gl, the syllables u, ü, i are joined by the consonant r, which gives the tour its rolling character.

At all the exhibitions of last year, which I visited partly as a judge and partly as an ordinary visitor, I only heard two birds with a Glucke, and that was the Hollow-Glucke in each case. It is truly as magnificent as it is valuable. It was a pity the birds only treated us to it for such a short time. But this tour requires a great deal of work of the larynx, because all the sounds have to be formed there. In no other tour do we find so many consonants before and between the keynote, as in those of Glucke and Koller birds. And I should say that this great accumulation of consonants is the cause of most of the frequent deteriorations in the birds' song. Therefore, the breeding for the Glucke and Koller song is no doubt a difficult but a gratifying task and many breeders who have the improvement of our birds' song really at heart will here find a chance of gaining laurels. And as, furthermore, the Glucke is to be placed on the same basis as the other principal tours as regards points, breeders will have a chance of competing successfully at the shows.

The Character of "Flutes."

We come now to the Pipes or Flutes. The expression "Flutes" was more general in former times than it is now, and it was derived from the resemblance of the bird's notes to the sounds of the flute instrument. The Flutes might be divided into the following: deep, medium, and high; also into even, rising, falling, bent, drawn, nosey, and nose-flutes.

Just as the sounds of u, ü, o, ö, and i are the best in all the other tours, so are they the ones that count most in valuing the Flutes. Deep Flutes are the ones with du and do (less tender with tu and to), medium ones sound like dü and dö, and high ones di. The Flutes just mentioned are the most valuable, but within these good Flutes there are again degrees of quality, which to determine may best be left to the taste and judgment of the individual breeder or judge. The Flute is even when the key is not altered, thus: dududu, düdüdü, dididi; it is rising when the key is raised, thus: dududüdü, düdüdidi; falling Flutes move the other way about, thus: dididüdü, dodododu. Sometimes the vowel is drawn out, and then one speaks of a drawn Flute, which very often is rising like this: duidui, boiboi. If the vowel is drawn out too long we get stretched Flutes, which are just as reprehensible as those "Push and Gallop-Flutes" that are rendered in quick succession.

Among the valuable Flutes must also be mentioned the Dau or Tau-Flutes, but I have not yet met with any really good ones. Pointed Flutes are deteriorated high Flutes ending in i, with which various tongue sounds have been combined, and which unfortunately do not come out well in the song: djidji, dsidsi, tzitzi; sharp: ississ, istist. Nosey Flutes may be suffered, if they are not too numerous, while, on the other hand, Nose-Flutes are downright objectionable: nänänä, dnäkdnäk, zengzeng, gessgoss, tziautzian, or in higher keys: nini, tnitni, rendered with the open beak. It is a remarkable fact that we find these Nose-Flutes with the deepest birds, and especially amongst the Glucke and Koller birds, and they must be considered as among the principal reasons for getting rid of these tours in the endeavour to get a pure song.

I am also an advocate for cleansing the song of all objectionable impurities, but I should consider twice before throwing a good, deep strain overboard for the sake of a few unpleasant Flutes. In acquiring a new strain, the chances are that with it I shall get even worse faults; as the proverb says, "No rose without a thorn!" I am a friend of free progress, and get easily over such details by paying more attention to the principal tours.

I am fairly convinced that a capable and conscientious judge, although, of course, making deductions for such faults, will leave birds with otherwise good main- and side-tours in the first-class. The number of points is not alone decisive, but the entire rendering of the song. If, for instance, the judge deducts two points for Nosey Flutes, the bird may still deserve, and will get, an extra two or more points for his principal tours. Therefore, breeders, let there be no narrow-mindedness nor petty nervousness.

The "Nightingale Flute."

A Flute that used to be in great favour with laymen was the so-called "Nightingale Flute." The Tyrolese breeders used to put their full-grown young birds with the Queen of Songsters, the Nightingale. The youngster, hearing nothing but her song of love, of joy, and of wrong, by day and by night, soon acquired this song: tzjuktzjuktzjuk, tzjaktzjaktzjak, but not with the same fulness and strength of the teacher. Still, the young Canary made many friends amongst lovers of nature by means of this song. From the point of beauty, however, and in the interest of purity it had to leave the field to better tours.

All theoretic discussions are not of much good without being studied on the birds themselves. "No man is born a scholar." Therefore, if you want to fathom the virtue of the song, listen to it carefully, and examine what is good and beautiful. Try to remove that which hurts your sense of beauty, and, on the other hand, cultivate that which appeals to your musical conception. And if you do not at once succeed in forming the song to your liking, have patience and persevere, for "Rome was not built in a day," and it took many, many years' labour before our Canary's song could become what it is to-day: a classical song in the fullest sense of the word. I add a few hints with regard to the pronunciation of the German sounds: u = oo; i = ee; ü = between u and ee; ö = between o and ee; w = v; a = a in far; ä = a in bad; g = g in gold; z = ts.

BRITISH BIRD MANUAL.

Published in two parts.

Either Part, PRICE, 1/1 POST FREE.

Each part contains a beautiful and life-like coloured plate and numerous black and white illustrations of birds and cages. Written and illustrated by that practical fancier, Mr H. Norman, these books contain full and up-to-date information on the keeping of British Birds; and all Fanciers, whether Novices or Old Hands, will find in them extremely valuable hints and instructions.

A postal order for 1/1 for one part, or 2/- for the complete manual, will bring them to you by return of post. Send to Notes on the Norwich Plainhead Canary.

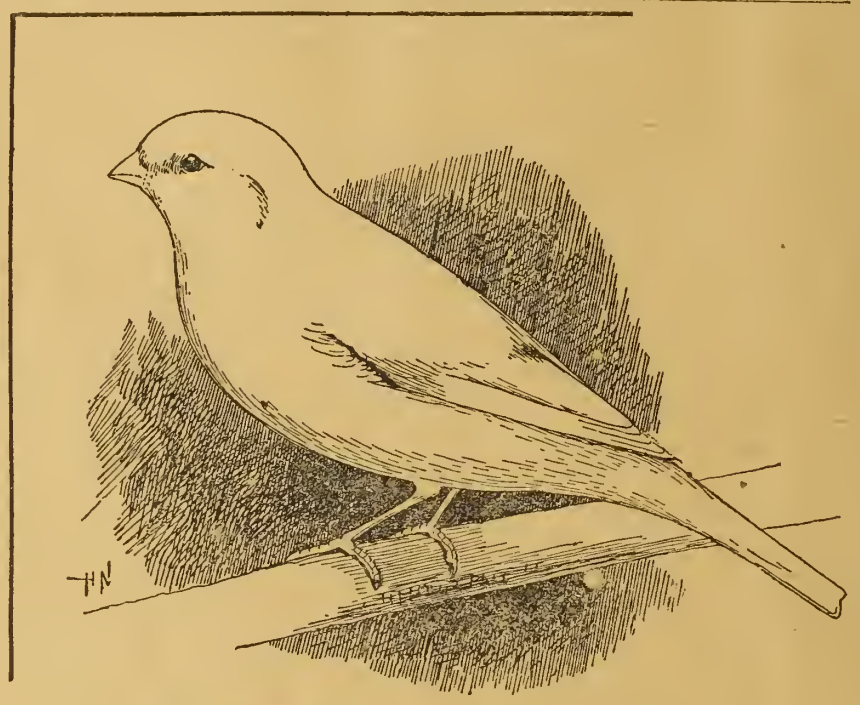
A Lecture recently delivered before the Liverpool B.B.A., by Mr. J. RAYNES, Hon Sec. of the Norwich Plainhead Club.

In giving you a paper on this, the most popular variety of Canaries, one must necessarily go over some of the ground that has been trodden before, because so many articles have already appeared in the press on this subject, that it is somewhat difficult to introduce anything new of importance, especially to those who may have bred this variety for a longer period than myself. But if there are any novices here, it is for them my paper is intended, and if they gather any small crumbs that fall from me, which might be of any service whatever to them, then I shall be amply rewarded. I don't think it necessary to go into the matter of the feeding of the Norwich, nor into the origin of the bird, as to where it came from. It is supposed to have been bred by experimenting and crossing (both for shape, size and colour) from the Green Canary in its wild state.

A Word in Passing on Feeding.

I might, however, say briefly that I feed my birds on white seed only in the hoppers; the mixed seed I put in the egg drawer when required, thus preventing waste. I generally give the cock birds a little mixed seed once a week right through the winter, and the hens plain white seed, and by about the end of February I give the cocks a little egg food composed of hard-boiled egg and bread, and the hens mixed seed once or twice a week, with a little egg food a week or two later, according to the weather, and the state of the hens. Young hens come into breeding condition much sooner than old ones.

I prefer lime-washed single-breeding cages, without any false bottoms, and with loose fronts; they can then be cleaned out much easier, and it gives less harbour for the red mite. I like sawdust for the bottoms, except when the birds are breeding; then I prefer sand. I use pots for nests, the material being moss and dried soft grass. I take all the eggs away as they are laid, and return them to the nest on the evening the hen has laid her third egg. When they have hatched, I use for the hen bread and egg in one pot, hemp and maw seed in another, and lettuce, by way of green food. When the young can pick up egg food, I grind a little white and hemp seed, and mix them together with egg food, gradually diminishing the latter until the young are well on hard seed.



Breeding Canaries, or any other birds for that matter, for exhibition, is not, to my mind, simply putting two opposite sexes together. You must have some object in view, if only to keep the variety pure, although I have known novices to breed good birds the first time of trying, simply because the pair they put up happened to hit. They might have been selected to match, or bought at random.

The best way for a novice to start in anything is to go to a master for a lesson or two, and I feel sure there are plenty of Canary breeders willing to teach him. Let him visit shows and compare the winners with the cardless birds; visit also exhibitors' rooms; finally, let him put himself in the hands of a good breeder to furnish him with some good stock birds (not necessarily show birds, that is) that are likely to produce something decent. Even then, neither he nor any other man is sure of breeding winners from any given pair of birds. The fancier who can breed a team of winners of his own ought to be very proud of his luck.

The Standard Norwich Canary.

What is this bird like that all Norwich fanciers try to obtain? According to the Norwich Plainhead Club's standard just recently revised, the ideal is as follows:—Head—round, full, and neat, with short beak; neck—short and thick; 25 points. Chest—deep, broad, and full, 15. Back—broad and well-filled in, 10. Wings and tail—short, compact, and good carriage, 15. Feather—soft and silky, with brilliancy and compactness, 15. Colour—deep, bright, pure, rich, and level throughout, 10. Staging and good condition, 10. Length not to exceed 6½ inches; streaked beak, and marked legs not to be a disqualification, but to count against the bird to its extent.

To commence first with the head, which is very important; on looking at a bird sideways as it hops from perch to perch its head may appear nice and round, but if you look at it straight in the face it often appears to be very narrow, it having no width across the eyes, being what is commonly called "wedge-shaped." This is considered to be a bad fault in a show specimen, and where it occurs in a hen I should require a cock bird with a good big head for its partner to try and balance for fault, if I bred at all with her. The head should be round and full, without showing any tendency to browing, well backed up with a short and thick neck. Nothing looks worse than a thin neck and head on a bird with a big body.

A WINNING BUFF NORWICH CANARY.

First and Special Prizes at Bristo Show, for Mr. C. E. Brown (Kingswesten).

The back and chest should be broad, thick set, and nicely rounded off at the root of tail, without any long or loose feathers about the thighs and waist hanging down on the perch. This is a fault we often see in big birds; they carry too much feather for them to put it away in the compact manner desired. Most of the big birds either show it here or over the eyes, giving them the appearance of slackness in feather. Such birds may be beaten by a much smaller bird who carries its feathers where they ought to be, it looking smarter and better braced up.

The wings should not be crossed at the ends like a pair of scissors, nor yet be half of them tucked up and the other half hanging down over them. This latter is also a great drawback to a bird, and as yet I have not heard the cause of it, nor a way to cure it, and I have tried the birds both in and out of large flight cages. The tail should be short and nicely narrowed off at the end. Long and fish-tailed birds are decidedly objectionable.

You will have noticed the small number of points allowed for colour; by some it is considered to be too little, but I don't think so when I come to take into consideration the difference between breeding for type and quality and breeding for colour. Almost anyone can colour a Norwich Canary, but it requires a practical and experienced breeder to get the other good qualities. Personally I am in favour of wiping the former off the slate altogether and have the birds shown in their natural colour, the same as the Border Fancy and other varieties usually are. I believe that fully three-fourths of the Norwich breeders will admit that it is an anxious and expensive time, and would rejoice and gladly give up the nuisance if everybody else would; but, unfortunately, they don't practice what they preach, or they would support the natural colour classes which some of us have struggled to get included at a few shows, and natural colour birds are allowed to compete at the N.P.C. Club Show for its challenge cup. It is quite true that I colour feed some of my birds owing to the limited number of non-fed classes; but if there were more I should not feed at all.

It simply rests, therefore, with the breeders to try and breed the different points that make the model as selected by the members of the N.P.C.

About Breeding and Pairing.

How to breed such birds is a problem that all breeders are trying year after year to solve. Some have been successful while others have failed in the breeding of even second-rate birds. If you have not got something near the mark to start with, it will be of little use your trying to breed, as I think it is generally admitted that, as a rule, inferior birds crop up from birds that are good winners, and if that is so, what do we expect to get from inferior ones? It costs no more to keep a good one than it does a bad one. Then why not have the best?

In pairing up it does not matter much whether it is a Yellow cock and a Buff hen, or vice versa. Some prefer one way and some another, each claiming equal advantages. In selecting my stock birds I prefer to have the cock birds as large as possible, well bred, and of good shape. I would not object to their being a bit long in feather, especially if I had short-feathered hens to counteract that fault with. The hens must be very typical and according to standard—thick, short, and of nice, silky, short feather. I would not discard one because she happened to be on the small side, seeing that it is shape, speaking generally, that comes from the hen.

I pair my best and biggest Yellow cock bird to the best-shaped Buff hen I have, and the best and biggest Buff cock bird to the best typical Yellow hen, these being the two best pairs. Always try and keep the best out of the youngsters you get from them. I pair the remainder of my stock up as best I can, never, however, putting two birds together that have the same fault, but pairing them so as to try and get the happy medium, stamping out the bad points and trying to improve the good ones. One bad bird and one good one will never make a good pair; it requires that both of them should be good.

One of the pairs I would prefer to be ticked or marked, as birds so bred, or which are varicgated, have better colour (whether colour-fed or in their natural colour) than those bred from Clears for a generation or two back. I am very fond of a good Green, either cock or hen, as it is of great value in the breeding of this variety. If you wish to get some heavily-marked birds use it on the cock's side, but if you prefer lightly or even evenly-marked birds use it on the hen's side. You can get back to Clears quicker in this way than by using a Green or variegated cock; it all depends on what object you have in view.

I prefer to breed with birds which have only moderate looks, provided they be bred off good, typical parents, than attempt to breed off little, better-looking birds—the best out of a nest from even poorer parents—because the birds are apt to throw back to their grandparents This is where the uncertainty comes in.

The man who is fortunate enough to breed one or two good birds should not part with them, or with their parents, but keep them with a view to getting the whole of his stock nearer perfection. Show specimens are not bred in every nest, and when got, my advice to you is to hold fast to them and not part with the very thing you have spent a few seasons and many anxious days over to obtain. True, money has a wonderful influence over a great number of people.

Moulting and Colour-feeding.

In moulting either young or old birds I prefer to put them into flight cages (providing they all agree) where they can get more exercise than if they were moulted in pairs in the breeding cage—a method adopted by many fanciers. When the young are about six weeks old they and old ones intended for colour-feeding should have a little colour mixed with their egg food gradually; by degrees this should be increased to the quantity desired. When they are about three parts of the way through the moult I transfer them into clean, single breeding cages to finish them off, some taking longer to get really fine than others.

In preference to giving boiled egg and bread, I moult mine on a sponge loaf or cake, made with two or three eggs, flour, etc., and baked in the ordinary way; when grated or ground, when made this way, it breaks up like fresh egg food for the young in the nest. Then if the colour food is put to this the night before, the fat from the cake seems to draw or bring out the colour a deal better than if mixed at the time of giving. A little soaked rape seed mixed with it improves it; but this cannot stand more than a day or two, and it soon goes sour. If it is mixed fresh, however, it is alright.

I am not going to recommend any particular colour food; you must judge for yourselves from the samples you can obtain from the vendors. I add about an ounce of hot cayenne and a little sugar to each pound of colour-food, but no oil. A few grains of sulphate of iron put in the drinking water when the birds are nearly through the moult I find is also beneficial. As the birds come nearer the finish of the moult run them into show cages occasionally, and have a look at them sometimes; it gets them used to being handled, and they become steadier in the cage. Many a bird has to stand down for being wild at the time of judging. Birds for exhibition should be shown clean, free from soap, in good health, and as near perfection as human hands can possibly make them. The cages should be spic and span, as it is of no use putting clean birds into dirty cages. Both should, in fact, be turned out to the best of one's ability.

This is a thorough and practical guide to the general management and breeding of Canaries, written by a well-known expert and judge. It contains chapters dealing fully with the breeding, etc., of every member of the Canary family, and an illustration of each bird, by the master Canary artist, Mr H. Norman, reproduced in the finest art style. There are also exhaustive chapters on aviaries and cages, breeding procedure, moulting, exhibiting, diseases, and seeds—a compendium of knowledge approached by no other book of its kind at the price.

CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street London, E.C.

KIRBYMOORSIDE.

The Kirbymoorside F.S. held their fourth annual show of Cage Birds in the Market Hall, on Thursday, October 29. Some fine specimens were benched. The principal prize-winners were the Rev. Bernard Wilton and Messrs. Pressey, Barnwell, Wildsmith & Hawkins, Wood, and Marwood. Messrs. Reed and Calam, the Hon. Secreturies, had the birds well staged, and looked after them as only two such fanciers can. They are to be congratulated on this. A great number of visitors attended the show during the day, and we hope the "gate" will come up to the able Committee's expectations. Mr. W. Mundell (Bradford) judged.

YORKS., CL. (16): 1, Pressey, buff, well up on leg, grand position, lovely feather, rich colour, good head; 2, 3, he, Rev. B. (18): A lovely class of mixed Britishers: 1, Brasfield, lovely grey Wagtail, very clean and steady; 2, Wildsmith and Hawkins, well-known Hawfinch; 3, Harrison Bros., yellowhammer rich colour, lovely markings; vhc, Stamp; he, Jackson; c, Rev. B. Wilton. SELL. (10/-) (14): 1, 2, 3, he, Rev. B. Wilton; vhc, Palmer.

ALNWICK.

The newly-formed Alnwick and Dist. C.B.S. held their first annual show in the Corn Exchange Hall, on October 31st. The hall is an ideal one for a show, and is capable of holding plenty of exhibits. There was a grand light all day—electric at night. The society fortunately possesses a capable lot of officers, all working harmoniously; the president, chairman, and committee all did their shares. The secretaries, Messrs. Broadley and Rennison, worked like Trojans, and although only amateurs got through their part in professional fashion. The treasurer, Mr. Tennant, was in the thick of the work, as also was Mr. A. Dippie. Unfortunately, the show was not held under C.B.U. rules. This was through no fault of their own, they sending the affiliation fee, only to have same returned because they clashed with South Shields, who became affiliated first. They had a grand entry, some of the best exhibits of the day being there. That doughty champion, Mr. Cameron, of Kelso, had a strong team of Norwich, and took premier honours, his yellow hen taking special for best Norwich in show. Borders were toppers, Messrs. Smart and Voy staging birds fit for any show, while in the A.O.V. class we found one of the best young cinnamons we have seen this season; it took the special for best bird in show. This bird was the property of Mr. Luke whose name is new to the Fancy. The show was well patronised throughout the day. Birds from a distance were packed off in good time on Saturday night, so as to reach their destinations early. Everything appeared to pass off very smoothly and to the satisfaction of all. Messrs. A. Hay (Berwick) and J. Maddison (Newcastle) judged, and their awards were warmly received. Mr. Hay took the Canaries, and Mr. Maddison the British, Foreign, and Mules.

NORWICH HAND-IN-HAND.

The Norwich Hand-in-Hand B.B.S. held their sixteenth annual show of plainheads, crests, and crestbreds at the Show Hall, Sussex Street, on October 26th. There was a large attendance of visitors throughout the day, and great interest was taken in the large collection of beautiful specimens, which numbered upwards of 200. The plainhead classes were very uniform in type, quality, and colour; the crested specimens were heavy in feather, and the crest-breds mostly well formed headed birds, with material most essential to the properties of these particular specimens. Mr. Jacob Mackley judged. The management of the show was in the capable hands of Mr. Stark, who is to be congratulated on its success.

LEITH.

Leith O.S. held their third annual show in the Duke Street Hall, on October 31st, and it proved a record, many well known Scotch exhibits turning up. The show was confined to members. Scotch Fancies headed the programme, and contained some of the cream of the Fancy, some real toppers being staged. The cup for best bird was secured by a beauty in the shape of a buff pied hen, the property of Mr. McMillan, who has had a run of luck with an exceptionally high-class lot of his own breeding. The winner, we heard, changed hands for £10. This variety was judged by the veteran, Mr. J. Kean, and his awards were well received. Norwich were a good show. Some real good specimens were on view, the Plainheads were a very level lot. The Crest, and especially the C.B. classes were grand. Mules were also forward in force, as is usual at this show, and after carefully considering this variety, the judge was happy in his selection. These classes were under Mr. A. Cochrane, and he left little to be desired. Borders and British followed, and proved to be the heaviest classes. Some grand specimens were exhibited. The special for best Border was secured by a tip-top Buff cock, shown by Mr. Baxter, which secured for him the coveted silver teapot. The B.F.C. medal was won by Mr. Brown. Exceptionally good greens were shown by Mr. Buglass. British were grand, the special being won by a fine Goldfinch (Siberian). These classes were judged by Mr. J. W. Bruce, and he left little room for grumbling. The show was under the management of a capable man, namely, Mr. Geo. Brown, who had everything in apple-pie order, and was ably assisted by an enthusiastic committee, who did everything possible to make the show a success. The hall is an ideal one for a show, and was well patronised by the public. Entries were greatly in advance of last year's, and the membership too, and we hope to hear of this, their third show, being a great success. All the grand specials were placed nicely, so that the show looked more like a jeweller's shop than anything else.

Critique.

SCOT. CL., ETC. YELL., CK. (7): 1, 3, Dalgleish, looks like well known winner of this year, grand substance and quality, hard up, and free, fine exhibit, 3 good one, nice top end, scarcely the depth; 2, 4, Hendry, two good ones, fine and free, fine length off side; vhc, Carson. BUFF (5): 1, Dalgleish, again to the fore with a nice one, fine action, fine of substance, good exhibit; 2, 3, West, 2 nice stamp, shade small; 3, McMillan, good all-round, lacks the shoulders of winner, nice quality; 4, Carson, neat one, not quite so bold as winners. FALKIRK.

The Falkirk and Dis. C.B.S. held their twentieth annual Show and Competition in "Oddfellows Hall," Grahamston, on October 31st. The president is Mr. Robert Dickson, treasurer, Mr. Robert Ronnie, the secretary, Mr. William Clubb, and the committee, Messrs. T. Wallace, T. Grant, H. Moutland, J. Millar, J. Brindle, J. Penman, W. Walker, W. Dewar, P. Russell and J. Morris. The judges were Messrs. M. Craig (Glasgow), G. Scaife (Fauldhouse), and J. Jeans (Camelon). There were 45 classes for cage birds. Entries were much in excess of last year's total of 400, there being fully 535 on this occasion. Norwich and Borders were especially strong in numbers, and the quality was of a very high standard throughout. The same remarks apply to the British and Foreign bird sections, which were very fine lots. There was a splendid array of 54 specials, and the extra specials offered made a handsome total of 69, including three six-guinea challenge cups, and eight medals, six of these being club medals. Some of the best blood in the way of Norwich and Border Fancies were forward, competition being open to breeders within a radius of 20 miles. For the successful issue of the exhibition much credit is due to the secretary, Mr Wm. Clubb, as also to his able committee for the efficient manner in which the arrangements were carried through. A goodly share of the success was due to Mr. Wm. Clubb, whose efforts the association justly appreciated. Next year the management may have to look for more room, the Oddfellows' Hall being rather too small for a turn out. The hall was packed with visitors during the afternoon. The judges, who had a big task to perform, got through their duties well, their awards giving general satisfaction. The principal winners were six-guinea challenge cup and medal for best young Nor., Mr. W. Scaife; six-guinea challenge cup and medal for best young Crest, C.B. or Mule, Mr. R. Esson; and six-guinea cup and medal for best young Bord, Messrs. Wilson Bros. The "Ramsden medal" was won by Mr. R. Todd, and "Sandiford's" by Messrs. Millar and Eadie.

EARLSTON.

Earlston (N.B.) held their annual exhibition of cage birds, etc., on 31st October. The Corn Exchange, in which the show was held, is very well adapted for this purpose, being of medium size, no draughts, and well lighted from the roof. In point of quality this exhibition again took a high standing, although as regards quantity we would like to have seen much stronger competition, especially as it is in and around these Border shows, where the keenest rivalry was at one time held. But of late years this seems to have fallen off to a great extent. Still, a few of the leading Border fancy veterans staged some grand teams, and Messrs. J. Young (Chirnside), and H. Bennet (Kelso), had the lion's share of the spoils. The former exhibitor secured the B.F.C.C. medal, with a very fine yellow foul hen, while the latter was runner-up with a buff hen. The painstaking and energetic secretary, Mr. J. Brockie, staged some very fine birds in these classes, but it was a case of being so near and yet so far, as he had three seconds. Better luck next time, John. The Border Section was under a new recruit to the list of judges—Mr. John Linton (Selkirk), and his awards gave general satisfaction. The British and Norwich classes were handled by the well-known British fancier, Mr. Jas. Mason (Peebles), who left nothing to be desired. The various items in connection with the show were successfully carried out by the following gentlemen and fanciers:—President, Colonel Hope; vice-president, C. A. Hope, Esq.; secretary, Mr. J. Brockie, who is deserving of great credit for his supervision, and treasurer, Mr. A. Purves. The committee consisted of the following fanciers, who had a large number of the exhibits packed and ready to reach their destinations the same night: Messrs. W. Neilson, J. Cairney, W. Purves, G. Aitchinson, R. Aitchison, W. Stafford, J. Morris, R. Murdison, A. Aitken, W. Ballantyne, J. Fairley, and W. Bell.

Mr. Linton's Classes.

BORD. CL. ETC. YELL. CK. (5): 1, 2, Bennet, lovely bloom, neat round head, short wings, well placed; 2nd, rather flouter body, good head, shade unsteady; 3, Watson, stronger build, longer wings, well up in colour; 4, Patterson, very neatbodied tick, fine bloom, grand wings and tail. HEN (6): 1, B.F.C.C. medal, Young, tick, bold, jaunty carriage, grand wings and neat tail; 2, Brockie, foul wing, very sweetly moulded, neat head, well placed wings, very close tail, finely drawn, almost as good as winner; 3, 4, Bennet, pair of real smart ones, former a 2 marked, well rounded body, finely turned front; 4th, clear, free and stylish, falls only in colour. BUFF CK. (6): 1, 3, Bennet, leading with real gem, neat taking style, very close feather, nicely mealed; 3rd, foul, neatly tapered body, lovely bloom; 2, Cormack, foul wing, good head, buck and chest, falls slightly in wing carriage; 4, McLevy, stronger build, full round head, good quality feather, but wild. HEN (6): 1, spl, 3, Bennet, again leading, very sweet one, neat round head, free style, best of condition; 3rd, similar stamp, rather unsteady, grandly finished feather; 2, Patterson, nicely moulded body, free head, finely tapered front, slimmer in body than winner; 4, Amos, good type, rather raw in feather finish. UNEVEN ETC. YELL. BROMLEY.

Norwich and Yorkshires were the varieties most liberally catered for at the show of the Bromley and West Kent F.A., which was held in the Drill Hall on October 28th and 29th, but the former were all cancelled; still, taking into consideration the fact that two other shows were being held in the county on the same day, and that the show was not under C.B.U. rules, the entry was one upon which the committee and all concerned are to be congratulated. The arrangements were well carried out by the stewards under the direction of Mr. W. J. Harrington, the esteemed chairman, whilst Messrs. Spiller and Heaysman, the hon. general secs, and Mr. Wraight, the sectional secretary, by their courtesy and energy assisted greatly in facilitating the success of the fixture, whilst at the same time studying the interests of exhibits and exhibitors. Mr. J. Dobson judged, and his awards were well received.

Do not let your chance slip by.

For the present show season we have made such arrangements as will enable any exhibitor in the country to have his birds portrayed either upon the front cover or in the inner pages of CAGE BIRDS. Mr. H. Norman, the premier artist of the Fancy, intends visiting a number of large provincial cage-bird shows, where his services will be freely available (by arrangement with us) for the purpose of sketching prize winners of every variety. A list of such shows, with the dates, is herewith appended.

How to Give Your Instructions.

Orders for the sketching of exhibits should be placed at once with our Manager, at 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C., who will be very pleased to communicate terms, etc. The original drawing will be given to you after it has been reproduced. Exhibitors can place their orders for sketching birds conditionally upon their winning a prize. Should they be unsuccessful, the order will be treated as not having been given.

REMEMBER: The Shows this week are Preston, Friday, Nov. 13 and Nottingham, Sat., Nov. 14.

Write us at once to sketch your winners there; or, after you know you have won, write or wire Mr. Norman, c/o the show, or interview him in the show hall.

The List of Shows Mr. Norman Attends This Year.

In addition to the shows given underneath, our artist will be attending all London fixtures appearing in our Show Dates Fixed column, including, of course, the Great National Crystal Palace Show, which we hope to illustrate on just as extensive a scale this year as we have in the past, and, if possible, more fully than ever before.

Here is the list of shows referred to above:—
December 31st.—Edinboro' (Scottish National).

We have a lovely selection.

UNDER THE WHITE ROSE.

THE Yorkshire Union Show at Shipley, on Saturday, in the 25 classes had 335 entries, which works out at slightly over 13 per class, but although not so good in entries, the quality throughout was excellent, the best birds of the county being on view.

A BIRD in one of the unflighted classes was objected to on account of the longer flights having the appearance of a flighted bird, and the objection was upheld by the society's officials. There seems no doubt as to the bird being 1908 bred, the cover feathers of the wings are the usual brimstone colour, but the few outside flights are alleged to bear the appearance of new feathers, and as the schedule read "unflighted," the society were bound to uphold the objection.

BRAMLEY Society held their annual open show on the same date, and provided 28 classes. The entries totalled 417, an average of nearly 15 per class, the failing classes being the Cinnamon Marked Yorkshires and the Green classes; two of each had been provided, but only attracted 38 entries. All other varieties were fairly well patronised, and this enterprising society have still another successful show to add to their list.

THE C.M.Y.C.C. has decided to hold a social and whist drive (in aid of their special prize fund), which will take place on Tuesday, December 1st, in the Carnegie Library, Windhill. Tickets will be 1s. 3d. each, including refreshment, and it is hoped a good number will avail themselves of a pleasant evening, and at the same time assist the club. At the next meeting of the C.M.Y.C.C. the question of novice classes will be brought forward and discussed, therefore all members interested should prepare themselves in readiness for the fray.

WHILST Cinnamon Marks are on the board, I might mention that Mr. J. Hartley is shortly to remove to Bingley, and I am sure the fanciers of that village (or should I say town?) will be delighted to have him amongst them. As "Jimmy" will still continue his business at Princeville, the district fanciers will not lose him altogether, and may still have the pleasure of a quiet chat on birdy matters as of yore.

BRADFORD East had a very interesting lecture on "Cinnamon Marked Breeding," by Mr. F. Allen, of Cleckheaton, on November 3rd. The members turned up in full force and passed a very useful and instructive evening. Mr. Allen dealt very fully with his methods, and was asked a great many questions, all of which he answered very satisfactorily. Afterwards a hearty vote of thanks was accorded to the lecturer.

AT next Tuesday's meeting, this society is holding the members' judging competition, and they have secured the services of Mr. W. A. Cowgill to officiate, in the first instance, the members to try and place them in positions he selects. The gift class will be included at this meeting, the proceeds to go towards the rose bowls that the society are desirous of obtaining for competition at their first annual open show. STRAIGHT-'UN.

We have received a copy of the rules of the Bromsgrove and Dis. C.B.S. from the secretary, Mr. Frank Jeffrey, Stourbridge Road, Bromsgrove. On November 25th, Mr. J. W. Rose will deliver a lecture on "Foreign Birds I have kept."

Blaydon-on-Tyne officials deserve great credit, writes Mr. A. Price (Idle). My exhibits at their show, held Friday and Saturday last, I received back safely packed at 9.15 on Saturday night. I think Blaydon will be over 100 miles from here. Their promptness did not stop at this, for I was astonished to receive my prize money on Sunday morning, which easily constitutes a record, as far as my experience goes, for shows away from this district. Such good work deserves success.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS.

For Rules see page 298 in No. 355 of CAGE BIRDS.

THE following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS staff of ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in no case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

Canaries.—Claude St. John. British Birds, Mules and Hybrids—G. E. Weston. Foreign Birds—Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S., A.H.N.H.S., &c., Park and Lake Aviculture—Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. M.B.O.U., &c. Wild Bird Life—H. Norman.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc. of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his question for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES.

Not Moulting.

A. T.—Although it is unusual for a bird to miss moulting one year it is by no means unknown, so as your bird keeps in good health and spirits I should not worry at all about its failing to commence moulting as yet. Being always a late moulter, and now six years old it is quite probable that the moult is only deferred for a few weeks, and that it will take place in the early spring as soon as the weather begins to get mild. As long as it keeps well, leave it alone; but keep an eye on it, and if you notice it beginning to drop feathers see that it is well protected from draughts and kept fairly warm, so that the cold weather will not affect it in its bare state. Should it begin to show rough staring plumage and evident signs of illness, at once give it a vapour bath, as described last week, keep warm, and covered over, and add a few shreds of saffron to its water four times a week.

A Plague of Beetles.

Old Fancier.—It is a little curious that you should have been so suddenly overrun with black beetles in your birdroom. A keeper of large soft-billed birds might almost envy you. If you have a friend in this hobby get him to put a few "Demon" beetle traps in the room, and the result will be mutually satisfactory—one your side because the plague will soon be reduced and on his because of the stock of excellent food his birds will get. Or you may set a trap or two on your own account baited with a little stale beer and treacle, and empty the contents as often as may seem desirable into a vessel of boiling water. Any ironmonger would probably be able to supply you with a "Demon" trap. As alternative remedies you might put down under strict precautions to prevent accidents, as the stuff is very poisonous, phosphorous paste; Battle's Vermin Killer; or "Rough on Rats." Personally I consider the use of poisons most objectionable whenever it can be dispensed with, and in a case of this kind should be inclined to try the effect of a couple of starlings flying loose in the room for a few weeks.

Roller's Voice Rusty.

"Rusty."—There is certainly nothing much the matter with your Roller for him to be coming on song so soon after the moult. The comparative rustiness of his rolls is nothing at all unusual, and will disappear as he gets more fully into song. But as you are in bad need of his services as a tutor, you might help to bring him into perfect song more quickly by keeping him in a comfortable temperature, and giving him the following concoction three times a week in the place of his ordinary drinking water. Place half a teaspoonful of linseed in a small teacup, the same quantity of chlorate of potash, and a piece of Spanish liquorice, the size of a hazel nut, fill up with boiling water, stir until liquorice is dissolved, cover over, and allow it to stand until cold. Strain through muslin and give it in the drinkers instead of plain water. On the alternate days give five drops of tincture of steel in each two tablespoonfuls of drinking water.

Norwich Gone Wheezy.

"Novice."—Your feeding is certainly very generous, even for birds kept in a quite cold room. Hemp and rape both together should not figure in the regular dietary, and twice a week would be quite often enough to give egg food, and a teaspoonful between the two birds would be sufficient at a time. Are you quite sure that the birds are not exposed to draught when the window is opened to air the room? If there is no doubt on this point, I should suspect dampness in the room, and look about for evidence of this. Again in a room of this kind birds kept in cages should not be given cold baths, except occasionally during nice bright weather. If both draught and damp are unquestionably non-existent, you should remove the birds to a room with a little warmer temperature, but see that it is not subject to violent fluctuations, and, of course, draughts must be just as rigorously guarded against as in a colder room. Feed on a mixture of two parts Canary to one part rape seed as a staple. Give a pinch of hemp twice a week, and a little egg food on two other days, well mixing in the latter two drops of cod liver oil emulsion for each bird, until they are quite well. In the drinking water give a piece of sulphate of soda, the size of a split pea for a couple of days, and after that give twenty drops of whisky, ten of glycerine, and five each of syrup of squills and tincture of tolee, two days in every three for a fortnight, or until all the wheeziness has disappeared.

Our Court of Appeal.

"Nemo."—My (I take it) fair correspondent gave a Canary to a friend, which ultimately became ill but recovered on a "diet" of whisky. When it was recovering its owner found what she declared was a long worm passed by the bird, which was responsible for its illness. A sister of my querist saw the object and thought it so uncommonly like a green caterpillar that she suggested it was nothing more than a caterpillar which had crawled into the cage from an adjacent geranium plant, a suggestion the bird's owner repudiated, holding religiously to the conviction that it was passed by the bird. Now she (the querist) appeals for enlightenment. Well, here it is! Cage birds certainly are not immune from internal parasites by any means, but cases where they occur, especially in Canaries, are very uncommon. None of these parasites, or worms, are at all like a green caterpillar, and judging from the colour alone, coupled with the fact that a germinum plant was growing close by, and that these plants are very often infested with the small green caterpillars of a moth, I have no hesitation whatever in saying that the suggestion of my correspondent's sister was the only true and correct one. The illness was due to a chill, and the whisky treatment was not so very far off the mark. Worms would not produce symptoms anything like it. The cause of the wheeziness which the bird suffers from now is either the result of that same chill, or the bird has been exposed to more draughts or chills since. See that these causes are fully guarded against, and give the bird twenty drops of whisky, ten of glycerine, and two or nil of eucalyptus in its drinking water two days in every three for a fortnight or so. Shake the mixture thoroughly before giving it.

A Troublesome Plainhead.

D. Agnew.—Am afraid this bird will never be of much use, even if it survives much longer. It is evidently one of the physically unfit. Try following method of food and treatment for a few weeks and note result, and if any improvement is apparent write again. If no improvement takes place in, say, a month or six weeks you may safely conclude its case is hopeless. For staple diet give a mixture of three parts Canary to one part summer rape. Give separately twice a week a few grains of hemp, and every second day a half teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake—or egg-food, whichever it will take most freely—with four drops of sherry and one drop of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it each time; and every day a small spray of green-food—watercress, chickweed, groundsel, or plantain stalks, as may be obtainable—but no apple. Keep in a comfortable temperature, in a fairly large cage, in a nice bright position, but see it is free from draughts and red-mites. Allow it to bathe once or twice a week in bright weather, and keep cage well strewn with clean gritty sand. In the drinking water dissolve as much Epsom salts, for one day only, as will cover a sixpence. After this give a piece of gum arabic the size of a small pea, and the same quantity of extract of dandelion every second day for a week, and on the alternate days five drops of tincture of steel in the water. During second week give twenty drops of chemical food every second day, and pure water on the alternate days. For the third and fourth weeks repeat treatment given for first and second weeks respectively.

The Sexing Problem.

Tipperary.—This question is without a doubt a puzzling one for the novice. Stick to your hobby, however, and in the course of time you will doubtless reach that stage when the sex of a given bird will be revealed to you at a glance. Only time and patient observation will enable you to do this. In external appearance the cock is bolder and more defiant in attitude; his "tweed" is more clear and resonant than the comparatively rusty, harsh, voice of the hen; his eye is fuller and more bold than the "soft" facial expression of his mate; his gait is more pert and confident; and the space between the under tail coverts and lower belly is filled in better. When caught, and the feathers of the abdomen blown aside, the vent of the cock is more prominent and pointed than that of the hen, which is comparatively flat and expansive. A healthy cock nearly always sings; a hen rarely does so, and when she does attempt it, her notes are harsh, short, and much broken, and there is little of the pronounced swelling and throbbing of the throat which characterises the song of the cock. When just leaving the nest the young cocks generally twitter and record their future song, otherwise, only their slightly more pushing ways and bolder appearances will enable you to pick out the cocks until you have acquired a little experience. You will find the difference illustrated and described in our handbook, "Canary Breeding for Beginners," which our Manager would send you for 7d.

Does it Eat Enough?

"Bunvip," Edinburgh.—I should have no doubt whatever about an apparently healthy young Canary eating sufficient for its bodily needs, even though it does not consume a teaspoonful of seed per day, which, if I understand your note correctly, is in addition to egg food. As a matter of fact with caged birds the chances are all the other way, and the risk is rather of their eating too much. A teaspoonful of seed a day minus any other kind of food at all is a fair average quantity for a medium sized bird, so I do not think there is any need whatever for you to worry about the bird's appetite. If it looks thin that may be its normal condition, as every Norwich Canary is not so thick and cobby as its owner would wish it to be. Your feeding is not all that could be desired, especially if you give egg and sponge cake daily as your note seems to suggest. The following general rules will help you. For staple diet give Canary seed only, and in addition give separately twice a week half a teaspoonful of rape seed, on two other days, the same quantity of egg food, or sponge cake, or a small piece of bread dipped in milk, and pressed nearly dry, and three times a week a spray of green food, or, when this is not available, a bit of sweet juicy fruit of some kind. Give all these extras alternately so that a different one will be given each day. On rare occasions as a special treat you may give a few grains of hemp, or a half teaspoonful of the seed mixture you are now feeding on. Keep its cage floor strewn with gritty sand, and give it a bath two or three time a week in winter, and daily in summer. On this treatment the bird should do very well.

Breeding Queries.

Big Head.—Your nom-de-plume is doubtless just what you are longing to see on your birds, which, you say, are of good type and quality, and then go on to say they are rather on the small side, and have pinched heads and are flat on chest. How can you reconcile these very contrary remarks? As a matter of fact birds with the defects you name cannot possibly be of good type and quality, and it is doubtful whether it is worth while trying to breed good stock from them. Personally, I should consider them wasters, pure and simple, and the best advice I feel I can give you is to discard them entirely for breeding, and replace them with more typical specimens. You might certainly improve the defect by mating with a short feathered cobby, Crest-bred, but at the same time you would get other undesirable features, which would have to be bred out, and the work might, probably would, occupy several years whereas there are lots of ready-made material in the Plainhead variety which you could utilise in place of these defective specimens, and by so doing perhaps produce good typical stock next year. It is simply going the longest and most difficult road to attain your object, and taking upon yourself unnecessary doubts as well.

A Masterpiece of Mystery.

T. Nolan.—Your query almost amounts to this, for beyond saying that your bird has suddenly become so terribly mopy that its wings droop almost on to the perch, I have absolutely no data to go upon. You should have said at least where, and how it is kept, whether in warm or cold room, whether its breathing was affected, and in a case of this kind the condition of its bowels would have been an important point. As it is, I really do not much care to hazard a guess as to what is the matter, much less to advise a definite course of treatment. But you might try the following treatment for a week or so, and meanwhile write me again, giving the particulars asked for. Feed on plain Canary seed only, and give a small piece of bread dipped in milk and sprinkled with soft sugar every second day. In each two tablespoonfuls of drinking water give twenty drops of whisky and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence each day for the first three days, then give it every alternate day, and on the intervening days twenty drops of chemical food, until you get a further reply to your next letter. Keep the bird fairly warm; free from draughts; give no cold baths; keep cage quite clean and well strewn with gritty sand.

Drops Feathers, &c.

X.X.—The bird will not be likely to come into song again as long as it continues to drop its feathers. It may be moulting slowly, and not really finished yet, or otherwise it is either subject to cold draughts or great variations of temperature. In the former case all you need do is to keep the bird a little warmer and free from draught, and give a little egg food three times a week, and twenty drops of chemical food on each of the days when you are not giving egg food. But if you are satisfied that it quite finished its moult earlier in the season, place it now in a comfortable temperature where there are no very great fluctuations, but at the same time do not overheat it. See it is not troubled with red mites, nor subject to cold draughts. Feed on plain Canary seed only as a staple, and give separately twice a week half a teaspoonful of rape seed, on two other days a few grains of hemp, and three times a week a small teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with five drops of sherry mixed in it. Give these extras alternately and on different days, so that a different one is given each day. In the drinking water give twenty drops of chemical food every second day for a fortnight, and on the intervening days give six drops of tincture of steel.

Roller Losing His Voice.

Venture.—The Roller has almost certainly been exposed to a cold draught, even though it might have been only temporarily, or to some excessive change of temperature. Keep it comfortably warm now, and free from great fluctuations. Feed as advised "X.X." with the exception of giving a mixture of two parts Canary to one part summer rape as a staple, and instead of giving rape separately substitute a small spray of green food. Give also a small cube of fat boiled bacon or fat pork stuck between wires for it to peck at. In its drinking water give ten drops of glycerine and five each syrup of squills and sweet spirits of nitre every second day, and on the alternate days the following decoction instead of its ordinary drinking water. Put half a teaspoonful of linseed into a small teacup, one chlorate of potash lozenge, a piece of Spanish liquorice the size of a large pea, and half a teaspoonful of honey. Fill cup with boiling water, stir until the ingredients are dissolved, then cover over, and allow it to stand until cold. Strain through muslin, and give it in the drinker in place of plain water. Continue this for a fortnight if necessary. As soon as the voice returns and is getting fairly strong, stop the former mixture, and give six drops of tincture of steel alternately with the decoction for a week.

Not Moulting.

M.T.—As long as the bird keeps quite well, and in very good feather and song, you need not worry about its not moulting. You do not say how long you have had the bird, but if it is a fairly recent acquirement it is just possible that it moulted before you had it, or it might have moulted last spring, and in the latter case it is quite probable that the moult will again be deferred until the beginning of the year. In any case I would not advise any interference as long as it keeps so well. It is not an unknown circumstance for a bird to skip the moult for a year without any disastrous effect. Keep an eye upon it, and if it begins to moult during the winter or early spring months take due precautions to protect it from getting a chill through losing its plumage at an inclement season.

Sample of Canary Seed.

Nil Desperandum.—Judging from appearances and taste only, the sample of seed sent is fairly good, being clean and bright, and sweet in flavour, but rather small in size. I cannot hazard a guess whether it was the seed that was responsible for the deaths of your birds, though it is a very suspicious circumstance that you should lose so many in such a short time whilst using it, and all the rest that were ill should recover when the seed was changed. It would require a chemical analysis to discover whether and in what way the seed was responsible for the loss.

Loss of Appetite.

"Joey."—Your bird is evidently out of condition generally, and the moult has perhaps put a little too much strain upon it. Give it first a short course of some saline aperient, such as a few grains of Epsom salts in its water for two or three days. Then give six drops of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day for a week, and on the alternate days give three drops each of tincture of steel and tincture of gentian. Feed on a mixture of three parts Canary to one part rape as a staple, and give a small piece of bread sopped in milk three times a week. A spray of watercress may be given three times a week, and, if you have them, a couple of mealworms a day for a little while would prove invaluable.

Heat and Not Much Draught.

F.R.B.—Reduced to a nutshell, I think this is what your treatment amounts to. Although you do not say so, I imagine your aviary is out of doors, and as you think there is not much draught, I take it you are aware there is some—more or less. Then, worst of all, you "occasionally" have a "lamp-stove" in. All this implies very bad management, whether you are aware of it or not, and if none of your other birds are affected, unless they are very uncommonly hardy specimens, you may confidently expect trouble with them before long unless you alter the system. In the first place the lamp-stove, I suspect, should either be used with absolute regularity or not at all. If the birds are a really hardy type, and cold bred ones, I should advise you to do without it, at any rate as long as the birds show no evident signs of discomfiture. The draughts must be entirely obliterated; you must be quite satisfied that they are quite non-existent. In a small aviary nothing is more fatal to the inmates than draughts and damp. Bear this in mind always. As regards the particular hen you now inquire about, remove her to a room with a comfortable temperature, but do not keep her too warm. Feed her on a mixture of three parts Canary to one part summer rape as a staple. Twice a week give separately a few grains of hemp, and on two other days give a small piece of bread dipped in milk, squeezed nearly dry, and two or three drops of cod liver oil emulsion dropped about it. In the drinking water give twelve drops of glycerine, five each of syrup of squills and tincture of tolu, and a piece of gum arabic the size of a pea. Shake until the gum is dissolved, and give this two days in every three for a fortnight, or until the bird is quite recovered.

Renewed Moulting.

"Dooley."—You have probably been keeping the birds where it is very warm at certain times during the daytime, and correspondingly cold at night, and these variations would quite suffice for the feathers being cast off again. Keep them where the day and night temperature is as equal as possible, but you must not let it be much cooler than it now is, at least, not until the moult is quite finished. Feed as you are now doing, except that you should give only a small teaspoonful of rape twice a week to the two birds, not a teaspoonful to each bird, and a small spray of watercress would be preferable to apple. Give a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with ten drops of sherry mixed in it between the two birds every second day, and in each two tablespoonfuls of drinking water add twenty drops of chemical food every other day for a fortnight, and on the alternate days give six drops of tincture of steel. Give the chemical food on the days when you are not giving the sponge cake. Discontinue the treatment when the feathers have quite ceased dropping out.

A Cure for Red Mite.

R.N.S.T.—The loss of feathers on the breast may be due to either grey lice or red mite attacks. If the former, you should easily discover by catching the bird and handling it gently a few moments, looking underneath the wings, etc., when you will soon discover the tiny grey insects racing about your hand. In that case well pepper the bird all over with fresh pyrethrum powder, dusting it deep down into the feathers with a powder puff, then gently roll the bird up in a small soft handkerchief, leaving only the head free, but drawing a single fold loosely over it at the finish to prevent the bird struggling to get free. Lay it aside in this condition for ten or fifteen minutes, then release it into a clean cage, or into a temporary one whilst its usual cage is being thoroughly cleaned. Give it a bath daily for a time in which a little essence of quassia has been mixed. If the pest is red mite give it a daily bath as just mentioned, remove it to a temporary cage, and thoroughly overhaul its usual cage. Scrape the inside all over, and scrape out every crack inside and out with a pin or similar article, and burn the debris. Now brush it well all over with the spirit and camphor mixture you mention, using a stiffish small paint brush to work it well into the deepest cracks. Prepare a wash of sanitary distemper for the inside, but before applying soften a little distemper with a drop or two of water to make it about the consistency of putty, and fill up all the cracks inside with this. Then wash over with distemper. Fill up the cracks outside with putty, and re-paint, or stain, and varnish.

Exhibiting a Goldfinch.

Anderson.—1. It depends entirely upon whether a Goldfinch is dirty or not whether one needs to "tub" him. I think all birds, however, which do much travelling round the shows should be washed at intervals, as they undoubtedly get soiled, and this slight dirtiness is bound to tell if they run up against spotlessly clean Finches their equal in other respects. You must use your own judgment. If you live in a large town you will probably need to hand-wash oftener than a fancier living in the country. 2. Get a proper Finch show-cage, by all means. You cannot better the pattern and size adopted by the N.B.B. and M.C. (vide the photograph given some three weeks ago in our paper). 3. I don't advise a pale colour. Use an extremely dark green—not lighter than holly green—for inside and wires of the cage.

In a Kitchen.

Bunyip.—1. As you apparently keep the gas lighted until very late, I certainly think you should cover over the cages of the birds with some dark, thin material. Birds need a good long rest o'nights if they are to keep healthy. Probably the large species would not hurt; or, at least, would accommodate themselves to the prevailing condition of things. 2. I don't understand this query. A bird which "mopes," I should think, must be ill. Of course, he might be very wild, and so "sulky." But, then, you say he is hand-reared. A hand-reared Blackie, if a cock, ought to be singing by now, if over the moult, and well. The change of quarters, however (you say you have had him but a week or so) would be likely to send a bird off song for a time. 3. In all probability if you gave the birds a mild dose or two of saline medicine (see other replies this and last week). Immediately they look "queer and slack," you would succeed in saving them.

A Russian Goldfinch.

New Reader.—It seems quite the busy season just now for queries about Linnets and Goldfinches. I have very frequently given advice on the sexing of Goldies. The head of the hen, when viewed sideways, is always rounder looking, while the beak is shorter, and not so stout at the base the cock, with its flatter skull and longer beak, looks, and is, longer in the head. In the cock bird the black feathers surrounding the beak and running from base of beak to the eye, the black band at back of the head, and the black shoulders of the wings (wing-butts) are really black that is to say, a deep, intense, shining black, often shaded with green on the wing butts. In the hen the black on these parts is very, very rarely a deep, intense black, but is distinctly greyish (ashen-black), and the wing-butts are usually distinctly brownish, or greyish black fringed with brown. Even in Greys-pecies, when just beginning to strike into moult, the deep black feathers can be seen coming through on the shoulders of the cocks, contrasting distinctly with the grey moulting feathers. Then, of course, in the adult, the blaze offers another excellent guide. In the hen it rarely (if ever) extends back past the centre of the eye. In the cock it extends to the farther edge of the eye, and sometimes past lt. A good stock mixture for a Russian (or Siberian) Goldfinch, when newly imported (or an English Goldfinch that has been but recently caught), would be Hemp, niger and teazle one pint each, Canary half a pint, linseed a quarter pint, with just a light sprinkle of summer rape and charlock if you like. A few of cracked sunflowery (or safflower, or both) seed should be offered daily, and as the bird gets on to it, the niger in the stock mixture should be gradually lessened. Maw seed is also relished, and very good for a tit-bit. Russian Goldies relish the same wild foods as our English Finch, viz., thistle, teazle and hard heads, dandelion, groundsel, etc. Many also get very fond of an occasional mealworm, once they have been induced to taste of them. A real good "tit-bit" mixture was given in the reply to "G.C." last week.

Concerning Finches.

J.R.—1. After the Linnets have moulted, the young cocks (that is, the birds of the year) never carry the same amount of red on the breast as two and three year old birds. Thus, if you see one with but just a sprinkling of red on the breast (an edging to the feathers there and there) you can be certain it is only a young bird. The feet and legs also supply a guide. 2. Some young Goldies (especially first-nest birds) come up into what is practically full colour after the first moult. These it would be difficult for any inexperienced person to tell from old (two-year, etc.) birds. The appearance of the fret and claws affords some guide, the depth of yellow in the wings also, and likewise the general appearance of the bird; but only an "old hand" could spot these things. Most young Finches, however, are very dingy-looking in the blaze for quite a long time into the winter. 3. Yes; young Finches are the same as Canaries, inasmuch as they do not shed flight and tail feathers until the second moult.

An Owl.

Oblige.—The bird you have is a Barn Owl. You are correct enough in terming it a pretty bird. So far as plumage goes, it certainly is a lovely creature. Barn Owls, however, are practically of no monetary value—a shilling or two at the most—as very few people care to keep them. Many would find it a difficult matter to supply the bird with a sufficiency of suitable food. With regard to exhibiting it, I am afraid you will not find it worth while. As a matter of fact, very few shows would accept an entry of an Owl. Most of them state in big type in their schedules: "Hawks, Owls, and Ravens not admitted." I have known them to be exhibited at small fixtures, and even get a prize. But this usually raises a (b)owl of another kind—from the other exhibitors with birds in the same class.

Caging Linnets.

Thankful.—You have probably been the unwilling victim (your Linnets, too) of inept advisers. Many of the people who shout the most about the "inhumanity" of small cages are either people who have had no experience of bird-keeping worthy of mention, or rabid individuals who can see no further than the ends of their noses—or who won't, and don't intend to, no matter what proof to the contrary may be adduced. Yet personally (with scores of other bird-keepers) I know that it is cruelty—wicked cruelty—to turn certain individuals of many species of British birds into large cages directly they are caught. Under such conditions they in a very short space of time beat themselves into a ragged, exhausted—and often bleeding—mass. They never seem able to understand this kind of liberty, which is yet not liberty at all. Yet these individuals, if given a few weeks in the much-abused "back-cage," would in all probability settle down to captive existence and become decent members of (birdy) society. Your ill-luck with Linnets in the large cage does not say much in favour of this method of keeping them—or trying to, rather. You should get some "back-cages" a few inches larger all over than the ordinary kind (they are to be bought even down "Club Row" now from 1/3 to 1/6 each), and give your Linnets a few weeks in these, keeping the cages in a quiet spot, and interfering but little with the birds except to feed and clean them out. They will soon begin to understand the uselessness of dashing madly about, and make themselves "at home." Then you can transfer them to larger cages, if you choose. I don't believe in all-wire cages myself, though, as a general thing, With newly-captured birds, the chief points are to put them where they can easily get the "hang of things," and where food is "under their noses."

Linnet Ailing.

W. R. Pike.—Am afraid, from your description, that you have let matters go a little too far. When the bird first looked dull and out of sorts, a mild dose or two of saline medicine might quite likely have pulled him round. Get an ounce of sulphate of soda crystals from a chemist, and in two tablespoonfuls of drinking water dissolve as much as will just cover a shilling. Repeat the dose after a day's interval in plain water. Note the replies on feeding Linnets given by me last week, and try to provide a change of diet. You should give plenty of maw seed daily, and a liberal quantity of lightly cracked hemp.

Two Real Teasers.

Novice.—Your questions are rare puzzlers; like so many fired at me by "novices." Have never tried to keep a Starling in the same cage as either Woodlark, Skylark, Robin, Linnet, or Thrush, for the purpose of his "learning their song," so I really cannot offer any opinion as to how he would behave towards members of these species—or they towards him. And who told you a Starling would learn the song of these birds? And if you want to try the experiment, what is the matter with putting the Starling in a cage of its own, and hanging this by the side of the cage containing the other bird? This would be much the best way. I am convinced of this, that you will be wasting time experimenting on an adult Starling—the pupil would need to be a young hand-reared bird. Your idea of breeding Hybrids with the Starling in a cage 40ins. by 24ins. is good enough; the only trouble is whether the Starling will be willing. Am afraid he won't. I have never heard of a Hybrid between the Starling and another British bird. I agree that a Starling-Waxwing Hybrid would be very beautiful. But surely you don't consider it a possibility? I could almost think you were "pulling my leg."

Brevities.

Linnets Not Singing (Surprise).—I think you must have overlooked the answers given "J. L." and "G. C." last week by me. I cannot add anything further thereto. If your birds are not steady ("well caged" as it is termed), you cannot expect to hear them sing yet. Neither, of course, can you if they are not cocks (although, I ought to say, hens often "sing" very decently when well domesticated).

A Muling Question (G.B.).—Much depends on the size of the birds composing the Muling strain. If they are not on the small side, I should advise you to double yellow with a pair or two, and mate the young bred this way with the youngsters bred from pairs mated yellow and buff in the usual way. This would keep up the colour without losing size.

Concerning Linnets and Goldies (H. W. H.).—Full directions as regards Linnets were given in the replies to "J.L." and "G.C." last week. For Goldies, note reply to "New Reader" this week. Try dose or two of mild saline medicine should they turn "puffy"; but give same at the very first sign of ailing.

Sex of Redpoll (R. K.).—This is quite an easy matter. The fully adult male has traces of red on the breast (an old bird with quite a fiery "waistcoat"), whereas the hen entirely lacks this ruddy tint thereabouts.

Muling (F. R. B.).—If you will put some definite questions before me, I shall be glad to answer. With regard to the Linnet Mule, if it has made no attempt to sing, you can be pretty certain it is a hen (I am assuming it to be healthy and well over the moult). If it is greyish in colour about the head, showing no traces of Canary yellow, then you can be quite certain it is. Am surprised to hear you have been "had" so many times in the sex of Goldfinches. Perhaps you are in the habit of buying low-priced birds. Far better to pay a fair price and get the genuine article. Note reply to "New Reader" this week.

Linnets and Goldfinches (Novice).—All your questions are fully answered in the replies given to "J.L." and "G.C." last week, and "New Reader" this week. A mild dose of saline medicine is the finest thing to give; note another reply concerning this. The special mixture advised "G.C." is a grand thing for moulting Goldfinches, especially if there is plenty of thistle in it.

A White Linnet (W. R. Duncan).—If your Linnet is white all over, he is worth £1 fresh-caught. If he is only partly white, however, his value is but small. White, or Pied, Linnets are not at all uncommon (though entirely white ones are somewhat rare). They are to be found in practically every rare-feathered class seen at our shows. They seldom get very high in the prize-list, though, as usually there are rarer Albinos, etc., in the class.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Grey Parrot with Swelling.

E.P.—Continue treatment advised in previous reply; but if you continue to give yolk of egg the bird will get gradually worse, and finally succumb; neither do Grey Parrots require moist food. Diet solely on seed mixture, ripe fruit, nuts, plain biscuits, and a bit of fresh lettuce occasionally; keep a piece of clean cuttlefish in cage. Get from your chemist a small box of Honey and Borax, and wipe out the bird's mouth twice daily with this; it will be sufficient if you put a little on its tongue (well back), with a camel-hair brush, well cleansing it, and using a fresh portion of the mixture for each occasion. Am convinced it is the improper food you have been giving that is responsible for the mischief. If you confine its diet and treatment to that given in my replies, the bird should recover, though you have aggravated the case by continuing to give egg. I will repeat my almost weekly warning: Do not give tea, coffee or milk slops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food.

About Silky Cowbirds.

Beginner.—(1) Yes, they are silky Cowbirds. Both are males. You can easily distinguish the sexes; the female is plain umber brown, and the male glossy blue-black. (2) A seed mixture of three parts each Canary and white millet, two parts oats and one part each hemp and sunflower seed. A little soft food (see advert. columns), fruit, and two or three mealworms or other insects daily. (3) They would require to be entered in the class reading "Cardinal and larger"; while, for a show cage, though it should not be too large, at any rate till they are well steadied, yet it should be of sufficient height to prevent them rubbing their heads as they hop on the perches, and also of sufficient length and depth that they do not fray their tail and wing feathers as they hop and turn on the perches. Their store cage should be a roomy one, kept well sanded, and regularly cleaned; they must have a daily bath, and as they indulge in a good splash it would be better to run them into an all-wire bath cage for the purpose; they would soon become accustomed to this, and thus the main cage would be kept nice and dry.

Breeding White-eared Conures.

Grimston.—Am much interested in hearing of your success, and hope they will be fully reared, though of course, seeing that we are now in the cold season, there is a doubt; still, your conditions and locality certainly provide a reasonable chance of complete success. The diet is satisfactory, but I should give them a separate tin of food—equal parts of Canary and White Millet seed. There would be no harm in throwing in a few pieces of plain biscuit. White-eared Conures have been bred on several occasions, though by no means commonly; I know of one Yorkshire aviary in which they have bred out of doors; but still your success is most certainly uncommon, and I should be interested if you would describe the plumage of the nestlings when they leave the nest. Glad to note there is an improvement in the condition of the Pennant, and I anticipate it will be in very fair condition in the course of a few weeks; continue the treatment advised till the bird is in condition. Many thanks for your appreciative remarks, and am pleased to note you find CAGE BIRDS interesting and profitable.

Sexing Blue-fronted Amazons.

M.A.G.—I know of no distinction save that of the beak, and this can only be told by comparison; but the beak of the male in most species of Amazons is longer, the hook more decided, and the arch of the upper mandible much less pronounced. Very probably there is also a difference in the colour of the iris of the eye, but of this I cannot speak definitely. The iris of the adult male is red, that of the young is much paler; but for such cases I mostly rely on the general appearance of the bird; in an aged bird the legs and feet are almost horny compared with those of a young bird; and in nearly all species of Parrots I have found an aged bird to lack the vivacity and go which is characteristic of young life; they are also more dosey, but a young bird, especially a newly-imported one, may be dosey if tainted with disease germs. However, in spite of the indefinities of the above, a little observation of a few birds will soon train the eye. Note all minor differences, try to find out the reason for these, get all the information you can as to age, etc., of the specimens that come under your notice, and you will soon find your judgment in such matters a fairly reliable one.

What Bird Is It?

W. Baker.—There are several races of the Spice Finch, most of which have been given specific distinction, but are all known under the popular name of Spice Finch. I rather incline to the opinion that your bird is one of the above local variations, some of which are more or less streaked with reddish on the breast and sides, and also the scaling are not crescentic, but more V shaped than the common Spice Finch. Will you give me a little more information? Can you say where it came from? What is the extent of the red on the breast, does it form a decided patch or band? Is there any white on the middle or lower back? Is the tail longish for the bird, and the central feathers extended to a point? I should say they would be safe company for the Zebras and Mannikins, but unless they have come from an outdoor aviary, it is now too late to turn them out of doors this year—you must defer doing so till Spring. When asking if birds can be kept out of doors the county should always be given.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. J. North, 435, Oxford Road, Reading, will examine cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for a reply direct 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to J. North, with fee. Any sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

Canary (W.M.B.).—Bird fever. Items as to duration and symptoms of illness are at all times helpful in forming an opinion as to cause of death.

Canary (Miss Howard).—Septic inflammation of liver, lungs and bowels, ending in apoplexy. This infection must have been some considerable time developing in the bird's system.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

A Dead Jay (W.E.H.).—Why is it, we wonder, readers will not look over the rules before sending away dead birds? Under "Post Mortems" (vide the Query pages) we give full information as to where such unpleasant things receive a welcome. Your Jay had to be thrown away.

A Nottingham Matter (Bird Dealer).—Anonymous communications meet with no favour so far as we are concerned. Why could you not give your own name and address? Surely you have no reason to be ashamed to do so?

Sexing Canaries (Tipp).—The query you speak of must have gone astray. Are you sure you correctly addressed it? You should read "Canary Breeding for Beginners" (post free, 7d., from this office), which deals at length with the sexing of Canaries.

Seed-Husk Catchers (E. Jordan).—As this matter was dealt with in our correspondence columns, we cannot accept contributions concerning it in the "Illustrated Ideas."

Standard Colour for Norwich Plainhead Show Cages (G. E. Lewis).—It is quite true that the correct colour for the inside of the show cage for a Norwich Plainhead is "Hedge Sparrow egg blue." But very few brands of enamel agree exactly in tint, even though labelled as being of the above shade of colour. If you go to any large exhibition you will find that the show cages of leading exhibitors differ materially in this matter of colour; therefore we are disposed to think that you are wrong in assuming your bird was passed by the judge because you had not the "correct" tint on the back of its cage. Judges have enough to do to decide between the birds, without having to decide between different shades of enamel—poor fellows!

Cutting (A. Hawkes).—Many thanks.

Suggestions (A. Marshall).—Thanks for your suggestions, which, we may say, we have under consideration, and may adopt in the near future.

Book on British Birds (J. Kirby, High Wycombe).—The book you require is Part I. of the "British Bird Manual," by H. Norman, 1s. 1d., post free, from this office.

CORRESPONDENCE.

A CURIOUS GOLDFINCH MULE AT LEWES SHOW.

SIR,—At Lewes show the only dark Mule exhibited took the first prize. At some shows this year it has been passed. This bird is so like a Goldfinch in colour that some persons might take it to be a foreign Goldfinch in reality. The only Canary signs are in the blaze, formation of beak, and its Canary shape. It was exhibited by the breeder, Mr. Soffner (Lewes). Many years ago I bred a similar Mule; sometimes I got first prize, at other times not a card. J. H. VERRALL.

WHERE IS THE REMAINDER OF THE BIRD?

SIR,—I write to let you know what happened to me and one of my birds at South Shields show. I sent three birds, but I only received two back; for the other I got an empty cage, and the bird's tail. Where has the rest of the bird gone? This bird was third in the unflighted yellow class. I wrote to the secretary, Mr. Duke, and he says the birds left the show all right. There was no packing in the case when it landed to me. I received the birds immediately they came. There has been some rascal at work. I hope you will put this in your valuable paper, and we shall see if anyone else has been treated the same way at Shields Show.

A SUGGESTION TO SPECIALIST CLUBS.

SIR,—I throw out the following suggestion to the specialist clubs in the cage bird Fancy. Why not grant certificate of merit to every show that provides a certain fixed number of classes in any given variety, the same as is done by the Pigeon clubs? For instance, the Magpie Club allot a certificate to all recognised shows that provide at least 3 classes for Magpies; why can't the Norwich Plainhead and other societies do the same? I should be glad to hear other fanciers' opinions on this point. I only make this suggestion for what it is worth, as no doubt the cups offered by such clubs can only be won by a few of those exhibitors who go in largely for exhibiting, whereas the certificates would give the novices a chance to win something, of which I have no doubt they would feel proud.

THE CRESTED CLASSES AT NORWICH SHOW.

SIR,—I shall be glad if you will kindly announce through the columns of your valuable paper, for the benefit of the members of the C.C.C. who intend to compete for the specials provided by that club at our show this year, that, owing to our printer not giving a separate head-line, the young Crest and Crest-Bred Classes, viz., 45 and 46, are placed in the Limit Classes. They were intended to follow those classes, to enable amateurs and champions to compete together without the former losing their amateur status (if members of our Associations, see Rule 6, page 7, also note after Class 52, page 21). I shall be glad if this can be made quite clear, as I do not wish it to affect our entries, and shall only be too pleased to give all information possible to intending competitors on hearing from them. R. ROLL, Secretary.

THE FORTHCOMING CRYSTAL PALACE (1908) SHOW.

SIR,—In yonr issue of 31st October a notice from Mr. Ramsden appears under "Twitterings" inviting suggestions for making the Crystal Palace Show of 1909 a record success. Might I suggest that the committee do all in their power to amend the unfortunate state of affairs which prevented the Green Canary fanciers from sending any entries to the last Palace show? I believe that the reason why the Green Canary fanciers withheld their entries was because the judge appointed to judge the Green classes had, on a previous occasion, disqualified some birds for having "square feathers." But surely it is possible for the committee, without any loss of dignity on their part, to appoint a judge under whom the G.C. fanciers would show with confidence; and I feel sure it would tend to make the show a success if the Green Canaries were again seen at the Palace. To my mind the Green is one of the most beautiful varieties we have, and I was keenly disappointed in not seeing any at the last Palace show. Living as I do in the extreme South of England, the only opportunity I have of seeing any Greens is when I pay my annual visit to the Crystal Palace in February, and I have little doubt but that the Green Canary would be much more thought of down South if we had more opportunities of seeing it.

NEW SOCIETY FOR COLNE AND DISTRICT.

SIR,—We have now formed a society called Colne and District C.B.S. Headquarters are at the Angel Inn, and Walton Arms. Meetings are held every fortnight alternately until Christmas. A meeting held on November 15th next, at Angel Inn, at 7 o'clock.

LEAVING EXHIBITS WITHOUT WATER AT THE SHOWS.

SIR,—Will you kindly allow me to make a suggestion to cage bird show committees in favour of our pets? I believe that, as a rule, all water is taken from the exhibits before judging commences, and many of the poor things don't see any more until, perhaps, three or even four o'clock in the afternoon, especially at large shows, which everyone will admit is a cruel strain on a bird's constitution, and which, I think, can be easily avoided. What I suggest is that the water should be taken off only when the judges are ready for the birds, and I don't think that any bird need be more than about an hour without water. This would also make it easier for the judge, better satisfaction would be given, and we should have the consolation of knowing our birds were not suffering from that terrible thing thirst. It would also leave no excuse for that loud distinguishing mark sometimes seen, viz., a piece of sponge in the drinking tin. A. WOOLLARD.

THE LOSS OF BIRDS FROM THE SHOWS.

SIR,—It will be remembered by the majority of your readers that I had the misfortune to have two valuable birds stolen within six days, one at Neath Show after winning 1st and special, the other either on its way to Llanelly or just after its arrival, and this bird was only beaten by one other bird during the season. The Neath Committee made me a grant of £1 1s. towards the loss, which I consider a kind act. As regards the Llanelly bird, I put in a claim to the railway company, but they decline any responsibility on the grounds—first, that the bird was signed for by one of the committee; secondly, that the loss was not reported to them for three hours after the delivery of the birds. Every society should adopt some system of examining every case and cage before signing the delivery sheet, or in case of pressure should sign as "not examined." When I was Sec. of the Hereford Fanciers' Association we had 1,500 entries, and every case and hamper was opened and examined before being signed for; had we not done this we should have signed for birds that did not arrive until the second day of the show. The way-bills had arrived, and entries had been made on the delivery-sheet before the arrival of the hampers. I simply throw this out as a hint. A steward should be placed in each aisle to prevent any loss, especially just before the closing of the show; that is when my bird was taken at Neath. D. H. TEDSTONE.

THE JUDGING AT SCOTTISH SHOWS.

SIR,—Kindly allow me to reply to Mr. "Steward" anent my remarks upon judging at Scottish shows. It is no argument, sir, to brush my views aside by dubbing them "childish." I venture to say that a big majority of the visitors at the recent Glasgow show will hold a very different opinion. He seems to treat it as "presumption" on my part to dare give a word of advice to his committee. These gentlemen may be so accustomed to the old order of things that, apart from the actual management of the show, they regard what is really the most vital part, viz., judging, with apparently stoical indifference. I admit, sir, that I am but a "child" in the fancy, as Mr. "Steward" would put it, and have yet a lot to learn, but I am also cognisant of the fact that there are some things with which I have no desire to have anything to do, rather would I leave the fancy. Regarding the subject of a judge conversing with the assistant handing down the birds to the judging table: I hold it is quite unnecessary for a judge to discuss matters with such an assistant. The law upon occasions of wrong-classing is in his own hands, and his duty simply lies in the disqualification of such birds, therefore, to call upon the opinions or advice of a subordinate, plainly shows weakness or incompetence upon his part. "Steward's" closing sentence: "Many a bird is well forward in the prize-list at one show and fails to get a ticket at the next," touches the crux of the whole question. Is there not a model and standard adopted by the Plainhead clubs? An when even a novice sees these ruthlessly ignored on the show-bench, is it to be wondered at he should seek for an explanation? Your threats, Mr. "Steward," of Dundee solicitors, aye, or even Dundee policemen, do not alter the case, as for two days there was exposed eloquent ocular proof of my statements in the birds themselves; so, in the words of a celebrated statesman, "What I have said, I have said—I withdraw nothing." I trust some of our more experienced fanciers will take this subject up, and have it so thrashed out as to safeguard the future. I may add that in proof of my sincerity and bona-fides, I affixed my name publicly to my epistle, whilst I note my critic merely signs himself a "Steward," which he may or may not be; perhaps, if he is not ashamed of the fact, he will enlighten us upon this point. D. S. GOWANS.

IMPENDING RETIREMENT OF MR. J. F. HILLS.

SIR,—I have received a letter from Mr. J. F. Hills, the well-known British bird judge, in which he writes:—

"I cannot do better than take this opportunity of announcing that I shall close my judging career with the next Palace show—the Jubilee Show. My first engagement at the Crystal Palace was in 1857, and with the Jubilee Show I terminate my official appearances at any show. I have had a good innings—I think it must be a record one. The work to me has been a labour of love, and the unbroken record of almost universal kindness received from the birdy world, will to my last days be a happy and pleasing reminiscence."

I hope our old friend will have a record entry, and find this, his last Palace show (in an official capacity) the happiest and brightest of all the Palace shows he has attended.

ALLEGED UNFAIR TREATMENT AT BLACKBURN SHOW.

Sticking at the Half-prize Money Limit.

SIR,—I am writing to complain of unfair treatment at Blackburn Show. I entered two birds in the unflighted yellow class, as there was a special given for most points in this class. The secretary sent me one ticket, saying he regretted being unable to accept both entries. The number on the ticket was No. 4, and on receiving the catalogue I find eight entries, on which they pay half prize money. The competitors in this class were mostly Blackburn fanciers, and probably members of the society. I wrote saying they had not right to accept one entry in a class and refuse one, and that I should send both birds and expect them to compete. The bird I sent without a ticket arrived back with feathers missing from the butt of one wing, which was covered with blood, and it is ruined for the rest of the show season. I enclose an exact copy of the reply I received from the secretary, and should be glad if you would publish it along with this letter.

ROBERT HALL.

COPY.

November 8, 1908.

DEAR SIR,—I was rather surprised when I received your P.O. back, saying you would send bird and he would have to compete. You must know, or else you are a novice in the show business, that no society can afford to lose £12 or £13 on a classification, and unless we advertise there is "no cancelling or amalgamating," we have a perfect right to accept or reject any entries we choose. I hope I am addressing a gentleman, as I was sorry I could not see you on Saturday. I hope this explanation is satisfactory to you. Re your bird without ticket that you sent, he arrived here on Thursday night with the butt of one wing bleeding. I have paid him every attention, and have sent him back in a better condition than I found him. I find you win 1st and special in class 4, which I will forward with your prize money in a day or two. You also win 1st and special in class 7, which is a window plant. What have I to do with this; have I to forward it on or what? You also win section special 1, volume of CAGE BIRDS. Please write and say how you want them packed. I will also return your entry fee 1/6 in class 8 with your prize money. Hoping we have given you every satisfaction.—I remain,

Yours respectfully,
J. W. MARSDEN, Secretary.

FOREIGN BIRDS AT GRIMSBY SHOW.

SIR,—In reply to Mr. Bernard Hollins' letter in your paper of October 31st, respecting the death of one of his pair of Blue Mountain Lorries exhibited at the above show, and which, unfortunately died a few days after being returned to him, we very much regret to hear of his loss, and sympathise with him. Mr. Hollins enquires why the Stewards or Committee men did not look after this section, thereby implying gross neglect on their part. As one of such Stewards, who devoted two days in looking after the wants and comfort of the exhibits entrusted to our care, I may say that we did our utmost to attend to their requirements, and, further, that Mr. Hollins' birds received our best attention. But he should know perfectly well it is an utter impossibility for the Stewards and Committee at any show to centre their whole time and attention on any particular exhibit. The birds appeared to be in good condition when dispatched from our show. In conclusion, I may say we have received complimentary letters from some of the exhibitors at our show, thanking us for returning their exhibits quickly and in grand condition, and also for prompt payment of prize money.

G. W. DOWIE.

And What is a Tick?

SIR,—As Mr. Reid is trying to run from his words, I quote the words used in his letter of Sept. 19th: that it was most unsatisfactory both to judges and exhibitors that birds should have to be handled in order to determine whether they were clear or ticked. I also quote Mr. Reid's own words of October 10, which say: "Surely Mr. Woollard does not suppose that I was alluding to birds which had very dark underflue, or a large number of dark feathers at the thighs. The above, Sir, are birds which go into the ticked classes, as there are too many feathers to pull out without fear of detection." And now, I say again, that birds with the most dark underflue are those that cannot be detected without being handled, as it is above the thighs, also at vent, etc. And yet Mr. Reid says that these birds go into the ticked class. Mr. Reid says, in your issue of November 7th, "Why cannot Mr. Woollard understand that I never suggested that ticked birds should be shown in a clear class?" I now quote again Mr. Reid's own words, of September 19th: "He also thought by allowing thigh ticked birds to compete in clear classes a certain amount of fraud would be done away with." Now, Sir, if that is not a suggestion, it is getting pretty close to one. So you will see that the birds with thigh ticks which can be seen in most cases without handling, oven if only a few feathers (which I have proved again recently at a show where there were classes containing from 40 to 60 birds), Mr. Reid would allow to be shown in the clear class, and those having ticks that cannot be detected without being handled, although they have much more dark underflue, Mr. Reid says, go into the ticked class. Now you will see, Sir, by this that Mr. Reid has defeated himself. I see he also mentions birds with streaked beaks and legs. Now, if Mr. Reid wanted a bird of this description, with absolutely clear plumage, I venture to say he would be a long time finding one. As to the other part of his letter, I cannot go over all the old ground again, so must ask him to refer back to my letter of October 17th, and if he cannot understand it, perhaps he can get someone to explain it to him. He asks me to keep to the point; I have not run from it; but Mr. Reid has been running all over the place. As to Mr. Reid's little personal sarcasm, I don't mind a bit. I had a good hearty laugh when I read his letter, which I don't think Mr. Reid did while penning it.

A. WOOLLARD.

(This correspondence has had a "good innings," and we think may now very well close, especially so seeing that the Norwich Plainhead Club (and, we believe, the S.N.P.C.) purposes dealing with the question and endeavouring to dispose of it. We may say, however, as Mr. Woollard raises the point, that we have, in justice to Mr. Reid, perused his (Mr. R.'s) previous letters, but in none can we find justification for Mr. Woollard's contention that he has laid it down that "visible ticks" should compete in the Clear Class, and "invisible ticks" in the Ticked Class. Our own reading makes him to mean exactly the contrary. We presume the explanation of this seeming puzzle is to be found in the saying that "everything depends on the point of view."—EDITOR.)

USEFUL CHART FOR COMPETITORS IN SPECIALIST CLUB, ETC., COMPETITIONS.

SIR, I am herewith sending you a chart which acts as an Indicator of one's position in any competition that may be in progress. I use the Yorkshire Union Novice Medal Competition as an example. For this competition I found it extremely useful last season, as it enabled me to see the results, and learn the progress of every competitor in the running, as well as to show me our own financial situation at a glance. I hope the idea may be of use to some other of your readers.

THE VALUE OF SPECIAL PRIZES.

SIR,—I think it is time show committees were made to realise how responsible they are for the value of the special prizes they offer to induce exhibitors to send birds to their shows. I have myself won a supposed-to-be five-guinea cup, which a friend of mine who knows has just told me is worth at the outside but a paltry 35s. Now, if I had found this out earlier, I would have sued the society concerned for the difference between the stated and the actual value. I know I could have recovered it, though many people do not seem to realise this is the position. I think it is sharp practice, to say the least of it, to puff up the value of special prizes, and societies which mislead exhibitors in this way cannot expect to prosper. I see this game is going on this season, as merrily as ever, the latest to come to my notice being pictures, which can actually be bought for two and six-pence, put before exhibitors as worth as many pounds. This is not right, and societies which do this kind of thing ought to be exposed, and they can be by law.

A SUFFERER.

THE GLASGOW AND WEST OF SCOTLAND SOCIETY'S SHOW.

An Astounding Circular.

SIR,—You will find enclosed an anonymous circular, which I understand has been widely circulated throughout Scotland and England, with the intention of injuring the Glasgow and West of Scotland Show, which takes place on Friday and Saturday of this week. This circular was posted at 9 p.m. (postmark) in Edinburgh on Thursday, November 5th (two days before the entries closed), and was well timed to do any slight harm it might accomplish. But up to timo of writing it seems to have done none, as many fanciers have rallied round, and are doing their best to make the show a gigantic success. To sum it up, it is nothing more or less than a bundle of lies compressed into small bulk. Here is the circular:—

Brother Fancier

. You will no doubt ere this have received a schedule from a society known as "The Glasgow and West of Scotland."

Now I wish to put you on your guard against such a gang of adventurers. This alleged Society held a show last year, which no doubt was a total financial failure, although they have not yet published a balance-sheet of any sort, nor has same ever been recorded in any of the fanciers' papers. Some time ago I was in conversation with one of their principal office-bearers, and he assured me that the Society had not a farthing. They guarantee prize money, and judging from their elaborate schedule it will amount to a considerable sum. Just ponder for a moment and see where your prize money is to come from. I know of a few exhibitors that have not been paid for last year, also one or two accounts against this alleged Society that have not yet been squared up. They take in associate members at 2/6, who have no voice in the management, but who are gently reminded that the show is a failure, and that their share of the shortage is so much. If this is not barefaced robbery, I don't know what is. Give this bogus Society a safe miss and you will have no need to regret it.—I am, etc.,

A STERLING FANCIER.

Firstly: The Glasgow and West of Scotland is not an "alleged society," but one of the oldest standing in Scotland.

Secondly: The guaranteed prize money is as safe as if it was in the Bank of England.

Thirdly: The financial position of this society is better than ever it was.

Fourthly: £5 is offered to anyone who did not receive their full prize money last year.

Fifthly: Associate Members were not, and will not be, called upon to pay any shortage that may occur.

Sixthly: If it is not barefaced roguery to send out such a circular as that I have enclosed, I don't know what is.

It is too late now for my letter to catch the eye, before the show is held, of everybody who received this circular, but it is not too late, and never will be too late, to uphold the honour of the Glasgow and West of Scotland Society, and to try and discover the source of this outrage. I am an independent party, having nothing to do with any of the societies in Glasgow, but I like to see fair play to everyone, and I am fully authorised to make the statements I have made. AND. WILSON.

C.B.U. MEMBERS AND NON-UNION SHOWS.

SIR,—I was more than surprised to see at Keynsham show on November 7th, members of the Cage Bird Union exhibiting in the British Bird class. What is more, I think I am right in saying that Mr. Lovell, the judge, is also a C.B.U. member. This is a thing which I think most unfair to outsiders, and it is no encouragement to bring men outside the C.B.U. "up to the scratch" to join. I think something should be done to stop this kind of thing. M. D. BARNES.

WEST OF SCOTLAND N.M.B. AND F.B. CLUB.

SIR,—Being a British Bird member of the above club, I wish to draw the attention of British Bird exhibitors to the fact that they have subscribed for four trophies, and the club has very kindly kept them to the Canary section, debarring me from competing. It is British I go in for, and I think this very unfair, after keeping a few Soft-bills (as they are not easily kept). I am allowed to compete for prizes in classes they are paying 1s. 6d. a class. [We print this sentence as written; its meaning is not clear to us.—ED. "C.B."] Now, I ask British Bird men if they will send in a few more specials, so they may have a few more for the Canary members to swallow up. EXPOSITOR.

"AMONGST THE GIRLS."

SIR,—As an exhibitor at a certain Scottish show held last Saturday, October 31st, I was much surprised at the decision of the judge in the British hen class. How he awarded 1st and special to a cock Hedge Sparrow I am at a loss to know. Perhaps the judge will explain. The further point arises as to whether the owners of the bird in question should not hand over the prize money to charity, for I consider they have no right to same. I trust that show managers will in the future engage British Bird judges who understand the name and sex of what they are judging. Such is the earnest desire of a member. S. J.

(Although on the priniciple of giving everyone a fair hearing, we publish our correspondent's letter, we are quite unable to see eye to eye with him on the matter. In the first place, having been awarded the prize by the person appointed to allocate the same, the owners of the Hedge Sparrow have the best possible right to it. Secondly, we were not aware that it is so easy a matter to sex Hedge-Sparrows as might be inferred from the above letter. We were under the impression that the sexes are practically alike in plumage; an impression apparently shared by ornithologists generally.—EDITOR.)

A PROPOSED DINNER TO LECTURERS IN LONDON.

SIR,—I am wondering whether the various societies in London would care to join together in giving the many gentlemen who favour us with their services voluntarily, in either giving us papers or lectures, a dinner one evening. There is no doubt whatever that a lot of the success of the societies is due to these gentlemen. They put themselves to a lot of trouble and inconvenience, come any distance required, and give us a full evening's enjoyment of the knowledge which it has taken them years to gain, all for nothing, and I feel we cannot be too thankful to them, and the least we can do is to get them together one night and publicly thank them. The cost to each society would not be very large, and I myself personally think it is the least we can do. I shall be more than delighted to have the views of the various societies in London on the matter, and have no doubt that there are many secretaries of London societies who are of the same opinion as myself, and who would be pleased to join me. To save encroaching on the funds of the societies, a very good plan would be to ask each member to contribute a small sum towards defraying the cost. I am sure that all members of every society in London, who have had the pleasure of listening to the various gentlemen, will be more than delighted to subscribe their mite towards it.

H. W. COOK,
Hon. Secretary, Poplar and District C.B.S.

THE SHOWS.

BO'NESS.

The fourth annual show was held in the Drill Hall on November 7th. The society is to be congratulated on the great success which met their efforts. The secretary, Mr. McGillivray, had arrangements well in hand, and by the aid of his willing band of helpers everything was carried through with a smoothness and promptness which demanded attention. Cage birds were nicely staged round the walls of the hall, plenty of room being left for the visitors without crowding. Entries reached the same total as last year, viz., 460. The Norwich section was up from last year both in numbers and quality, some extra fine birds being forward. Border Fancies were slightly down in numbers, but the quality was of a high order, the medal winner being a bird of great merit. Scotch Fancies seem to be going down in this district, but there are still a few of the birds of circle left to grace the bench. The British and Mule sections were the feature of the show, the average being 12 per class over 22 classes, and, as this was the first appearance of Mr. Arright as a judge, he had a hot reception. He went about his task like an old veteran, and from the absence of adverse criticism and the complimentary remarks passed, we can safely prophesy that it will not be his last outing in that capacity. The other judges were: Norwich, Mr. Jas. Winter; Scotch Fancy, Mr. T. Todd; and Border Fancy, Mr. A. Gilchrist, and their decisions also seemed to be well received.

BUDGERIGARS AND COCKATEELS.

By C. P. ARTHUR.

(with additional notes by Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S., and W. Laskey).

The breeding of Budgerigars and Cockateels is recognised as one of the most profitable and pleasure giving sides of foreign bird-keeping. In this thoroughly practical handbook an eminent authority and highly successful breeder of these two species gives very full details upon

How to Keep, Feed, Breed, Tame and Teach to Talk.

A handbook which should be on every bird-lover's book shelf. Two full-page illustrations.

THE MANAGER, "CAGE BIRDS,"
154, Fleet Street, London, E.C

BRISTOL F.A.

Wonderful in its organisation and most lucky in being able at all times to rally to its succour a splendid band of workers, the Bristol Fanciers' Association has gradually grown and grown until it is now in its many sections quite the largest combined show in the kingdom. The entry at the show held in the Queen's road Drill Hall, on November 12th and 13th, totalled 4,000, to which cage birds contributed 620. Not only was the entry great but the quality also, the patronage of the Crest, Yorkshire, and Cinnamon clubs contributing to this end. The class of the show was that for unflighted Yorkshires, which had no less than fifty-one entries—a record for Bristol. The workers responsible for our section were Messrs. T. R. Ind, E. A. Lovell, F. Blackland, H. Grace, T. H. Maggs, E. Screen, and E. H. Stonelake—a combination of which any society might be justly proud. For zeal, energy, experience, and courtesy, a better set it would be difficult to find. They know how to run the section, and they do it to the comfort of the birds, and the benefit of exhibitors and visitors. Mr. Maggs, the hon. sec., has long been connected with the show, and his experience, coupled with wonderful tact and urbanity, were a great factor in the success of the show. The judges were Messrs. C. A. House and J. Robson.

I have always found CAGE BIRDS "Answers to Queries" most useful, and thank you for former ones.—MRS. CROYSDALE (Sunbury).

A very pleasing little note has reached one of our members from an "old and esteemed" member of the Suffolk C.B. Society, writes Mr. Wm. Barrett, the hon. secretary. It is from Mr. A. N. Watson, a true fancier of the good old Norwich Plainhead, who has been good enough to forward us a special prize of 5s. for the best 1908 bred Norwich Plainhead in our forthcoming show, competing birds to be bred by exhibitor.

AYR.

The recently formed Ayr and District C.B.S. held their first exhibition on Nov. 7th in the Masonic Hall, High Street. This hall is a most central one, and is ideal for the purpose, being well lighted and very cosy. The total number of exhibits was about 300, which for an initial event must be considered very satisfactory. There were some exceedingly nice specimens forward, and the condition in which they were shown reflects the highest credit on the owners. The Borders did not turn up quite to expectations, nor did the Crests and C.B. The two classes provided for Scotch Fancies filled well, and it is some time since we had the pleasure of seeing such keen competition. Yorkshires, though not strong numerically, contained some stylish specimens. There was very keen competition in several of the British bird classes, and the Mules, Hybrids and Foreign birds were very attractive. The managing committee was composed of able and practical fanciers; we noticed Messrs. Cameron, Doolan, Brown, Conkie, Duncan, Hyslop, Steel, Hogg, Wason, McCulloch, Bell, McKay, Hutchcon, and Matthews, all of whom performed their respective duties well. The president is Mr. R. McKay, and the vice-president Mr. R. Cumming. The club has been fortunate in securing the services of Mr. C. C. Irvine as their secretary. He proved himself a very capable general, and carried the arrangements through in a thoroughly practical manner; he is also courtcous and obliging. Mr. Allan Roberts (Thornliebank) adjudicated on the Canary classes, and Mr. Gavin Alston (Darvel) the Mules, British and Foreign bird classes, and their awards gave general satisfaction.

CARMARTHEN.

Held at the Assembly Rooms, Nov. 5th. The committee have every reason to be proud of their first effort; the entry and attendance were very flattering. Carmarthen Show has come to stay. The hall is very conveniently situated, and the exhibits were well looked after, being under the care of such well-known fanciers as Messrs. Crabbe Lohr, and Evans. Mr. Fred King makes a most courteous and obliging hon. sec., and is the right man in the right place. In the Canary section the Norwich made a goodly show, the three cash winners in each class being fit birds for any company. Yorks. and Borders were also fine. The spl for best bird went to Mr. B. Davies, for a clinking Scots. British and Mules were excellent. Mr. D. A. S. Longden placed the cards, deputising for Mr. J. B. Evans, who was indisposed.

CARLISLE.

Carlisle held their 33rd annual show on November 11th and 12th. Unfortunately the entry did not quite come up to the expectations of the executive. Borders were well represented, some real good ones being on view; this was the strongest section of the show. The medal winner was the Foul Buff, a sweet exhibit, which must have been hard pressed by the clear Buff hen. The Borders were well handled by Mr. Hopper (of Messrs. Hopper Bros.). Norwich were a representative lot, and Crest-breds a grand collection, although small in numbers. No. 3, a good green, had unfortunately arrived with a broken leg, probably owing to rough handling in transit. Yorkshires contained some of the cream of the Fancy. These classes came under the judicial eye of Mr. Vardy, and his selections left little to be desired. The winning Thrush, captured the spl for best Brit. Mr. Laidlaw judged, and such an expert in British, deserved a far better entry. The executive are a genuine lot, indeed, Carlisle has always been famous for their committees. The old hands were good, and the young ones close up in point of merit. They were headed by the genial and ever obliging secretary, Mr. W. R. Wright, and his endeavours to make the show a success were appreciated by one and all. With the enthusiastic committee, the comforts of the exhibits were first and foremost. The hall is a good one, but owing to heavy, dull weather, artificial light had to be resorted to during the latter part of judging. It is to be hoped that Carlisle will next year regain the position it formerly held, as the premier show on the Borders.

As a young fancier I never miss CAGE BIRDS, and always have to be up sharp on Friday mornings to get it before breakfast. I enjoy the answers to queries especially, to pick out one of many features.—DAN MCARTHUR (Edinburgh).

SWANSEA.

Eighth annual show, held in the Working Men's Institute, on Nov. 11 and 12. 47 classes were provided, and these brought together a grand total of about 470 birds. The society can count some 60 odd members and the committee of management is: Chairman, Mr. J. H. Ford; vice, Mr. W. T. Kirby, with Messrs. Robbins, J. Richards, W. R. Taylor, D. Roach, T. J. Vanstone, J. Cay, I. Heal, J. Gooding, H. Jenkins, W. Donnell, D. Jeremy, F. Mabbett. Show managers, Messrs. Phil. Jenkins, and J. Hocking. Hon. sec. and treasurer, Mr. Alf. Hitchings. These gentlemen had everything well arranged, all the Canaries being staged in the main hall, and the Hybrids, British, etc., in an ante-room, with a splendid dome top light. These fanciers are essentially a strong band of real working men in every sense, and great credit is due to them for getting up such a fine show just now, when so many shows are on. Norwich Plainheads came up well, particularly the unflighted and non-fed classes. Yorkshires were hardly so strong in numbers as one would have liked to have seen, but quality was good. Borders turned up nicely, which spoke well for the popularity of these prim "Bantams." Hybrids were remarkably strong, and must be counted as one of the best displays brought together this season so far. Fancy 15 in the clear, ticked, etc., class. British birds, as is usual here, were well represented, particularly in the Seed-eaters, whilst a few excellent Foreign birds brought up the rear of a very creditable show. Mr. Hocking, and our old friend, Mr. Phil. Jenkins, are adepts at show managing, and they materially helped Mr. Alf. Hitchings, the hon. sec., to get through the work in a most able manner. Valuable cups, medals galore, and other valuable specials were offered for competition, and keen was the strife for these. No band of working men fanciers deserves support more than the members of the Swansea C.B.A. Some winners of specials were:—Border Fancy spl, J. Hocking; silver cup, Norwich, W. T. Kirby; silver cups for British, and most points, Phil. Jenkins; silver cup for Hybrids, R. W. Jones. The judges were Messrs. C. Houlton and J. B. Evans.

HASTINGS.

The 16th annual exhibition of Hastings United C.B.S. was held in the Parish Hall, on November 10th and 11th, and proved a great success. The hall is a capital place in which to hold a show, and the arrangements were everything that could be desired. The show was under the patronage of the S.N.P.C., and the S.Y.C. Clubs, and this lent additional interest to the competition. The hon. secretary, Mr. A. E. Godden, with his assistant, Mr. H. L. Harris, were indefatigable in their efforts to secure success. They were efficiently helped by the committee, Messrs. Stevens (chairman), Craig, George, Dann, Stubberfield, Barham, Button, Chantler, R. May, Dawson, Morris, Clarke, Jenner, Upton, Harris, Bellamy, and Coombs. Several ladies were present to assist in the arrangements, and did much to make things run smoothly. The total entry was good, but many of the open classes were but sparsely filled. Still the quality was of a very high order, and the competition was very keen. Considerable local interest was displayed in the fight for the members' cup, and in this keen tussle Mr. T. G. Coombs was again victorious, taking the cup for the second time. The runners-up were Messrs. J. H. Bellamy, and Mr. H. Bond. The attendance was very good, and we trust the financial aspect of the show may prove favourable. Messrs. Geo. Gardner and J. Robson judged. The prize cards were up soon after two o'clock.

SHIPLEY.

The Shipley O.S. held their annual open show on November 7th, in the Central School, Saltaire Road, a fairly central place. The room is an excellent one, is very large and extra well lighted, and could hardly be improved upon for a show of this description. The society issued a good schedule of 25 classes, with plenty of specials, but were rewarded with only the meagre total of 333 entries, an average of slightly over 13 per class, the cause being probably counter attractions at several other shows within a reasonable distance. The show was held under the rules of the Y.U., and the patronage of the Y.C.C. and the C.M.Y.C.C. Mr. J. Greaves officiated in the capacity of judge, his awards being received with satisfaction. The management was in the hands of capable officials, Mr. H. Dobson, the secretary, being at the head of affairs; he was ably assisted by Messrs. H. H. Towers, H. Bradshaw, H. Long, Sowden, Hudson and Marsden, all of whom deserve special mention for their courtesy. Messrs. Drake and Son, and L. Briggs were the top scorers in the competition for the weekly cash of CAGE BIRDS prizes for the amateurs of the Yorksbire Union.

GOVANHILL.

The Govanhill and Dis. Show was held in the Dixon Hall, Govanhill, Glasgow, on November 7th, and was an undoubted success. There was a grand turn out, both in quality and in numbers. The cup was won by Mr. W. Raine, with a very stylish, compact Buff. The hon. president is Dr. Garey, who takes a practical interest in the society. Mr. Tennent is well known in the district. The secretary and treasurer, Mr. Watson, is the right man for the position, and under his guidance the association has made rapid strides since its recent inception. The placing of the awards was in the able hands of Messrs. Wright (Grethock), and Price (Barrhead).

MARGATE.

The 11th annual exhibition of the Isle of Thanet F.S. took place in the Marina Hall, Margate, on November 4th and 5th. This hall is commodious, and well adapted for show purposes, and the committee are a band of enthusiastic and energetic fanciers. The President is Dr. P. C. Burgess, who is looked up to for his unbounded kindness and liberality. The society, doubtless through the exertions of its executive, show a double page of subscribers, and four pages of special prizes. Mr. North, the judge of the cage bird sections, got to work in good time, and, selecting the best-lighted position, where the sunshine came in from just over the sea, it was not long before the judging slips got into the printer's hands, and catalogues, with lists of awards in their correct places were on sale as soon as the show was opened. The secretary is Mr. W. J. Jones, to whom much of the success of the show is undoubtedly due.

BLACKBURN.

Blackburn and Dls. C.B.S. held their 12th Annual Open Show on November 6 and 7, in the Orange Hall, Richmond Terrace. Entries only came up moderately in the open classes, this, no doubt, owing to Rochdale and Liverpool Shows being held on the same day; but we trust the attendance came up to expectations, and that the show was a financial success. The novice and members' classes were very strong, and contained some choice specimens. Some grand Norwich were on view in the open classes. Cinnamons, under the patronage of the C.C.C., made a good show. The Yorkshires exhibited by Messrs. Fitton, Lane and Brooks were very typical specimens, and deserved better competition. The British, Mule, and Foreign bird classes made a very nice show, and as usual came in for a great deal of attention and admiration. The silver cup given by Dr. Lax for most points in British section was won by Mr. John Hunter, and the silver cup for most points in novice members' classes, given by Dr. Stevenson, by Mr. W. E. Seed. Mr. J. W. Marsden, the energetic and worthy secretary, had everything well in hand, and carried out his numerous duties in a very masterly and efficient manner. He was ably assisted by Mr. J. Lyons (chairman), Mr. R. Howarth (vice-chairman), Mr. S. Tweddle (treasurer), Mr. H. Fairclough (assistant secretary), and the committee. Messrs. A. Wellings, J. Walsh, and T. W. Walton judged, and their awards were well received.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.

The fourth annual exhibition was held in the Temperance Hall on Nov. 7th. The committee had every reason to congratulate themselves, as they had a record entry, and the quality in every section was high. Norwich were a good show, some very typical specimens being staged. Yorkshires, as is now usual at Northern shows, were present in good numbers, but the judging in this section aroused some comment, seeing most of the awards went to yellows, although in both classes some really good buffs were staged. Otherwise the judging appeared to give general satisfaction. British birds made a most imposing display, and some beauties were on view. Mr. Lawes carried out the secretarial duties in a most courteous and efficient manner, and was ably assisted by his committee, consisting of Messrs. Marwood, Wake, Nicholson, Yeates, Ducas, Freeman, Burton, Barker, Baines, Metcalfe, and others, all very good fanciers. Mr. Dixon judged Canaries, Mr. Howe (Wellingborough), the remainder.

SHEFFIELD.

The Sheffield and Dist. C.B.S. held their annual exhibition on November 6th and 7th. The Temperance Hall, Townhead-street, in which the exhibits were housed is of nice size, lofty, and is free from draughts. The entry totalled upwards of 840, the open section containing just over 300 in the 33 classes provided, and the members staged the remaining 540 specimens. President, Mr. T. Hemmings; vice-presidents, Messrs. T. Brown, P. Walsh, E. E. Smith, and Dr. Mylan; hon. treasurer, Mr. W. Oxley, who is a genuine fancier, and a well-wisher of the society. Stewards were Messrs. Thorpe, Bishop, and Somerfield, a trio of capital workers, assisted by two well known personages in Messrs. Colton and Dawn. The secretaries are Messrs. Lindsay and Bingham who proved themselves capital manipulators. They worked like Trojans, and are to be highly complimented on the exercises they put forth. Staging was of a very neat order, and specimens could be seen at a glance. Prize cards were displayed quickly as each class was adjudicated upon. The show was well attended, and visitors should come out on the right side. Special for best bird in show went to Messrs. Colton and Dawn, their noted Redpoll Bullie doing the trick. The two silver medals presented by Mr. J. C. Barnes (the well-known local enthusiast), to be competed for by novices, went to Messrs. W. Holmes (Yorkshires) and S. Marlor (Norwich). Bamsdon's goblet was captured by Mr. W. Bagnell with a nice-coloured yell. Yorkie. Sandiford's cup fell into the hands of Mr. F. Coventry, his yell. Nor. being a warm one. Members' cups went to Messrs. Tow (Nor.), Lindsay (Yorks.), Memmott (Crests), and Walsh (British). The judges were Messrs. H. W. Battye, J. Robson, E. E. Smith, and G. Browning. Mr. Jos. Bexson was also to have officiated as an adjudicator, but unfortunately was too ill to attend. The members' classes contained many very meritorious specimens. The Yorkshires, taken as a whole, were a capital lot, as also were the Norwich. Crests and C.B.s provided a nice assortment, and British male a fine display.

BRAMLEY.

The third annual open show, connected with the Bramley and Dist. O.S. took place on November 7th. The church schoolroom (Hough-lane), in which the exhibits were staged, is an ideal place for such a function, it being of most excellent light (both by day and night), spacious, lofty, well ventilated, and entirely void of draughts. The schedule issued was of capital classification, good prize money, specials, and extra specials, the response being an entry of 420 in the 28 classes provided, giving an average of 15 per class. Yorkshires took pride of place, both as regards quality and numbers. Many birds stood cardless that were capable of winning at most shows, and two lots of "tickets" could easily have been distributed in almost every class. Norwich contained several very meritorious specimens, and the Greens (both Yorks. and Nor.) were of a nice description. Mules displayed various "mixtures," the parentage of most being clear and distinct. British, we thought, proved excellent. President, Ald. S. Peckover; vice-presidents, Messrs. Riley, Mathers, Richmond, Bennett, Tate, and H. E. Wilkinson; hon. treasurer is Mr. E. Fletcher. Committee, well-known and well-tried fanciers, Messrs. Wilkinson (chairman), Tate, Wilson, Parker, Hargreaves, Benson, Holdsworth, Hanson, and Fletcher. The hon. secretary is Mr. E. Craven; a more courteous and willing worker it would be difficult to find, always on the go, and with every item at his finger tips. He plays his part well, and much of the success of the fixture is due to his efforts. Prize slips were quickly affixed by capital stewards in Messrs. H. E. Wilkinson, Wilson, Maltby, Thompson (Leeds), Fletcher, Tate, and Silson. The prize money was paid out to all successful exhibitors attending, and all birds were despatched by 8 p.m. to owners. The judges were Messrs. W. Cowgill and A. G. Davis.

BRAINTREE.

A most successful Show was that of the Braintree Fanciers Association, held in the Corn Exchange on November 7th. The entry came up fairly well, the quality generally was good. There was a splendid attendance; everything betokened that success had been achieved, and the committee who worked hard and well to bring about this result, are to be most heartily congratulated. Mr. Hunnable made a most energetic and courteous secretary, and in him the Braintree fanciers have a most capable official. Mr. J. F. Hills judged, and we heard no grumbling.

DARLEY DALE.

The 5th annual open show was held November 5th, in the Whitworth Institute Pavilion, which is situated in a lovely park, and makes a capital place for a show, being splendidly lighted from the top, and free from draughts. This section proved much better than in former years, the entry being 102 in seven classes, and the quality A1. This it is thought is the result of joining the C.B.U. Norwich were really a grand show. Competition was also keen in both Yorkshire classes. Messrs. Dawson and Hall are most able secretaries and deserve great credit. Every praise is also due to Mr. Mr. C. Gentle, the chief steward in this section. Mr. J. H. Roe, judged.

Battersea C.H.S. has given a gentleman's silk umbrella as a special at Dulwich O.S. Show, write Messrs. Rogers and Mazzoni, hon. secretaries, and, since schedule has been at printers, another dozen specials have been presented.

LIVERPOOL.

This the first open show under the new name of the Liverpool O.S. was held on November 6th and 7th, and was a very great success. The society was formed by some of the leading fanciers around Liverpool for the set purpose of holding an open show becoming such a city. It is some years now since an open show of any importance was held in Liverpool. Time was when this city vied with all other provincial centres. Some 800 odd entries came forward in 52 classes, which is eminently satisfactory. The Norwich section contained many of the cracks of the day, and competition was very keen. Norwich Greens were out in full force, and several new champions budded forth. Crests used to play a very important part at Liverpool shows, but now we have to look for them in the A.O.V., as also for Lancashires, Lizards, Cinnamons, Belgians, and Scotch Fancies. Borders have come on apace, and it was a treat to see such a display of talent as was in evidence here. Hybrids were not up to the usual Liverpool strength. There were, however, three or four cracks in the dark Canary hybrid class. British birds were fine, and the local strength was much in evidence, whilst some grand birds came forward from long distances, notably the Isle of Man. The winner of Hyde's spl was V. H. Deacon; spl for best novice members' green, J. Gore; for best Border and 2nd best Border, W. Bayley; for best British, P. V. Williams. Altogether it was a splendid show, and the committee and officials are to be very highly complimented. Mr. Daniels is chairman, and Mr. Hales treasurer. The committee consists of Messrs. T. Rowlands, W. Thompson, W. C. Carswell, J. Gore, G. Benson, V. H. Deacon, and J. H. Isaac, with Messrs. Metcalfe and Hillmen as hon. secs. The secretaries may well be proud of the show. They worked like Trojans, and had matters in splendid order. Mr. Metcalfe is a young man endowed with a fine capacity for management, and success is written in that genial smile and expression one ever sees him wearing. Dr. O'Connell opened the show in the presence of a fine assembly, and eulogised the efforts of the new society in organising such a splendid show. Mr. W. Mundell judged the Yorkshires, Mr. Vardy the Norwich, and Mr. C. Houlton the Borders, A.O.V., Selling, Hybrids, British, and Foreign, and all had a very stiff task before them.

Messrs. Vardy and Houlton's Classes.

Yellow Bunting, good colour, very smart glossy feather and condition; 4, vhc, Coffey, Bramble and Chaffinch, good pair; hc, Chick, fine Bramble; c, Eaton; this was a very strong class for quality all through. A.O.S. SOFTBILL (5): 1, P. V. Williams, massive Cornish Chough, in splendid plumage and condition, cage hardly tall or high enough to allow the bird proper easy reach upward, which now causes him to continually peck and twist, which will become a serious habit from a show point of view, takes spl for best British in show; 2, Mort, champion young Thrush, grandly spotted, nice bright colour, in A1 condition; 3, 4, Daniels, fine Blackbird, and a monster Thrush, latter had unfortunately damaged his tail; vhc, Brown.

Mr. W. Mundell's Classes.

The great feature in the Yorks section were the Greens. Six classes were provided, and the fanciers responded to a man. Two hundred in this, averaged per class 33. In the yellow hen class, 44 entries were made, this, Mr. Metcalfe, the joint secretary, told us, beat the record, and "Pa Mundell" had a hard time of it trying to find the winners.

KEYNSHAM.

The Keynsham F.A. held their annual show on November 7th in the Drill Hall. The cage bird section was held, as usual, in a separate room. We were sorry to see that more than half the classes were cancelled, and that most of the others were amalgamated. The shortage of entries, no doubt, was caused by the secretary's misapprehension in not applying earlier for a C.B.U. license. CAGE BIRDS specimen copies were in great demand; one old gentleman actually wanted to pay the writer for one, and on being told that they were free specimens, said, "Well, then, come and have a drink." The secretary, Mr. Belsten, had everything in apple-pie order, whilst Messrs. H. Cooper and A. J. Woodward looked after the wants of our pets. By the way, where are Mr. H. Cooper's foreign birds? Keynsham used to be noted for a grand collection of these. The judge was Mr. E. A. Lovell.

GOLDFINCH ETC. (8): 1, S. Jones, Bullfinch, grand colour, shape and condition, nicely staged, wins well; 2, vhc, Byerley, Greypate, Bristol winner, good colour, expensive blaze, nice wing bars and buttons; vhc, grand Linnet; 3, res, S. Yorks., well up on leg, beautiful feather, grand wing carriage, nice pipe tail, wins; res, non-flig., yell. as straight as a gun barrel, plenty of thigh and leg, sweet little hen; 2, Cole, Buff Yorks. beautiful shape and condition, well filled back, stands like a Guardsman, nicely mealed; 3, Williams, yell. Yorks. in good condition; vhc, Williams; hc, Hancock; c, v Hucklesby. BRIT. (7): 1, spl, Bussey, Jay, "Jack," the old Palace winner looking well, grand wing bars, beautifully pencilled on head, looking just as cunning as old Charlie; 2, Barry Bros., Golden-Crested Wren, rather soft when we saw it, evidently feels the cold and wants some live food; 3, S. Jones, Hawfinch, another Palace winner, nice condition, not ready, nice clean cut bib, will improve, well staged; res, Pace Bros., Bramble, good colour and condition; vhc, hc, Barry Bros.; c, Leslie.

CLEATOR MOOR.

The annual show took place in the Market Hall, on November 7, in conjunction with the local exhibition. The entries fell off considerably this year from local and others, owing in the main to so many fanciers in these parts being out of employment. The classes were rather small in numbers, whilst some of them had to be cancelled. Only the Linnet class came up to a nice entry, and was nothing like one is used to seeing hereabouts. The Canary section brought out some grand Yorkshires, although few, the Borders were not here in full force to-day, Liverpool having called a few away. Norwich had only 2 classes, but some good ones turned up here. Som grand Goldfinches, Linnets, and Greenfinches were also to be seen. The committee had matters well arranged. Mr. Wellings judged Canaries, and Mr. Houlton Hybrids and British. We found that Mr. Byrne, the secretary, was suffering from an acute attack of influenza, and he would have been better in bed, but he most courageously stuck to his work; we hope he did not increase the complaint through sticking to his post, and that a bumping gate was his just reward.

METROPOLITAN C.B.A. (London.)

An eye-opener, for a first effort, was the show of the Metropolitan C.B.A., held in the Strathbbiane Hall, Clapham Junction, on the 29th and 30th October, when well towards 500 exhibits, representing some of the very best bird-rooms in the country, were ranged in competition. We may mention that the show was under the immediate patronage of his Worship the Mayor of Battersea, and that half the gate-money was to be devoted to the funds of Battersea Anti-Vivisection Hospital. The officers of the association include many well-known fanciers: Chairman, Mr. F. G. Martin; Treasurer, Mr. G. Saytch; Committee, Messrs. Matthes, Box, Best, McGregor, Wythe, W. Sawyer, C. Maby, G. Hartley, and A. J. Head; Auditors, A. E. Wilcox and E. Blum; with Mr. R. Dear, as Hon. Secretary. Mr. Martin has the benefit of experience in show management, and on this occasion superintended the efforts made to bring the venture to a successful issue. In this he was ably assisted by Mr. Dear. The room is a nice one, and the arrangements as to staging, etc., were excellent, while the stewarding was of the best, and the attention paid to exhibits by the ladies was deserving of all praise. Judging was over early, and the awards were placed upon the cages with dispatch. Mr. T. Heath judged Yorkshires; Mr. Geo Gardner, Norwich Plainheads, A.O.V., and Selllug; and Mr. H. Norman, Borders, British, Hybrids, and Foreign. Yorkshires were good, the quality being excellent, a fact not to be wondered at when it is noted that there were rooms in Baildon, Eccleshill, Southend, Battersea, Bexhill, etc., represented. The Open Novice Section came up splendidly. Norwich Plainheads had a splendid entry of 94 in the seven open champion classes, and in the open novice classes there were 65. The quality was admitted on all hands to be magnificent. This was most gratifying. The Borders had two nicely filled classes, the quality was good, and Mr. Norman handled them well. The winner in each class hailed from Chirnside, and the eye-marking of the evenly-marked buff was a study in exactitude. The Hybrids and British were wonderful classes for quality. The former section contained exceptionally meritorious representatives; they were served up "bloomin' 'ot," as we heard a fancier say. Goldfinches were a splendid show, and Linnets a topping lot. Chaffinches were few, and there seems a chance for the introduction of a stormer or two. The foreign were a lovely collection, if small, and included a Masked Love Bird and Violet-eared Waxbills, sent by Mr. Maxwell, and a beautiful Brazilian Green Jay, belonging to Mr. W. Cook. Specials were numerous, and of good value. We trust the gate would be liberal, thus recompensing those responsible for this meritorious first effort of the Metropolitan C.B.A.

BULLFINCH (9): 1, W. White, very shapely bird leading, good Bullie type, nice even breast and good wings; 2, Galton, shade larger, good breast and back, capital cap and bar; 3, hc, Francis, bonny bird, good colour and cap, nice style; 4, Mrs. Vincent, fine bold bird, good front, lovely back; vhc, Askew; c, Edwards. LINNET (14): 1, hc, Maxwell. 1st bonny bird, good size, lovely contour, pencilled to thighs, fine rich colour, nice position; 2, Francis, nice-sized bird, good bold front, very shapely, nicely mkd.; 3, Harris, fine big bird, beautifully pencilled, good carriage, back and wings; 4, Grahame, good bold bird, nicely marked, hardly fit yet, will do better; vhc, Mrs. Page; c, Fisher. TWITE, ETC. (13): 1, vhc, Francis, really good Siskin, capital size and proportions, good cap and wings; 2, 3, Maxwell, 2nd fine bold Twite, grand colour and pencilling, capital whites; 3rd, bonny little Redpoll, good shape, capital bib and well laced; 4, Botting, another good Twite, hardly the size of former but equal on points; hc, White; c, Mrs. Page. A.O.S. HARDBILL (15): 1, Maxwell, very fine Hawfinch leading, good even colour, lovely condition, capital shape; 2, Cutting, really good Bramble, capital size, shape and colour, nicely spangled; 3, Francis, good bold Greenie, excellent size and colour; 4, Withers Bros., another lovely Hawfinch, well shown, in good trim; vho, c, Askew; hc, Gilbert. A.O.S. SMALL SOFT (4): 1, 2, Maxwell, 1st one of the best Yellow Wagtails seen, gem for size, colour and shape, lovely exhibit; 2nd, very good Black Redstart, capital colour, nice size and shape; 3, Francis, topping 'Gale, very bold and active, splendid colour, shapely; 4, Frostick, lovely little Wren, beautifully marked, in capital feather. LARGE (8): 1, Maxwell, very fine Chough, good size and shape, excelling in polish, very steady; 2, Cook, fine example of the Great Grey Shrike, in grand condition; 3, c, Askew, good Starling, capital shape and condition, nicely spangled; 4, vhc, hc, Francis, 4th bonny Thrush, good size, full of work. PARROTS (12): 1, 4, Maxwell, 1st lovely little exhibit, perfect in feather, exquisite colour, beautiful bird; 4th, beautiful Lorrikeet, lovely bird of colour, shown in topping condition; 2, Gill and Pethick, very fine King, lovely colour, in grand condition; 3, Cooper, very fine Black-headed Caique, splendid colour and first-class condition; vhc, hc, W. Cook; c, Burgess. WAXBILLS, ETC. (5): 1, 2, Maxwell, 1st beautiful Parrot Finch, rare size, very rich colour, lovely exhibit; 2nd, grand pair of Violet-eared Waxbills, in lovely feather; 3, 4, Cook, 3rd very neat little Bunting, as tight as wax, beautiful soft colour; 4th, good Parson Finch, very clean-cut black, nice feather; vhc, Hodgson. INSECTIV. (5): 1, vhc, Cook, his now well-known Brazilian Jay, looking as well as ever, lovely bird; 2, 3, Maxwell, 2nd very fine White-capped Redstart, in splendid colour and condition, well shown; 3rd, the charming Black-backed Tanager, perfect in plumage, very taking exhibit; 4, Smith, Green-billed Toucan, fine bold bird, little ragged in plumage.

Mr. Geo. Gardner's Classes.

NOR. YELL. CK. (15): 1, spl, best Nor., Spillman, tkd top of head, one of the shortest and chubbiest yells. seen for a long time, not a blaze of colour simply, but all over a Nor., short well folded flights, full neck, tail and legs, what more does anyone desire? 2, Morris, full-fronted, good quality and shape, nice colour, silky feather; 3, Mathes, rich colour, beautifully polished, silky feather, scarcely so chubby as winner; 4, Bellamy, another of level colour, fine quality and shape, a warm and close lot, these last three; vhc, Rippon; hc, Young; c, Baker. BUFF (20): 1, c, Young, bonny, short and thick, grand wing, bracing short flights, legs and tail, noble head, well cleaned off, very rich in under-colour, good size; 2, Morris, somewhat similar, hardly the under-colour of first, but a good one; 3, Baker, richest texture of the three, beautifully finished on head, back and neck, grand shape, might have won but for feathers around rump being somewhat "reevy," probably through insufficient riusing, otherwise a gem; 4, hc, Spillman, hardly so good on head as leaders, nice body shape, but scarcely the under-colour of others; vhc, Martin. MKD. ETC. CK. (11): 1, Morris, tkd. both eyes, well known; 2, 3, 4, Baker, grand team; 2, tkd. on wing and thigh, sweet, unflig., consequently handicapped as against winner, but gave him a good run, should do well; 3, variog., very nice colour, typical, glistening feather, varieg. buff, fine tone of feather of the peach blossom kind, will make its mark in the breeding cage; vhc, hc, Spillman; c, Rippon. HENS A.V. (26): 1, spl, Young, nicely variog. buff, a Norwich all over, close as wax right to tail root, unflig., wings well fitting, sweet head and a beak which fascinated, beautiful under-colour and frosting; 2, 3, 4, Baker, 2, one of the best yell. hens staged for many a long day; 3, 4, two buffs, both gems for type and quality, very much alike, except the one is richer in undercolour than the other; vhc, Hodder; hc, Mathes; c, Spilman. UNLFIG. (22): 1, Hodder, cl. yell., abundance of rich colour, very pretty, well shaped head, nice neck, back and wing covering, bonny shaped body; 2, Kilby, yell., not quite so rich in colour, but lovely feather, grand all over, only defect, crosses wings at tips now and again; 3, c, Baker, beautiful buff, finest of fine feathers, bonny type, just a trifle browsy, probably not fined down after washing; 4, vhc, Spillman, another typical bird, not quite equal in colour; hc, Morris. A.O.V. (6): Fisher, very nice silver Lizard, good ground colour and rowing; 2, Martin, grand coloured yell. oinn., very glossy; 3, vhc, Curtis, two green Nor., full of the stuff that builds up colour in Plainheads; 4, Martin, Lizard; c, Martin. SELL (15/-) (9): 1, Miss Davies; 2, 4, Rippon; 3, Quantrell and Scars; vhc, Baker; hc, Saunders; c, Wright. (25/- and 35/-) (17): 1, Luff; 2, Saunders; 3, Cook; 4, Rippon; vhc, Miss Davies; hc, Hodgkin; c, Best.

OPEN NOVICE: NOR. CL. ETC. YELL. CK. (14): 1, 4, Mrs. Lovegrove, leader very smart bird for shape, quality and colour, a nice exhibit; 2, Luff, good type again, and quality, but lacks the colour of leader; 3, Brooks, nice shape, good feather, drops tail a bit, which handicapped it; vhc, Knight; hc, Head; c, Miss Marshall. BUFF (14): 1, Rogers and Mazzoni, full of quality, smart Nor. all over; 2, Hamer, quality and shape again, good under-colour, just a trifle free; 3, Cook, not much behind second; 4, vhc, Burton; hc, c, Head. MKD. ETC. CK. (8): 1, hc, Head, varieg. yell., rich colour, shape and quality, won Ramsden's spl; 2, Hamer; 3, Sawyer, junr., both good and fine in quality; 4, Mrs. Lovegrove, varieg. buff, good shape, little too much feather; vhc, Davies and Gerry; c, Knight. HENS (11): 1, Hart, yell., chubby, nice soft rich feather, good all over; 2, Daniel, buff, nice type and feather; 3, Mrs. Lovegrove, pretty, showed grand soft feather and good shape; 4, hc, c, Head, three nice ones; vbc, Sawyer junr. UNFLIG. (18): 1, c, Sawyer, junr., cl. buff, well built, rich tone of feather; 2, hc, Lawrence, buff, short body, fine quality; 3, Inglis, grizzle-headed yell., good front, short flights and tail, but hardly so rich in quality as some; 4, vhc, Mrs. Lovegrove, former variog. buff.

Mr. T. Heath's Classes.

YORKS. CL. ETC. YELL. CK. (9): 1, spl, Mountain, bird of fine mettle, grand feather and position, played well along the perch, all over a nice one; 2, Warley, full of style, nice quality, made good second; 3, Brooks, really nice Yorkie, capital style and finish; 4, Wilcock; still another smart bird, well posted—four rattling good birds, which made a fine race; vhc, Dobson; hc, c, Mabey. BUFF (9): 1, Mountain, same mould as winning yell., rich quality and true style; 2, Wilcock, stylish, shines well, nice behind leg, neat head and finish; 3, Mabey, goes up at its work well, nicely polished, good wing and back; 4, Askew, loses a little all round to leaders, but typical; vhc, c, Warley; hc, Dobson. MKD. ETC. CK. (9): 1, 3, H. Davis, couple of his grand 'uns, stylish, teeming with quality; 2, Dobson, very full of "go"; 4, hc, Mabey, both good, the leader having the pull in pose and feather; vhc, Wilcock; c, Warley. HENS A.V. (15), a warm lot, headed by 1, Mountain, grand hen, superb feather, as merry as a cricket, sprightly Yorks. lass; 2, c, Davis, stylish, teeming with quality, well cleaned out all through; 3, 4, hc, Mabey, topping trio, stylish, full of quality, overflowing with breedy points; vhc, Dobson. UNFLIG. (16): 1, Mabey, rattling youngster, shows every promise of developing into an excellent adult; 2, Wilcock, a Yorks. from Yorkshire, possesses great merit, close on heels of winner; 3, Warley, upstanding, steady, full of life; 4, Askew, very nice; vhc, hc, Davis; c, Cross. NOVICE CLASSES.—YORKS. CL. ETC. YELL. CK. (17): 1, spl, Duke, very smart and stylish, nice quality feather and finish; 2, Simpson, another typical bird of good feather; 3, c, Whiteman, loses a trifle in finish to leaders, but good; 4, Mrs. Page, very neat, nice feather; vhc, Green; hc, Ingles. BUFF (12): 1, Walker, well up, nice behind leg, good feather; 2, Davies and Gerry, well up on leg, a good one; 3, Mrs. Gill, no note taken here; 4, Whiteman, will improve, and become more full of style and polish; vhc, Ralph; hc, Silverthorn; c, Green. MKD. ETC. CK. (7): These marked classes often lack support. The old hands seem chary of supporting them, hard to understand seeing that from this kind of birds the winners of the future spring: 1, Harewood, nicely moulded body; well up on leg; 2, Thorpe, good build and style; 3, Silverthorne; 4, Walker, two nice birds, merited their places in the list; vhc, Thomson. HENS A.V. (20), one of the most hopeful signs of progress when both Novices and Champion exhibitors enter like this, for the hen classes: 1, Simpson, won on her merits for style and feather; 2, Walker, close behind in most points; 3, Harwood, neat and smart; 4, Dukes, not so good as this owner's special winning yell. ck, but a neat hen all over; vhc, Masters; hc, Walker; c, Ingles. UNFLIG. (20), some birds of great promise here: 1, Duke, top sawyer, with a typical specimen in most points; 2, Beeney; 3, Ralph, all neat and showing the points of the breed; vhc, Thorpe; hc, Quantrell and Scars; c, Wright.

ST. COLUMB.

The 4th annual show of the St. Columb C.B., Etc., Association, was held in the Drill Hall, on November 4th. The light was excellent, and the staging was of the highest order. The entry was a large one—over 170 birds—and the competition in some classes was exceedingly keen. Mr. W. L. Salmon, who has for many years taken a keen interest in the fancy, made a most courteous and obliging secretary, and from the success achieved, was evidently the right man in the right place; he was ably assisted by an interested committee, most of them being old and tried fanciers, having made the bird hobby a study. The officers were: President, Mr. J. P. Dunston; vice-presidents, Messrs. H. J. Rowse, R. Lewis Tapley and C. E. Whitford; committee, Messrs. R. Bouey, John Brewer, F. Cornish, James Crapp, J. T. Endean, Mark Gatley, F. Liddicoat, S. Liddicoat, John Liddicoat, M. Hosking, and J. Hambley. The whole of the arrangements were carried out in a methodical manner, and the management of the show left nothing to be desired. The Crests, Mules, and Goldfinches were a splendid collection, and St. Columb has for years been noted as a hot-bed for the latter. The St. Austell String Band, under the conductorship of Mr. J. Sanders, played some choice selections to the delight of the visitors present. Mr. C. P. Telling judged.

NOR. CL. YELL. (8): 1, spl, J. and J. Symons, good shape head and neck, nice wing carriage, good, level colour; 2, Gregor Bros., rare shape, good body; 3, Rickard, beautiful colour, quality and shape, neat round head, good wings and tail; vhc, Gregor Bros.; hc, Gordon, C. F. Liddicoat; No. 6 while cardless, some made the best in class. I may say I consider CAGE BIRDS a splendid paper, writes Mr. C. Holroyd (Haworth). It has been the means of conveying a volumo of knowledge to me on Canary-keeping. Being a beginner in this hobby, I look forwnrd to it with great joy.

ST. AUSTELL.

The second annual exhibition of the St. Austell F.A. was held on Oct. 29th, in the spacious public hall, which is splendidly adapted for such an exhibition, being exceedingly well lighted and free from draughts. The entries came up wonderfully and far exceeded those of the previous year, and although the cage bird section was confined to members, it is a question if any other place in the county can produce such a lot of genuine and ardent fanciers as this association. This was clearly evinced by the splendid collection which faced the judge, most of the classes being well filled; and so excellent was the quality that in several classes two sets of winners could have been easily found. The Norwich Plainheads were excellent, colour, quality and type being very prominent. The Yorkshires were a characteristic lot and contained some grand ones. Mr. J. Trevenna made a very capital secretary, assisted by an able and energetic committee, consisting of Messrs. Clemence, Davies, Lawry, Newton, Nile, Thomas, and Whitter. Mr. T. Mason Hocking was the hon. general secretary, and he conducted the whole affair in a very business like method. The show was opened by the president, who was supported by Lady Grace Sawle, Miss Sawle, and others. The weather was fine and the attendance large, and during the afternoon and evening a choice selection of music was rendered by the St. Austell Orchestral Band. Mr. J. Davies judged, and got through his task in a most praiseworthy manner.

Critique.

SCOT. OR BELG. (2): 1, 2, Best, former cl. yell., good shoulders, neck, and drive, comes into position quickly; 2, cl. buff, little short in neck, not much position. NOR. CL. YELL. (7): 1, Clemence, excellent type, good quality feather; 2, Nile, nice head, neck, and feather, hardly so stout as winner, close up; 3, vhc, Trevenna, former good body, neat flights and tail, slightly flat in head; vhc, similar; res., Gaved, nice quality, short flights, fails in neck and chest to winners. BUFF (7): 1, 3, Gaved, former nice short chubby body, typical specimen, full of quality, the kind we like; 3rd, good head, neck and colour, a good one; 2, Trevenna, excellent shape, good quality, feather well frosted, close run for 1st; res., Clemence, little flat in head, fails in body and chest to winners; vhc, Hitchins, good quality feather, tight as boxwood, bit small; hc, Craddock; c, Masters. ROCHDALE GOOD INTENT C.B.S.

The 12th annual exhibition, promoted by the Rochdale Good Intent C.B.S., was held on November 7th, in the Parish Church Schools, Lower Tweedale Street. The room is a grand one for a bird show, being exceptionally well lighted, spacious, and lofty, and very close to the station, a feature which fanciers generally appreciate. Entries came up well especially considering there were several other shows being held in Lancashire. As is usual at Rochdale, Lancashires occupied the premier position in the schedule, and made a grand display, some really magnificent birds being on view. Lizards made another fine show. Splendid specimens of this variety were staged. Mr. Collinge's winner in the Crest Class and Mr. Hardy's in the C.B. class are two grand birds. The Yorkshire section contained some very classical specimen birds of beautiful quality, splendid type, and size, and straight as pencils, being exhibited. The competition for specials of the O.N.P.C. brought together some of the best of this variety, including some well-known winners. Mr. Sam Clayton is an ideal secretary, and had everything in first-class order, making a visit to the show most enjoyable. He was well supported by the president, Mr. T. H. Collinge, the vice-presidents, Messrs. J. Lord, J. Battye, G. Adams, R. R. Gaskill, and R. Brown, the treasurer, Mr. E. Hartley, and the committee, Messrs. Lees, Dewhurst, Holden, Holt, Sidaway, B. Lord, W. T. Banks, W. Adams and H. Carr. Mr. H. W. Battye and Mr. J. Garner placed the cards, and we heard little complaint.

PORTSMOUTH.

Beautiful weather and a splendid attendance favoured the 22nd show of the Portsmouth Society, which was held in the Engineers' Drill Hall, on November 4th and 5th. The entry was not quite up to the average of past shows, but the quality was of a high order, many very handsome birds being staged. All the arrangements were ably carried out by the Committee at the head of which is Mr. F. C. Foster, the Mayor, at one time a most successful Crest breeder. Messrs. Woodhouse and Abrahams made a most excellent pair of secretaries, and all went smoothly and well. Mr. J. Dobson judged Canaries, and Mr. W. Swaysland British and Foreign.

DULWICH AND PECKHAM.

Held November 5 and 6 in the Town Hall, Rotherhithe, S.E., a really grand room, with an excellent light both day and night, besides being perfectly cosy and draught-proof. It was most attractively decorated with plants and banners, and when filled with birds, presented, as the Mayor remarked at the opening ceremony, "a really charming sight." The exhibits were benched in first-class style, and nothing was lacking in stewardship. In this matter the Dulwich and Peckham band of fanciers had something to "wipe off the slate"—the fiasco of last year. With the management in fresh hands it is but bare justice to say that this was handsomely accomplished, for no show could possibly have worked more smoothly, no birds could have received more thorough attention. Mr. W. Hodson, the respected secretary, is to be congratulated on the successful outcome of his work, in which he received able assistance from Mr. F. Cole, the assistant-secretary. These two genial and capable officials made no mistake. They were well backed up by a committee of true enthusiasts, comprising Messrs. H. E. Tringham (who is a very courteous and "live" chairman, just the one to make things go), A. Cunningham, E. S. Lagg, W. J. Cromfield, L. J. Richardson, N. A. Meredith, F. Johnson, and J. Hazell, while we noticed one or two of the vice-presidents (Messrs. J. B. Waterman and C. Mabey, for instance) taking a keen interest in affairs. That thorough fancier, Mr. R. Brownlie did everything possible for the Border Fancies. With these fanciers at the helm, exhibitors can rest assured that their welfare is in safe keeping. No doubt the memory of last year had its effect on the entry this, but we hope to see a record at the next time of asking now that the society's true worth has been established. The re-packing of the birds was very expeditiously accomplished, the hall being cleared of everything, and closed, shortly after 10.30 p.m.—smart work, seeing that the show only closed at eight. In the limit and selling classes there were some nice bargains, many of which got picked up. Norwich Plainheads were a fine collection, most of the leading Southern breeders being represented, consequently the quality was of the highest order. A point worthy of notice in connection with this variety in the present season is the great improvement discernible in the yellows. Good ones are more numerous, the type more pronounced, and quality and colour very much improved upon former years. Yorkshires were bouncing classes, and gave Mr. Broadley a good day's work. The honours were somewhat evenly divided between north and south, the competition being well sustained throughout the whole section, as keenly in the members' section as in the open. Crests were few but good. Borders had a good entry, and the quality was excellent. One defect we have noticed in this variety, which it may not be out of place to mention, and that is a tendency to flatness of head. It is not generally pronounced, but it is there in not a few cases, and it is a blemish which will tend to grow worse instead of better, if breeders do not attend to it. The various classes in the members' sections were well contested, and the quality was of a very praiseworthy order indeed. The Hybrids made two interesting classes, not the least interesting birds therein being three that the judge marked "wrong class." It was not easy to trace any Finch characteristics in them. Messrs. Hopkins and Allsopp, Lamb, Morton, and Fulbrook took the principal prizes. The British classes contained many specimens above the average in merit, among which may be singled out the fine Goldfinch staged by Mr. Harris, that difficult subject, the Sedge Warbler, put down in excellent trim by Mr. Baker, Mr. Mays' grand-coloured Greenfinch, and the bulky Hawfinch, a fine all-round specimen shown by Mr. Francis. Other fanciers who got their share of the spoil included Messrs. Botting, Prior, R. J. Howe, Marley, Gunnell, Adamthwaite, Simpson, Martin, and Fulbrook. The judges were Messrs. H. Broadley (Keighley), Yorks.; J. Robson (London), all other Canaries; and G. E. Weston (London), Hyb., Brit., Selling, Limit, etc., classes. They had an excellent light to work by, and we did not hear much fault-finding after the cards went up. The tit-bit of the show, the fine £7 7s. shield for best bird, was secured by Mr. J. W. Rennie's clear yellow Norwich, an exceptionally good bird, and a popular winner. This exhibitor bids fair to become a power to be reckoned with in the realm of the chubby ones. He also captured the members' challenge cup and bowl. Mrs. Haysom's fine Crest accounted for the ladies' special.

Mr. J. Robson's Classes.

NOR. CL. YELL CK. (16): 1, Rennie, the shield winner, a bird of grand body shape, rare quality of feather, lovely depth of colour, neat head; 2, Morris, well burnished, good colour, nice type and quality; 3, Gill and Pethick, lovely tone of feather, shapely body, neat head, good one; 4, Hodder, full of quality, neat in head, really excellent type; vhc, Matthes; hc, Miles; c, Bellamy. BUFF (12): 1, Young, the Metropolitan winner, looking even better than on that occasion; 2, Baker, lovely soft silky feather, fine shape of body and head, short flights and tail, coming along nicely; 3, Morris, similar type of bird to first, but scarcely so rich in undercolour and bloom; 4, Gill and Pethick, not so stout as leaders, but lovely feather and colour; vhc, Morris; hc, Miles; c, Ellis. TKD. ETC. YELL (11): 1, Midgley, a big 'un, good feather, in grand form; 2, Young, grand quality, good colour, rather longer in flights; 3, Morris, well-known eye ticked; 4, Spillman, ticked lack of head, grand type and quality, a Norwich all over, specially so for a yellow; vhc, Pope; hc, Miles; c, Bellamy. TKD. ETC. BUFF (9): 1, Rennie, silky feather, good shape, nice under colour, hold head, needs just a little tightening up under; 2, Morris, fine headed bird, tip top feather, nice type, colour and bloom; 3, Hodder, a well-known winner, nothing to beat it for type, but not looking its best; 4, Baker, grand feather and under-colour, might be just a bit fuller in head, but a sweet bird; vhc, Tootle; hc, Miles; c, Young. UNFLIG. YELL (19): 1, Midgley, lovely quality of feather and rich colour, nice stout body and full head; 2, Gill and Pethick, a bird of grand colour, fine outline, rare quality, we liked much; 4, Hodder, good shape, rich colour and feather, nice one; vhc, Rennie; hc, Spillman; c, Baker. UNFLIG. BUFF (17): 1, Ellis, ticked on neck and wing, lovely all over for type, quality and colour, quickly claimed at catalogue price; 2, Midgley, splendid quality of feather, nice type of body, just a wee bit weak in head; 3, Rennie, rattling shape, rich undercolour, nice quality; 4, Baker, good head, back, and body, fine texture of feather and terms with under colour; vhc, Morris; hc, Gill and Pethick; c, Spillman. HEAVILY VARIEG. OR GREEN (11): 1, Ellis, heavily variegated, typical, rich colour, silky feather, gem for colour breeding; 2, Jordan, variegated buff, fine quality, fails in head; 3, Pope, long in wing, grand feather and under colour; 4, Hodder, bloomy feather, good wing covering, typical; vhc, Bellamy; hc, Richardson; c, Gill and Pethick. a beautiful bird of fine shape, feather, and under colour. HENS (25): 1, Rennie, a yellow, large, good colour and quality, crosses her wings at tips badly at times; 2, Tootle, splendid quality, feather shining like glass, typical, good Norwich carriage, deep colour; 3, Hodder, ticked buff of shape, quality and under colour, wee bit slack to-day; 4, Hopkins and Allsopp, bonny type, best of quality, and nice in under colour; vhc, Whent; hc, Rippon, a good one; c, Miles. Nos. 3 and 4, Baker, two lovely buffs; 5, Midgley lovely quality yellow; 18, Morris, a grand one, all fit to be in the money. CRESTS (8): 1, Tyson, wing marked dark Crest, with a massive head-piece, fine in formation, splendid droop, long in frontal, indeed all round, and very dense; 2, Mrs. Haysom, not so massive as the winner, but a very smart all-round Crest; 3, 4, hc, Johnson, good team from one roost; vhc, Horton; c, Ryder. BORDER CL. OR TKD. YELL (16), many right good birds amongst them: 1, Brownlie, grand bird, often described; 2, Calderwood, very neat and close feathered, gay little fellow; 3, Blackie, charming in feather and full of real Border life and action, quick, jaunty and stylish in dress, we liked much; 4, vhc, Saytch, a novice, who did well in such aristocratic company, neat with glossy close feather; hc, O'Connell; c, Brownlie. YELL HEN (8): 1, Brownlie, typical, nice feather; 2, c, Wardleworth, scarcely so well finished, but grand feather; 3, Roberts, really sweet little lady, typical, full of life and fine in feather; 4, Taylor, very clean in the moulting, lovely silky dress, carries herself splendidly; vhc, O'Connell; hc, Simpson. BUFF CK. (14): 1, Simpson, natty, full of go, high class feather; 2, Blackie, very jaunty, lively as a cricket, rich tone of feather; 2, Taylor, very sweet, silky feather, real Border carriage; 4, Brownlie, very pretty, good feather, trifle loose at thighs; vhc, Hammacott and Card; hc, Saytch; c, Roberts, bird we fancied, very neat and stylish, well finished. BUFF HEN (9): 1, Blackie, lovely wing carriage, jaunty, full of Border properties, stylish little lassie; 2, Taylor, scarcely so well finished, but grand carriage; 3, Roberts, bird of fine contour, lovely in feather texture, sweet head; 4, c, Hammacott and Card, grand carriage, fine quality, just a trifle wide in tail at times, but very sweet; vhc, Arnott and Jamoson; c, Riddles (a novice, on the right track, simply lovely feather and type). EVEN MARKS (5): 1, Robson, excels in marking, and well up in all other Border points; 2, Wardleworth, another nicely marked one, good carriage and feather; 3, Ellwood, delightful for tone of feather, hardly the finish in markings, 4, Brownlie, smart, all-round; vhc, Roberts. UNEVEN OR VARIEG. (13): 1, Simpson, yellow very pretty, fine quality of feather, gay carriage; 2, Phillips, carries itself nicely, silky feather, nice in colour; 3, Brownlie, yellow, lovely texture of feather, gay and full of go; 4, Taylor, a Buff, grand soft blooming feather, nice carriage; vhc, Hammacott and Card; hc, Roberts; c, Arnott and Jameson. GREENS (7): 1, Calderwood, fine in colour, lively as could be, well marked as greens go; 2, Stovin, fine feather, fairly nice carriage, scarcely so good in colour; 3, Arnott and Jameson, hardly so well finished, but a natty little bird; 4, Philip, smart carriage, and good feather; vhc, Arnott and Jameson; hc, Blackie. CINN. (8): 1, 4, vhc, hc, Brownlie, the well-known yellow leading; 2, Robson, nice colour, hardly so bright though, neat carriage; 3, Philip, nice quality, not so pure in wing colour as leaders; c, Saytch. LANC. COPPY (7), four of which belonged to the Southern veteran. Mr. Green, to which were awarded 1, 2, 3, vhc, the leader being a really typical and well finished yellow, fit to win anywhere; 4, Dyke, good, but beaten in coppy; hc, Westbrook. PLAINHEAD (6), five to Mr. Green, who had all the prize money, the leader being a topping ticked yellow, with massive skull, very fine front, stands well, and in rattling trim; vhc, Goodall, a bird that would win at many shows. DUTCH FRILLS (6), all to Mr. Brooks, who is to be commended, first on the quality he exhibits, and secondly on the determined and well sustained efforts he makes to popularise the variety. We wish him success: both the birds and himself deserve it. MEMBERS —CHAMP. NOR. CL. OR TKD. YELL. TUNBRIDGE WELLS.

A splendid Show, and splendidly managed, was Tunbridge Wells. It was scarcely to be wondered at that the entry was good, near upon 200, and that on a date when shows were strewn thick and fast all about. The Sussex Assembly Rooms, are situated quite close to "Ye Pantiles," and are eminently suitable for the purposes of a show of birds. If they possessed just a little more top light they would be ideal. The arrangements of the show devolved mainly upon Mr. H. G. Whibley, the hon. secretary, who has had some years of experience, and may be called a past master now in the art of show management. He takes things coolly and works methodically, and consequently meets with success. His committee are heart and soul in the work, led by Mr. F. Wraight, the chairman, and composed of the following gentlemen:—Messrs. Allen, Blackmore, Bavorstock, Bench, Borman, Cocks, Haines, Hagger, Hayward, Hobbs, Hughes, Lucas, McVicar, Richards, Schmidt, Stockton, Taylor, Urban, Walker and Warner. The opening day of the show was a beautifully fine one, consequently there were many lady visitors. Mr. A. Silver judged our section. The quality all through, and more especially in the British section, was good. The Norwich classes contained birds of high merit; Yorkshires were not so strong in point of quality; Crests were very nice; Males had good classes; and the British, as might be expected, were a fine lot.

KIRKCUDBRIGHT F.A.

A general meeting was held in Town Hall on October 28th, Mr. John Wilkinson (president) presiding. Mr. John Kelly tendered his resignation as secretary. He reported a balance in hand of £16. Mr. W. R. Cruickshanks was appointed secretary. The date of our show was fixed for Friday, December 18th.—J. Kelly.

MIDDLETON O.S.

A very successful supper was held on October 26th at headquarters. Mr. R. Williamson provided a "hot pot," to which full justice was done by all present, each member enjoying it very much. The chairman, Mr. W. Bescoby moved a vote of thanks to Mr. R. Williamson, and that gentleman ably responded.—H. Thomas, Hon. Sec.

SOUTH MANCHESTER C.B.S.

Meeting held at headquarters on October 26th, when a washing exhibition was given by our president, Mr. F. Washbourne, before a large gathering of members and friends. Our worthy vice-president, Mr. J. Dickinson, took the chair. Mr. Washbourne, in his opening remarks told us how he washed his birds for the show bench. He gave us a splendid demonstration on seven birds, and it was remarkable how soon he had them washed and dried. Several questions were put to him which he answered in his usual straightforward manner. After a vote of thanks to him had been passed the meeting closed, it being one of the most instructive evenings we have spent. Mr. T. Walton (Gorton) was elected a member.—J. C. Spilsbury. Sec.

WELSH CAGE BIRD CLUB.

All members must send on their subscriptions at once, otherwise points gained at any show or shows, prior to the paying of the subscription, will be lost, as per general rules. At our last meeting nine new members were accepted. If others wishful to join will send on their subscription of 3s., I will send them a schedule of our club show, held in the Parish Hall, Brecon, November 18th. We have valuable specials, etc. The show will be opened at 12 noon by the Ven. Archdeacon E. F. Bevan, M.A., supported by the President, the Right Hon. Lord Glanusk. We want to make this, our second club show, a gigantic success. The Brecon and Merthyr Railway issue cheap tickets on their lines. Club patronage to the following shows: Merthyr and Dowlais, Cardiff and Dist., Welsh National (Swansea), Porth, and Tredegar. We hope to arrange with a show in North Wales. Fanciers hurry up, and join the club that has been the means of improving the classification and prizemoney in Wales. Unity is strength.—D. H. Tedstone, Hon. Sec., 4, George-street, Brecon.

PENDLETON AND SALFORD O.S.

The members had a treat on October 12th, when Mr. Cutmore, of the Liverpool Museum, lectured before them, the subject being "Popular British Hard and Soft Bills." The lecturer dealt at great length with the anatomy and reproduction, then describing the differences of some ninety specimens, which he brought with him, and which included among others the following: Goldfinch, Hawfinch, Bramblefinch, Chaffinch, Greenfinch, Siskin, Greenfinch, Twite, Linnet, Sparrow, Crossbill, Bullfinch, Cornbunting, Meadow Pipit, Crow, Jay, Chough, Missel Thrush, Song Thrush, Redwing, Ring Ousel, and the Woodlark. There was no time for asking questions, and some of the members remarked that Mr. Cutmore ought to come again on the following Saturday afternoon so as to give more time to study the specimens and be able to ask a few questions. The chairman, Mr. Geo. W. F. Lythgoe, moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Cutmore for his interesting lecture, which was carried unanimously. Amongst the visitors were Mr. W. A. Bladon, president of the C.B.U., and Mr. Raynes, sec., Norwich P.H. Club.—W. Jackson, sec.

YORKSHIRE CANARY CLUB OF SCOTLAND.

A meeting was held on October 27th in the Co-operative Hall, Glasgow, the chief business being the points secured at Kelty. The following figures were agreed correct:—McRobbie, 17; McDougall, 13; Penman, 11; Webster, 9; Paterson, 7; Bowman, Hendry, and Campbell, 6 each; Gibb, 4; Shewan, 3; and Cardwell, 2. The secretary was instructed to write country members as to what they consider the most suitable date to hold the annual general meeting; will members intending being present let me know as soon as possible, as it is suggested that we hold it on the last Saturday in January. It was also decided to write Mr. W. Fortune asking him to give a lecture or read a paper before the members at our next meeting. A friendly discussion then took place on the various points of the Yorkshire, and how to breed for them, which was entered into with much enthusiasm, after which the meeting closed with a vote of thanks to Mr. R. B. Gibb, who kindly acted as chairman. New members: Messrs. A. G. Gavin (Fraserburgh) and J. McLellan (Renfrew).—Fred Bowman, Hon. Sec.

BRADFORD (East) O.S.

Mr. S. Dean gave a capital lecture on October 6th, his subject being "Preparing for Exhibition." He gave us first a list of points. In his opinion these points had been achieved by the different crosses. To illustrate his ideas he had about six coloured plates of the different varieties, which in some degree or the other had helped to make the Yorkshire of the present day. He advocated using the Belgian for getting good position, nice wing carriage, and narrow shoulders. He described the method he adopts for washing birds. He uses two basins with a spout to each, so that he can lay the bird in the spout to wash the tail and wings, this acting as a kind of stay for the bird's body. Mr. Dean said he preferred using badger hair brushes as these did not split when used in the water. He uses a good-sized sponge and a cup, turning plenty of water on, in order to get the soap well out of the feathers. He advised getting the birds into tip-top condition, and in order to do this he gives them the seeds that are good for this purpose, maw and gold of pleasure seeds being two good conditioners. He also gave samples of a new dry conditioning food for Canaries, and assured us that this would be put on the market in due course. Questions were answered satisfactorily, and a vote of thanks to the lecturer closed the meeting.—H. Hill, Hon. Sec.

IN THE COURTS.

A Novel Defence Prevails.

At Cannock Police Court, November 9th, Henry Clarke, described as a taxidermist, of Norton Canes, was summoned under the Wild Birds Protection Act for shooting what was termed a Lesser Grebe on September 28th.—Evidence was given by several witnesses that Mr. Clarke was seen to shoot what was described as a Dab-chick that was diving into Norton Pool, Chasetown. The Dab-chick (Lesser Grebe) is protected by statute all the year round.—The defendant denied that the bird he shot was protected under the Act.—He called Mr. F. Coburn, a well-known Midland naturalist, who said that the defendant forwarded a bird to him, which he produced "set up" to the Court. It was very rare in this part of the country, and while the Lesser Grebe lived here all the year round this other was a migratory species.—The Bench dismissed the case.—"Wolverhampton Express and Star."

THE YOUNG NATURALIST.

Prizes of 1s. and two of 6d. each will be given each week for the best three anecdotes about birds written on postcards. Competitors must be children under sixteen years of age, and must state from where stories are taken.

*A Fatal Quarrel.

During a walk across a number of cornfields a week or two ago I noticed a hatch of birds playing in the corn. When passing the spot I could plainly see a Blackbird quite dead. On looking round I could count easily twenty Sparrows flying round me. At last I came to the conclusion that they and the fatal Blackbird had had a quarrel and he had fallen their victim.—Sent by Leonard Smithurst (age 12), Forest Town, Mansfield, Notts.

*A Strange Nesting Place.

One day my friend told me she had found a nest in an old rusty cash box, near my house. It was cosily made inside the box, and the lid was half-way open. In the nest were two dear little Robin's eggs. About a week or ten days after we were told that the Robin had laid three more eggs, but the lid of the box was closed so that the bird could not get in. They opened the lid, hoping to see the little bird again, but it never returned to its curious nest.—Sent by Blanche Job (age 13), The Lodge, Trewern, Oswestry, Salop.

My Sparrow.

My Sparrow was rescued from an untimely death, when its feathers were just appearing, but it was somewhat crippled from falling from its home in a Martin's nest. It was placed in a basket, where the parents would come and feed it. It became very tame, and on being let out of the window, would come in at the front door, and hop up the stairs when evening came and it was tired of being outdoors. I would find it sitting on the outside of the Canary's bath. Once, having flown to a high tree, it flew from there down to my shoulder to eat some bread. While I was away a cat put an end to its happy little life, and I felt I had lost a friend.—Sent by Vera Wainwright (age 14), Didgmount, Peaslake, Guildford.

PRESTON O.S.

The October meeting was held in the rooms of the Preston Scientific Society, on October 12th, Mr. Chas. Blackhurst, M.R.C.V.S., presiding. The working of the November show was discussed, and the schedule passed for printing. Mr. J. W. Cleminson was appointed show manager, the Rev. S. E. Collinson as chief steward, and the following members as judges' stewards:—Messrs. Brown, Gabbott, Gregson, Marsh, Taylor, and Walkden. At the conclusion of the business a washing competition was held in which Messrs. T. Leeming, Peake, Anderton, and J. Knowles took part. Mr. Leeming was accorded first place. Mr. J. W. Cleminson, who adjudicated, then gave a washing exhibition, which was much appreciated, especially by the younger members.—W. Hy. Heathcote, Sec.

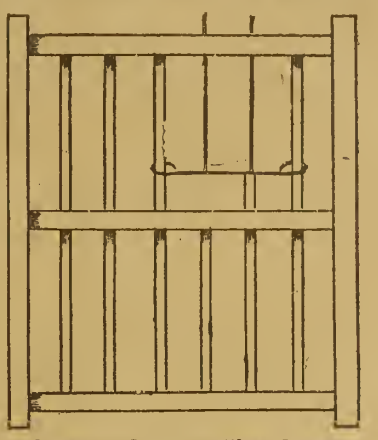
BIRKENHEAD C.F.A.

On October 20th some 40 members and friends meet at headquarters to witness an exhibition of washing Canaries for show by Mr. S. Hadwin, of Liverpool. Mr. J. Burnes, who was in the chair, in calling upon Mr. Hadwin said that that gentleman was well known to all as a keen fancier, and one ever ready to help. Mr. Hadwin proceeded with the washing exhibition. He is very thorough in his method and explained every stage of the process in a lucid manner. After he had got his birds in the cloths, Messrs. Burns, Moss and Harding gave their birds a wash. Mr. Burns proposed, and Mr. Watson seconded a vote of thanks to Mr. Hadwin. It was proposed that we give admission tickets to the elder scholars at the schools, and also a special prize for the best essay on "cage birds."—J. Richardson, Secretary.

WIMBLEDON C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held October 5th, at 6, The Broadway. Mr. W. H. Stoakley presided. Three new members were elected, and one gentleman nominated for membership. The secretary reported a slight bal[illegible] to the good on the recent young bird show. [illegible], the chairman said, almost established a record, and, at any rate, showed they were making prosperous progress. The medal for best bird shown by a novice at the show in question, was presented to the winner, Mr. Found, by the chairman, who heartily congratulated him upon his success. The only other business was the submitting to the meeting, for confirmation, the rules, list of classes, list of specials, and other important matters in connection with the show of the society to be held on Tuesday and Wednesday, November 17th and 18th. The meeting seemed to be thoroughly satisfied with the large amount of work which the secretary and committee had done on their behalf. The show will have the patronage of the Southern Yorkshire Canary Club Champion Section, the Southern Norwich Canary Club Novice Section, and the Crested Canary Club.—H. Smith, Hon. Sec.

ILLUSTRATED IDEAS



Under this heading we shall illustrate weekly some ideas useful to the bird-keeper. Readers are invited to send us particulars of any novel and practical appliance of use in our hobby, either in cage, bird room or aviary, with a rough sketch of same where possible. Every "Illustrated Idea" used in this column will entitle the sender thereof to a postal order for two shillings and sixpence.

A FITTING FOR WICKER TRAVELLING CAGES.

Sent by J. W. Stokes, Hill Top Dairy, West Bromwich.

The drawing represents one end of the well-known wicker travelling cages used primarily for Roller Canaries. My improvement is a little wire door at the end holding the water-bottle, to facilitate cleaning the latter out. It saves a lot of trouble, and the cages are often very useful when you have a lot of young Canaries about. The water-pot bangs on the second upright, which is left projecting half an inch or so. The door slides up through the holes left when removing the wood bars. The drawing, I think, clearly explains the notion.—J. W. Stokes.

No. 257.

A CARRYING CAGE FOR LARKS.

Sent by Mr. J. Fletcher, 18, Cobden Street, Waterhead, Oldham.

Enclosed sketch shows a carrying box for Skylarks, which I find very useful, as a fancier of this musical bird, to possess a good songster, must take his own bird out to hear the notes of his brother out in the fields. So here is my idea of a box for the purpose. The drawing gives you the outside which, if made as shown, will give the bird just nice room to turn round. A are the small holes for food and water, covered by small doors, which must be fastened by small catches as seen at C. There should be a small space left for sand-drawer. E gives you the door through which to run your bird in and out; it can be made either to slide in or fasten with binges. F are the holes left for light; G the wood handle, which may be taken from an old stove brush. There should be a small hole at each end, for ventilation, and the top must hang over about ¼ of an inch all round. You will see that the food and water are kept out of the way of the bird's feet. The window boxes must stand a little out from the sides, so that the glass will slide in.—J. Fletcher.

SINGING CONTESTS.

NEWTOWN (Leeds.)

Usual contest held November 8th when 22 birds sang: 1, 2, Sissons; 3, Robinson. Judges, Messrs. R. Jackson and C. Larriman.—W. Dean, Sec.

PENTONVILLE, N.

At the "Bee Hive," Cynthia Street, Pentonville Road, for the week's handicaps, there was a good show of Linnets and Chaffinches. There was keen competition, "Birdie," "Hedges," "Tubby," and "Pouy Moore," proving the winners. Handicap, 28-day marble clock for Chaffinch next week.—W. Morrison, Timekeeper.

YORK.

The 1st Linnet Contest of the season was held at the Crown Inn, North Street, November 7th, when 14 birds competed. Principal winners: 1, Smith; 2, Lambert; 3, Kirby; 4, Watson. Judge, Mr. Perry; Timekeeper, Mr. Cooper.—J. Smith, Sec.

A proclamation has been issued by the Queensland Government protecting Egrets and Lyre Birds throughout the year in the districts in which the Native Birds Protection Acts, 1877 to 1884, are at present in operation.

WILD BIRD LIFE.

The Autumn Migration.

During a long ramble on a fine, sunny day, hardly half a dozen birds were seen, excepting at the end of the journey, when the all too short autumn day was drawing to a close. Then a few flocks of Woodpigeons, and Starlings were seen making for the woods on the higher ground where, during the autumn and winter months, some thousands of feathered creatures scramble and quarrel for roosting sites. The Larks, Buntings, Blackbirds, Thrushes, Wagtails, and other resident birds have all suddenly vanished. The peculiar ways of the birds at this season of the year are past comprehension. They appear to be continually moving from one place to another, without any reason for doing so; they are, no doubt, taking part in what we are pleased to call the autumn migration, which continues during the greater part of the winter, regulated mostly by climatic conditions. But it is not always regulated so, for in this district the weather is as good now as it was a month ago; then we were favoured with many birds, now we have none, and possibly in a week's time, they or their fellows will be back again. The spring migration of birds is familiar to everyone who takes the slightest interest in nature's subjects. We are, most of us, looking forward to sunshine and warmth, gay flowers, and the melody of graceful birds, lately come to us from over the seas; but the autumn migration is seen by few; one must have lived on the east coast, or near some tidal river flowing into the North Sea to have any idea of this great movement. The stretches of marsh land are visited daily by Snipe, Plover, Ducks, and other wild fowl, some to stay until disturbed or driven away, others to merely settle for a rest, after which they may be off again to quiet pools and reedy meres. The waders and water birds are not the only winged creatures taking part in the autumn movement. Great as the spring migration is, that of the autumn is no doubt greater. Almost every bird known to us appears to take part in it, the wild ones, the familiar and common species, all are on the move. Thousands of Larks, Starlings, Blackbirds, Common Greenbirds, and Linnets may be seen crowding the hedgerows by the coast, resting after the journey. Rooks and Crows come in huge flocks, and during the winter raid the farm lands and marshes near the coast; even the tiny Wrens make the perilous journey in thousands from their northern homes.

Missel Thrush in Ireland.

The present year is believed by ornithologists to be the centenary of the establishment of the Missel Thrush as an Irish bird.

A White Grouse.

A white Grouse has been found in Scotland. This, it is said, is the first entirely white specimen discovered, though sometimes birds have been found spotted with white or of a dark buff colour.

The Aquatic Plover.

It is not generally known that the Green Plover is able to swim like a duck, but it appears that they seldom indulge in this exercise unless compelled to do so. We have seen a wounded bird swim away from the shore and try to hide itself in the rushes growing in a shallow spot.

Migrating Falcons.

Predatory birds are as much subject to the migratory fever as seed and insect eaters. As a rule the young ones move first, and are occasionally caught in the traps and nets used for the capture of wild fowl. I have known a young Peregrine (distinguished by the brownish colour of his back) to be caught while chasing a wild duck into the net.

Rooks Returning to Roost.

Every evening just about sunset the long train of Rooks may be seen crossing the sky to roost. As the days shorten one may note them by the clock to be a little earlier than in the previous week. In fine weather they are very regular, but on dull, wet days they are evidently guided by the declining light, and will start some minutes earlier than in bright weather.

Wildfowl.

Wildfowl are on the move, and although the weather has been genial and summer-like, many have moved south or sought the companionship of their fellows. On the marches and open hillsides huge flocks of Plovers may be seen daily, and presently when the cold wind from the north reaches us it will bring with it a regular mob of waders and waterfowl adding an interesting feature to the marsh and seashore.

YOU WILL BE LEFT SORROWING

If you do not send that Sixpenny Postal Order along to us AT ONCE.

"Cage Birds Annual" is almost out of print. We have but a few copies left for sale.

Marvellous Compendium of knowledge on all Birdy Matters.

Coloured Plate.

Calendar.

A monthly calendar and diary, with novel table for ascertaining when eggs are due to hatch.

"Work of the Year."

A splendidly useful article, in which is set out the work amongst your birds for each month of the year. Perusal of it will enable the bird-keeper to anticipate his future wants, and be always ready to do whatever is needful and beneficial for his stock. Full of practical hints.

"Washing and Preparing Birds for Exhibition."

"The Breeding and Rearing of Canaries."

A very practical and thorough contribution from the pen of an old fancier, who gives many excellent "tips" as to the best ways to proceed. An article that will teach you something.

"Pairs Matched for Breeding."

"The Breeding of Hybrids."

An article on the fascinating pursuit of Hybrid breeding, by one who has made it a considerable study, and devoted much time to it. There are hints and advice in this contribution which may bring yon profit and fame.

"The Keeping of British Birds."

A concise and practical article dealing with the mistakes of fanciers, and the keeping of birds in show condition, and giving valuable "tips" on feeding.

"Some Easily Obtainable Foreign Birds."

"Review of the Exhibition Year."

Every breed of Canary, together with Hybrids, British and Foreign birds, has its progress on the show-bench during 1907 dealt with by leading judges, specialists, and experts, and the names of the principal winning exhibitors are given.

"The Diseases of Cage-Birds."

A feature in itself worth the whole cost of the volume. Diseases and accidents are described, and the best medicines and methods of treatment stated in simple language, and very fully and completely. It will save you many valuable birds.

"Glossary of Terms."

The curious terms used by fanciers are fully explained. Reference to the alphabetically-arranged columns will at once tell you the meaning of such expressions as jonque, leafy feather, mooning, rowing, and the like.

Directory to Cage-Bird Clubs, Associations and Societies, with particulars or subscriptions, etc., list of Officials and Secretary's name and address.
Directory to Prominent Breeders and Exhibitors of Cage-Birds.
Standards and Scales of Points for Canaries and British Birds.
Useful Postal and other Information.

DEPOSIT SYSTEM

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor for the honesty of either buyers or sellers. In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or, if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Fourpence.

Headlines or Footlines 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6 according to size.

Postal Orders must be sent as near as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the Advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

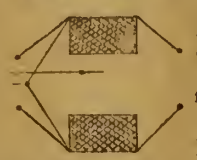
I DON'T BELIEVE



in making idle boasts nor exaggerated statements In order to induce anyone to become a customer. I find the best way to make and keep custom is to give downright good value at lowest possible price, and to ensure this none but highest quality materials and thoroughly-experienced workmen are employed in building up my goods. Clap nets, made from genuine thread netting, ¾-inch mesh, 3 yards long, 4/- pair; 4 yards, 5/-; 5 yards, 6/-; 6 yards, 7/-; 7 yards, 8/-; 8 yards, 9/-; 9 yards, 10/-; 10 yards, 11/- per pair; all guaranteed 5½ feet deep and strike 4 feet. All clap nets consist of two nets to the pair, and are fitted complete with pegs, poles, hemp lines, etc., ready for immediate use; all dyed with a special preparation which not only makes them invisible when set, but preserves netting as well, and nothing is spared to make them most durable and lastest working nets obtainable Loose thread netting, as used in above clap nets, ¾-mesh, 7 feet deep, 3d. yard; 9 feet deep, 4d. yard; 12 feet deep, 5d. yard; all post free. This netting is guaranteed finest obtainable, and must not be confused with the thick American cotton fishing netting now being sold for bird netting; my netting is made from 60s/3 cord thread; ask others size of theirs' and compare. Self-acting spring net traps, 24 inches long, 15 inches wide, 1/- each; ditto, 18 inches long, 9d. each; carriage, 4d. extra. These net traps are by far the largest and most simple working nets on the market, and will catch and hold uninjured any bird from Wren to Rook. Sparrow nets, fitted on 19 feet bamboo poles, with pocket top and bottom, 6/6 pair; ditto, on 14 feet poles, 5 6 pair; single trap cages, 6d. each, double ditto, 10d. and 1/- each; treble ditto, 1/3 each; all have separate compartment for call bird. Patent self-setting and self-acting trap cages, warranted to automatically reset immediately each bird is caught, and require no attention whatever, 1/6 each; Goldfinch or Linnet cages, 6d. each, 4/6 dozen; Lark Runner cages, 6d., 8d., and 9d. each, 4/-, 6/-, and 7/- dozen; singing box cages, 10d., 1/-, and 1/4 each; all metal hanging Canary cages, with glass round, 3/6, 4/-, 4/6, 5/-, 6/-, and 7/6 each; Parrot cages, 4/6 to 25/- each; cottage-roofed Thrush cages, 2/3, 2/9, and 3/6 each; round or square-topped call cages, 3d. each, 2/6 dozen; better quality, 4d. each, 3/6 dozen. The only genuine Japanese bird-lime, guaranteed absolutely strongest and best made, stands all weathers and guaranteed to hold birds in the rain, ¼-lb. 6d., ½-lb. 10d., 1 lb. 1/6, post free. This lime contains a secret chemical which enables it to leave the feathers when a bird is taken from twigs, so why buy inferior rubbish at higher price. For full printed list of all catchers' appliances and sample netting, send stamp. Penny tin drinkers, three dozen 1/3, six dozen 2/3, gross 4/-, three gross 10/6; zinc ditto, 9d. dozen, three dozen 2/-, six dozen 3/6, gross 6/-, three gross 15/-. Dealers, send stamp for trade list of cages, etc.; it will pay you. See few more unsolicited testimonials which have never before been published. "Sinclair Cottage, King-st., Dunoon, November 8th.—Sir,—Trap cage I got from you is a marvel for the money; a double event every time.—Yours, W. Marshall." "6, Blue-st., Boston, November 6th.—Sir,—Please send following netting same as I had few days ago, as I am very pleased with it, and shall certainly send for more.—Yours, A. Wakefield." "26, Barley-hall, Bonnybridge, November 7th.—Sir,—I am greatly pleased with birdlime from you.—Yours, R. Kenna." "Rugby Cottages, Newmarket, November 5th.—Sir,—I am very pleased with clap nets, also your straightforward method of trading. It seems a marvel how you can make them for the money.—Yours, J. Ashford." 59, Walker-st., Low-hill, Liverpool, November 6th.—Sir,—Please send following nets. I have a smaller pair purchased from you, and they are in grand condition yet, despite the fact that they have had very hard usage.—Yours, F. Pastorelli." "9, Thomas-st., Plumstead, November 8th.—Sir,—Please send following. The lime I got from you was very good indeed.—Yours, A. Shine." "36, Hill-st., Wellingboro', November 10th.—Sir,—Please send Sparrow nets as follows. I was very pleased with pull-line from you.—Yours, H. Allen." "4, Lower-st., Kettering, November 1st.—Sir,—The nets I got from you last season are still as good as new, and are the cheapest and best working pair nets I ever had.—Yours, F. Field" "Academy-square, Limekilns, Dunfermline, November 4th.—Sir,—Treble trap cage to hand, and is well worth the money. Please send following.—Yours, J. Moodie." "124, Stockwellgate, Mansfield, November 2nd.—Sir,—Please send following. The call cages I had from you are highly satisfactory; could not get better anywhere.—Yours, W. Oscroft." "Sunnyside, Ivinghoe, Aston, November 1st.—Sir,—I am delighted with clap nets; now please send following.—Yours, A. P. Johnson." "11, Owen-st., Thatto Heath, St Helens, October 28th.—Sir,—Clap nets to hand, and am very pleased with them. Please send four yards netting. I sent to another firm for some, and it is no earthly use, the birds get through easily.—Yours, H. Plumbley." "2, Westfield-place, Larbert, October 29th.—Sir,—Please send another ½-lb. lime, as the last was very good.—Yours, D. Pearson." "6, Aston-rd., Wem, Salop, October 27th.—Sir,—Please send pair clap nets as follows. I have been out catching with a net from elsewhere, but it does not give satisfaction.—Yours, T. Porter" Kindly notice dates of above; thousands more open for inspection, but the above few will show that I do not boast of thousands and publish about three in a season. Everything sent on approval at my risk; cash or CAGE BIRDS' deposit system, and money refunded in full if fullest satisfaction not given. Compare any article of mine with those obtained elsewhere at higher prices, and if mine is not by far the best, smash it up. I will refund your money. (Imitators, kindly copy as usual.) Patronise the man who studies the working-man's pocket by not charging exorbitant prices for inferior rubbish, but sells a good article at low price. I've bought my experience, hence reason for depositing. Will certainly recommend you.—Yours, H. James." "7, Chancery Lane, Skipton. Nov. 14. Sir,—Please send three Linnets I have had Linnets from you before, and found them very satisfactory.—Yours, J Hall." 20, Hillside, Pentre. Nov. 13. Sir,—Received Linnets safe; they are doing well, and are quite satisfactory.—Yours, B. Lewis." "Dunoon. Nov. 13. Sir,—Received birds all right, and in heat of health.—Yours, W. Marshall." "64, Crossfield Street, Deptford. Nov. 9. Sir,—Received Goldies safe; I am well pleased with them; they are two such beauties, and singing grand.—Yours, W. Donaghue." "2, Lumley Square, East Hartlepool. Nov. 7. Sir,—Goldfinch I had last August is a beauty; I would not take five times what I paid for him; I can honestly say you are worth recommending as an honest dealer.—Yours, F. Thompson." "7, Guildford Road, Poplar. Nov. 4. Sir,—I am well pleased with Goldfinch.—Yours, C. Egglesfield." "Hollycroft Road, Hinckley. Nov. 4. Sir,—Received birds and cage to-day, and am very pleased indeed with them. This is the third time I have dealt with you, and I don't intend it to be the last.—Yours, G. Gibson." "5, Friars Place, Inverness. Nov 3. Sir,—Received Goldfinch, and was surprised to receive such a fine bird, for it is worth really double the money charged for it.—Yours, F. Stanford." "21, Swan Street, Swansea. Nov. 1. Sir,—Received 12 Goldfinches, and am very pleased with them; they are really wonderful value for the money.—Yours, W. Mabbett." "24, Duckpool Road, Maindee, Newport, Mon. Nov. 1. Sir,—Received Goldfinch all right, and am glad to say he is a beauty; I am more than satisfied, never expecting such a bird for the money. Thanks for straightforward dealings; I am glad to say I have found the right place to get value for money. I shall recommend you to all my friends, as I was recommended to try you by a friend.—Yours, W. Lake." "59, Montague Street, Rothesay. Oct. 31. Sir,—All three birds arrived safe, and are by far and away the best wild birds I have ever bought, and more than value for what you charge. This I cannot say regarding other advertisers in CAGE BIRDS.—Yours, James M. Crone." On Nov. 7 Mr. M. Crone again writes:—"Sir,—Received the four Goldfinches to-day, as well as can be. The three for 5/- are simply marvellous value, and the other (which you sent in place of one which died) is a beauty. Will you please accept my grateful thanks for your kindness in sending me the bird free of all charge. I did not ask, and certainly never expected such a generous action. I thank you for the way you wrote, and for the advice you gave me. Now, please send a cock Siskin for exhibition." On Nov. 11 Mr. M. Crone again writes: Siskin to hand, and is a very nice bird. I am told it is a far better bird than the one shown by ——, and which won first prize last year. My next wants are as follows." All the above letters are open for inspection any time, and are guaranteed entirely unsolicited from persons who, apart from business transactions, are entire strangers to me. I claim to have by far more Worcestershire birds through my hands than all other advertisers together, so it naturally follows that by having a larger selection I can give better value than others. All birds guaranteed well caged steady, and properly on hard seed before sent out. If you would have highest quality at lowest price, patronise England's premier bird fancier.
